£1,000 for NATIONAL EDUCATION

THE Department of National Education is insisting upon the necessity of written examination for Scholars, and to assist this excellent effort the Proprietors of Willwood, Keiller, and Crosse & Blackwell's jams are combining to promote a simple written competitive effort for boys and girls under 14 years of age.

The main Prizes take the form of Scholarships:

FIRST PRIZE	Scholarship to the value of –	£250
SECOND PRIZE	Scholarship to the value of –	£100
THIRD PRIZE	Scholarship to the value of –	£50

and, in addition, there will be THREE CASH PRIZES in every county in the Irish Free State

1st Prize in each county	-	£10
2nd Prize in each county	-	£5
3rd Prize in each county	-	£2

making a total of £17 in cash prizes in each of the 26 counties of the Irish Free State, or £442 in cash prizes over and above the three Grand Scholarships. Also free trips to Dublin for all the prizewinners, accompanied by parent or teacher, and three Special Prizes of £10, £5, and £2 for best essays in Irish.

The Scholarship Committee

To insure strictly impartial judgment of all the essays submitted, the following prominent gentlemen have kindly consented to act as Judges, and will be known as the Scholarship Committee. The decision of the Scholarship Committee must be accepted as final:—

1. Professor W. E. Thrift, M.A., S.F. (T.C.D.).
2. O. Grattan Esmonde, Esq., T.D., M.A., Oxon.
3. Cormac Breathnach, ex-President, Gaelic League.
4. R. Thompson, Esq., Managing Director, Messrs. Williams and Woods, Ltd., Dublin.
5. Charles E. McConnell, Esq., A.I.P.A., Principal of McConnell's Advertising Service, Dublin.

This is the opportunity of a lifetime to provide your child, without cost, with the greatest asset that can be bestowed—a complete education in any school or college of your own choice.

Ask your grocer for Williams and Woods, Keiller, and Crosse and Blackwell's New Season's Strawberry, Raspberry, and Black Currant Jams, and save the discs. Your friends will be glad to help you in this fine effort, and, remember, each child may send in as many entries as you choose, provided each is made on the official Entry Form.

ALL YOU HAVE TO DO TO QUALIFY FOR ONE OF THE THREE CASH PRIZES IN YOUR OWN COUNTY

1. Save the cardboard discs (as illustrated), which will be found under the parchment cover of every jar of New Season's Strawberry, Raspberry and Black Currant Jam, manufactured by Williams & Woods, Keiller and Crosse and Blackwell.

2. When you have six discs from 1lb. pots, or three discs from 2lb. pots, send them, with your name and address, to the SCHOLARSHIP COMMITTEE, 205 Parnell St., Dublin.

(THERE IS NO LIMIT TO THE NUMBER OF INDIVIDUAL ENTRIES, PROVIDED EACH IS ON THE OFFICIAL ENTRY FORM.)

3. By return of post you will receive an official entry form, on which your child (providing he or she is under 14 years of age) is invited to write a simple Essay, not exceeding 500 words, upon the subject: "THE IMPORTANCE AND VALUE OF FRESH FRUIT JAM AS A DAILY ARTICLE OF FOOD."

4. This Essay, when completed, is to be sent to the Scholarship Committee in Dublin, who will award three Cash Prizes of £10, £5 and £2, respectively, for the three best Essays sent in from EVERY COUNTY IN THE IRISH FREE STATE, and, in addition, three Special Prizes of £10, £5 and £2 for the best Essays in Irish.

How to Win a Scholarship

There are Twenty-six Counties in the Irish Free State, and three prizes are offered in each County, so that there are 78 Cash Prizes in all. Your child stands an excellent chance of winning one of these valuable prizes.

In addition to the cash prizes, these 78 Winners (that is, three from each and every County in the Irish Free State) will be invited to Dublin, accompanied by Teacher or Parent, at the entire expense of the promoters of this scheme (that is to say, third class return rail fare and entertainment whilst in Dublin). They will be personally conducted round the Jam Factory, and receive a most careful and instructive insight into the whole process of modern Jam Manufacture.

These seventy-eight Competitors, upon return to their home towns, will proceed to compete in a final competition, writing an Essay, limited to a thousand words, on and it is upon the result of this second set of Essays that the Winners of the three Grand Scholarships, value £250, £100, and £50, respectively, will be chosen.

"MY VISIT TO A MODERN JAM MANUFACTORY,"

Morris and Minerva Cars.

¶ G. A. Brittain, Ltd., believe the success of their business depends upon service as much as upon the sale of cars—their business is growing rapidly, and in order to give better service than ever

they have acquired a two-acre site, with a frontage of one-sixth of a mile, at Portobello Bridge, Rathmines. Plans for this Super Service Station are now ready for the Builders.

ESSEX the CHALLENGER

FROM £255 PLUS FREIGHT

A N owner writes: "I have for the past three years been the proud possessor of an Essex. The new Challenger model is amazing, the tremendous reserve of power, the quick acceleration, the smooth running of the engine, and the car in general are a revelation. One feels that thanks to Essex, luxury travel is no longer the possession only of millionaires, but well within the reach of the average man. I am delighted with my purchase, and feel I have never spent my money to better advantage."

"MRS. LAWLOR," NAS NA RIOG HOTEL, NAAS, CO. KILDARE,

Official Caterer to Irish International Grand Prix, Phoenix Park, 12th and 13th July; also Caterer to the Royal Dublin Society's Horse Show, Ballsbridge; Kildare Hunt Club; Maynooth and Clongowes Wood Colleges; Punchestown, Mullingar, Naas and Dundalk Race Meetings; Irish Kennel Club; Thurles, Kildare, Tipperary, Westmeath and Longford Hunt Balls, etc., etc.

WHO'S WHO IN THE GRAND PRIX.

DRIVERS WHO TAKE PART IN TO-DAY'S BIG RACE.

Mr. A. C. Bertelli, Feltam, Middlesex, who is driving an Aston Martin standard international sports model of 1,488 c.c., unsupercharged, is managing director of the Aston Martin Motors, Ltd. Last year he drove in the Grand Prix d'Endurance at Le Mans, and was also one of the drivers of the same car which competed in the Junior Car Club's Double Twelve-Hour event on May the 11th and 12th, finishing fifth. He will drive the same car at the Phœnix Park. His spare driver is Mr. W. J. Bezzant.

Mr. A. C. Bertelli.

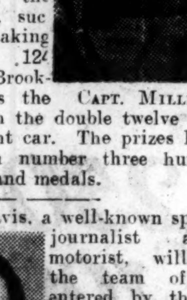
Mr. J. Gordon Burney, of Dublin, who has gained considerable renown as a motor cyclist, will drive a standard-hyper-supercharged Lea-Francis car, just under 1,500 c.c. He has been a familiar figure in motor cycle trials in Phœnix Park, over which course he won several championships, his best average being sixty m.p.h.

Mr. J. G. Burney.

Mr. Jack Boal, Ballymena, will drive a Riley car entered by Mr. Leslie Porter, managing director of Leslie Porter, Ltd., one of the oldest motor engineering firms in Belfast, who was one of the unsuccessful competitors in the Ulster Trophy Race last August.

Mr. Jack Boal.

Captain A. G. Miller, St. James's place, S.W., who has entered a Lombard car, which will be driven by Captain Miller, is well known in the motoring world and before the war he was associated with the Benz Company and the Wolseley Motors, and, while connected with the latter company, succeeded in breaking no less than 124 records at Brooklands. He was the first to establish the double twelve hours' record on a light car. The prizes he has won since then number three hundred, including cups and medals.

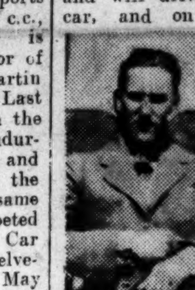


Capt. Miller.

Mr. S. H. Davis, a well-known sporting journalist and motorist, will lead the team of cars entered by the Lea Francis Company on the first day, and will pilot a Bentley in the race for big cars on Saturday. He was the conjoint winner with Woolf Barnato in the Le Mans Rudge-Whitworth Cup Race. The Brooklands race was described as the finest English race in which a dramatic struggle between himself and Ramponi—in an Alfa Romeo—took place. He lost the fight with Ramponi by only 200 yards in each hour.

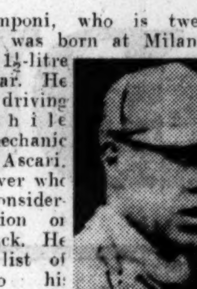
Mr. S. Davis.

Mr. Basil Eyston, Burcot Cottage, Bierton, Aylesbury, Bucks, has entered, and will drive himself to-day, a Riley car, and on to-morrow a 2-3 litre, super-charged Bugatti. He will be assisted in the first event by Mr. V. Gillow, a Riley expert, who won the Gold Cup at Brooklands on a Riley car in 1927. In the Bugatti he will have as assistant his brother, Mr. G. E. T. Eyston, another very well-known driver, who will take the wheel with him. The latter holds the One-and-a-Half Litre World's Hour record, with a Bugatti, at 116 m.p.h. Last year he won the Free-For-All Grand Prix at Montlery (the Paris track), and has scored many firsts at Brooklands, winning this year the Gold Plate there on Easter Monday on a 2-3 litre Bugatti at 124 m.p.h. On the first day he will be one of the Riley team. Both brothers drove together and came second to Captain Malcolm Campbell's Delage, in the last 200 miles race at Brooklands.



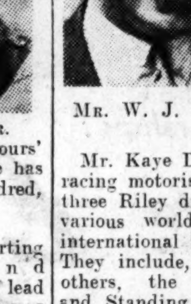
Mr. Basil Eyston.

Signor Ramponi, who is twenty-six years of age, was born at Milan. He will drive a 1½-litre Alfa Romeo car. He gained his driving experience while acting as mechanic to the late Ascari, an Italian driver who achieved considerable distinction on the racing track. He has a long list of successes to his credit, his most recent achievement being the winning of the Double Twelve-Hour Race at Brooklands. He also holds the records for the 1,000 miles race in Italy in 1928 and 1929, having on both occasions as co-driver Compari. He drove throughout the Double Twelve-Hour Race.



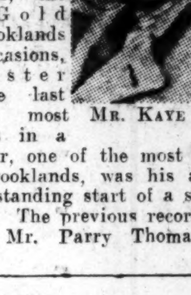
Signor Ramponi.

Mr. W. J. Shaw, of Belfast, is a member of the Lea-Francis team. He is a well-known performer, and in the Double Twelve-Hour Race at Brooklands he won seventh place.



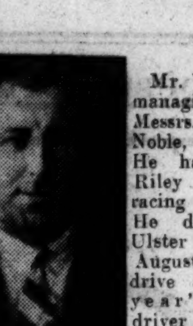
Mr. W. J. Shaw.

Mr. Kaye Don, another famous British racing motorist, will captain the team of three Riley drivers. He is the holder of various world's and international records. They include, among others, the Flying and Standing Brooklands Track records, the Gold Star (two years in succession), this year's Gold Vase at Brooklands, the President's Gold Plate at Brooklands on two occasions, and the Ulster Trophy Race last August. His most recent success in a Sunbeam Tiger, one of the most coveted records at Brooklands, was his achievement from a standing start of a speed of 100.77 m.p.h. The previous record, held by the late Mr. Parry Thomas, was 98.67 m.p.h.



Mr. Kaye Don.

Mr. W. P. Noble is managing director of Messrs. John R. Noble, Ltd., Belfast. He has entered a Riley car. Motor-racing is his hobby. He drove in the Ulster T.T. Race last August, and will drive again in this year's race. His driver is Mr. Burnside.

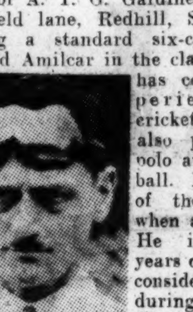


Mr. W. P. Noble.

Mr. Gunnar Poppe, who will drive an Austin, is well known in Rugby circles. He made a London-Edinburgh and back run in twenty hours fifty-six minutes (786 miles) last year. This year he has had successes at Southport, Shelsley, Welsh and Pendine. He is twenty-eight years of age, and a M.A. (Cantab).

Mr. G. Poppe.

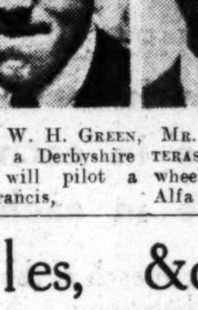
Major A. T. G. Gardiner, Iden Lodge, Linkfield lane, Redhill, Surrey, who is driving a standard six-cylinder supercharged Amilcar in the class up to 1,100, has considerable experience as a cricketer, and has also played hockey, polo and Rugby football. He was captain of the first fifteen when at Uppingham. He is thirty-nine years of age, and saw considerable service during the European War, joining up as second lieutenant in September, 1914, and retired from the service, through wounds, in 1922. His first experience of racing was in an Austin car at Brooklands in 1926, and in 1928 he won first prize in the New Cycle Car's Club meeting at Brooklands, and third in the Novices' Handicap Six-Hour Race. In the Le Touquet speed trials of the same year he was first in the 1,100 c.c. racing class, 900 metres; first in the three kilometres, and first in the hill-climbing event.

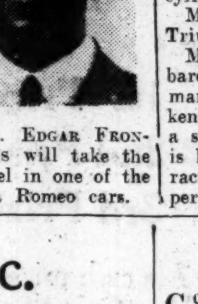


Major Gardiner.

Mr. A. Frazer Nash, an Englishman, who is one of the drivers of a supercharged Austin Sports Model, is the winner of the first 200-mile race in 1,100 c.c. class, and holds the Brooklands Test Hill record, both for the 1,100 c.c. and the unlimited classes.

Mr. F. Nash.





Mr. W. H. Green, who is a Derbyshire man, will pilot a Lea Francis. Mr. Edgar Fronteras will take the wheel in one of the Alfa Romeo cars.

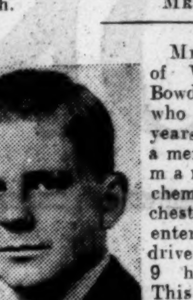
Boris Ivanoskwy, who is driving an Alfa Romeo, is an old motor-cyclist, and up to 1914 was well known as a competitor in several countries. He served as a lieutenant in the Russian Imperial Guards. In 1924 he commenced car-racing, and since then he has won a number of events over several courses in France. He was the winner in last year's Belgian Grand Prix, and in the Boillot, at Boulogne.

Boris Ivanoskwy.

Mr. William Sullivan, motor mechanic, aged nineteen years, is a County Down man. He has considerable experience of motor cycle competitions, and will drive a super-charged Austin Seven. He was the winner in the private cars handicap class at Ballybannion hill-climb, County Down, on the 1st of last month.

Mr. W. Sullivan.

Mr. C. S. Woolley, of Westhorpe, Bowden, Cheshire, who is twenty-four years of age, is a member of a firm of manufacturing chemists in Manchester. He has entered, and will drive himself, a 9 h.p. Riley car. This is the first international race in which he has driven.



Mr. C. S. Woolley.

Mr. C. R. Whitcroft, Dalary, Clive road, Esher, Surrey, who will pilot a Riley in the class up to 1,100 c.c., has driven intermittently in trials for various Riley cars, but this is his first racing season. He is an ex-Naval officer, and will drive an ordinary sports car, and has already one win to his credit in the Whit Monday meeting at Brooklands.

Mr. Whitcroft.

OTHER DRIVERS.

Mr. Jack Dunfee, London, will take part in the two events. To-day he will pilot a Riley and to-morrow a Bentley. He is aged 27, and is in business as a printer and paper-maker; he is a keen horseman and follower of hounds. He holds several international records on the two-litre super-charged Sunbeam. He won the Brooklands Gold Cup in 1928 on an eight-cylinder Ballot; he was second in Le Mans 24-Hour Race this year in a six-cylinder Bentley.

Mr. Victor E. Horsman will drive a Triumph in the 500 c.c. Class.

Mr. D. Vincent Jackson, who has barely attained his majority, is an Irishman, and resides in Newtownmountkennedy, County Wicklow. He will pilot a specially-designed Austin Seven. This is his first attempt at serious motor car racing, but he has had several years' experience as a motor-cyclist.

"THE TWELFTH"

THE ULSTER FESTIVAL.

PAGEANTRY AND POLITICS.

(By "W.J.K.")

THERE is an old story of an English motorist in Belfast, who was told in a garage that he could not have his car repaired on the morrow because it would be "the Twelfth." In reply to his query, "Why not? What is the Twelfth?" the horrified mechanic exclaimed, "Oh, man, where were ye brought up? Go home and read your Bible."

To Ulstermen the Twelfth of July is the day of days. The week in which it comes is sanctified by the reflected glory. During the octave the mill chimneys give forth no smoke, the hammering ceases in the shipyards; the potent call of money-making industry is overborne. Men and women turn from their year-long labours to celebrate the auspicious anniversary in traditional fashion. The whitewash brush has been everywhere at work for weeks past, and every self-respecting cottage and byre now glistens white. In the towns and villages there are marvellous arches across the streets, sometimes rising to a giddy height (are there not expert ship-riggers in Belfast?), decorated with orange lilies, flowers of similar hue, portraits and mottoes. Courtesy enjoins that you take off your hat as you pass beneath these admired structures. They have sometimes cost much to erect, and subscriptions for them have been "lifted" from door to door.

A SUMMER FESTIVAL.

Cold-blooded scholars tell us that our Christmas festivities are derived from ancient rites of the winter solstice. Probably a case could also be made out for the July celebrations being connected with nature ceremonies, midsummer observances, vestigial traces of the great God Pan. In any case, the Boyne anniversary allows a hard-working populace to disport itself in the supreme days of the summer season. He must be an acrid critic who would grudge to this people their interval of leisure and holiday-making in the sultry days of July. Perhaps, after all, King Billy is only the ostensible legendary saint whose cult serves to secure this epoch of relaxation. Now in all the little country towns pale-faced, tense-looking visitors from the bigger centres may be seen strolling about enjoying an unwonted leisure. It is a time when relations in the country are set store by, and the hospitality of cottage and farm-house is taxed to the utmost.

A PROVINCE ON A PICNIC.

The great day is ushered in by drums beating salutes from midnight. Before the evening comes one has a new appreciation of Omar's line—

Oh, the brave music of a distant drum!

At an early hour the lodge-rooms are thronged and the banners unfurled, and the "dues" collected, and the drums tuned up. If the demonstration is at a distance, a start has to be made betimes. Envied are the small boys who are allotted a ribbon from the bearer to hold. An air of severe responsibility denotes the functionaries who are to carry the standard-poles of the banners. This is a post of honour, but the drummers hold theirs by right of the gifts bestowed on them by nature.

The flute-player is a minor, but important member of the hierarchy of the procession. Most imposing of all is the drum-major, who seems to regulate all, twirling proudly his decorated staff. The [illegible] in their summer finery set out with the marching, regalia-covered men. The joint procession, when all the lodges combine, and the long arrays of brilliant silk banners wave in the wind, and the drummers in emulation surpass themselves, is the climax of the pageantry. Then on the field itself it is not the speechifying that matters most, but the feasting and the fun and the greetings and the sweethearting and all the festal freedom. In Ulster there is scarce a town by river or seashore but "is emptied of its folk this pious morn."

BIGOTRY?

Outsiders deplore the keeping of the anniversary. They fancy that it means animosity and bigotry. The natives know better. It is a time of friendliness. Very rare—almost unknown—is an angry clash. In general the Roman Catholic folk stand in their doorways to see their neighbours marching. They subscribe to erect the arches across the roads. A Roman Catholic lady from Southern Ireland is a popular person in a certain Ulster village. The Orangemen there are grieved and puzzled because she declined to help them to decorate their village for the Twelfth. I am sure that our Roman Catholic neighbours would be saddened if the Twelfth were kept no more. You have only to read the delightful books of Mr. Louis J. Walsh, D.J., to learn how all parties enjoy the time-honoured ceremonialism there. He tells of the Orangemen whose band instruments were locked up in the church by a new Presbyterian minister, who disapproved of such displays. Yet on the Twelfth they turned out, playing "Derry's Walls" as of yore. Their friends of the Ancient Order of Hibernians sympathised so much with them that they lent their band equipment for the day. The picture of John Redmond on the Hibernian drum had only to be temporarily covered up with Orange lilies.

The Ulster sardonic sense of humour keeps things right. Ulster seems to be the last resort of Irish humour. While the Abbey Theatre is heavy with tragic drama, the Ulster Players have Orangemen and National Leaguers rocking together, laughing at the fun of their picturesque rivalries. I have been in a Roman Catholic hall where parish priest, Presbyterian minister, and rector of the parish, with their flocks, keenly enjoyed the acting by a Roman Catholic company of Mr. Walsh's gay and yet pungent comedy, "The Pope at Killybuck." In the last scene the actors paraded as an Orange band (drummer correct in shirt-sleeves) played the "Boyne Water."

ULSTER ANOMALIES.

It is all contrary to logic, but logic does not rule in Irish politics. Mr. Lynn Doyle, in "An Ulster Childhood," tries to explain. He maintains, wisely, that none but an Ulsterman can fairly criticise Ulstermen. "The foreigner, looking at the surface of things, judges both sides too hardly." About festival times there was in his native place in County Down a good deal of tall talk. "I once saw blood spilt at the Twelfth of July, but it was over a matter of precedence between two Orange Lodges, when in the fraternal conflict John Simson, a noted drummer, was grievously smitten with a flute." We possess in the North," writes Lynn Doyle, "one great corrective of bitterness—that dry sense of humour that is so often infused with self-criticism. We are conscious of our bitterness and see the ridiculous side of it now and then. In a strange way it is a bond of union between the two parties. I have heard a knot of Ulstermen of both sides, thrown together at an election or a law-suit outside their native province, beguile a whole evening with apt anecdotes of their mutual feud; and the shrewdest knocks were often self-inflicted."

Modern life in Ulster is drab enough. It would be a melancholy place if we had not our Twelfth, with its drums and flags and colours and holiday jollifications and brief emancipation from toil—aye, and the rest of its sturdy antagonism to all that threatens our principles.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY.

Dolly's Brae.

It is exactly eighty years since the terrible affray, popularly called "The Battle of Dolly's Brae," which has inspired one of the most famous of Orange songs, and has played no small part in subsequent Ulster history. The affair took place at Magheramayo, in County Down, on July 12th, 1849, and led to literary, as well as political, incidents. In Ulster it has always been a moot point whether the Twelfth would still be celebrated with as much semi-military display if there had been no battle of Dolly's Brae; but the ifs of history are so many that volumes have been written about them without any fruitful conclusions being reached.

The Quarterly's Attack.

The battle occurred during the Lord Lieutenancy of George Villiers, fourth Earl of Clarendon, and it gave John Wilson Croker the opportunity of making one of the fiercest attacks on the Whigs ever delivered by the famous Quarterly Review. Clarendon's career began in the old Commission of Customs in Dublin before Catholic Emancipation. He was a frequenter of Lady Morgan's salon in Kildare street, and, through Richard Lalor Shiel and other leaders of the Emancipation agitation, was an intermediary with the Government in the movement for the passing of the Act of 1829. He became Lord Lieutenant about the time of O'Connell's death, and had to meet the fury of the tempests that blew so strongly over the great Famine, Young Ireland, Dolly's Brae and the Tenant League. John Mitchel's powerful invective against him is still read with interest, but few remember now that as defendant he won a case in court against Birch, the informer, by whom he was blackmailed.

As a result of the Dolly's Brae affair, several magistrates were dismissed the Commission of the Peace, and an official sworn inquiry was held at Castlewellan. In the meantime John Wilson Croker, who had been M.P. for Downpatrick for a time, had been collecting data. From old friends in County Down he got the most detailed accounts of the whole circumstances, and with these and his knowledge of the locality and specially prepared illustrations he wrote a terrific denunciation of Clarendon that filled ninety pages of the Quarterly. Clarendon was furious, and small wonder; for a Dublin reprint of Croker's article had a frontispiece of the "battle," which made someone say that there must have been more cavalry in action at Dolly's Brae than at Waterloo!

Road-House Rules.

Irish hotels and resting-houses are notorious for the originality of their rules regarding the admission of visitors. Perhaps I should say "were notorious," since great strides have been made in recent years towards the attainment of modern excellence, necessitating the scrapping of these laughable old signs which delight present-day cynics. I doubt, though, if any Irish hotel could equal the far-sightedness which characterised the rules posted by the Old Madison Cottage, a famous road-house in New York. A recent issue of the Saturday Evening Post prints this amusing combination of rules:—

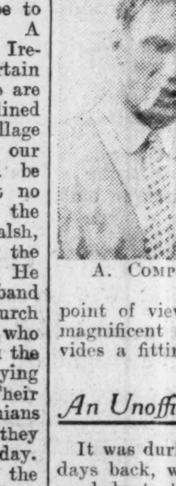
Sixpence with supper.
No more than five to sleep in one bed.
No boots to be worn in bed.
Organ-grinders to sleep in the wash-house.
No dogs allowed upstairs.
No beer allowed in the kitchen.
No razor-grinders or tinkers taken in."

The Open Championship.

I met my friend, Mr. W. Fitzsimons, Portmarnock's genial captain, last night; and he was full of enthusiasm concerning the remarkable result of the Irish Open Championship. A triple tie in such an event, he told me, is unique in British golf. Abe Mitchell, Archie Compston and Len Holland will be required to-day to play off the extraordinary tie, and I am sure that the resources of the Portmarnock links will be taxed to the utmost to accommodate the crowd of spectators that will gather there this morning. From every point of view, the "Open" has been a magnificent success, and its climax provides a fitting finish to the event.



A. COMPSTON.

An Unofficial Motor Drive.

It was during the respiratory hour some days back, writes a correspondent. Our good host, the tavern keeper, observing the rather distraught appearance of more than one of my companions, had suggested a little air, and within a few minutes we were bowling along by the Liffey in his luxurious saloon car. And so to the Phœnix Park. Now we were on the famous motor racecourse, and here, thanks to disturbing thoughts of Grand Prix and derring-do, there descended on me very positively a mania for speed, so that I waxed impatient at the slightest show of caution at the wheel. But presently, it seemed, something of my mad craze was communicated to the driver. With the speedometer registering 30, we whizzed round one of those notorious corners and tore along the straight, while the hand of the speedometer crept on and on—40—50—60—and still on, until—"Seventy miles an hour!" I cried: "Bravo, my friend," and as a tribute to the excellent qualities of the car, I added that it ran so smoothly that one scarcely felt it eat up the miles.

Our host flushed, I thought, with delight. But if I had read his emotion aright his next action was passing strange. He looked at his watch, and, without any more ado, redder of face than ever, he turned for home, deigning not to consult our wishes. Back at the tavern he assisted me—a little roughly, I noted—out of his car. Then the truth dawned on me. The car was a French model: its speedometer registered, not miles, but kilometres!

A Practical Definition.

This little story hails from Limerick. A schoolmistress was instructing a mixed preparatory class in the meanings of common words, and took some pains in explaining to them what was meant by the word "Nothing." After giving several examples to illustrate her remarks, she said: "Now, I want you to think over what I have been saying, and then give me, in your own words, what the term 'Nothing' means to you." There was silence for a time; then a little fellow at the bottom of the class held up his hand. "Well, Patrick," asked the schoolmistress, "what is it?" "Please, Miss," was the reply, "'tis what a County Limerick farmer would give ye for houldin' his horse!"

Tilden's Failure.

The recent defeat of W. T. Tilden in the semi-final of the Lawn Tennis Championships at Wimbledon is another proof that no man can win or hold supremacy in such a strenuous game after he has passed the middle thirties. Tilden probably knows more about tennis than any man living; but he was ten years older than Cochet and consequently unable to emulate the superior speed of the Frenchman. It has been remarked that Tilden did not bring his famous "cannon ball" service into action during this match. Even if he had done so, the effort would have been so exhausting that his much nimbler opponent would have found it much easier to wear him out during the games when the American was receiving service. If it is true that Tilden proposes to retire and take up film work, then lawn tennis will have lost its most dramatic exponent. There was something fascinating and almost feline about his movements on the court; probably those who played against him experienced it, for at times they looked as helpless as a bird looks when it is held by the eye of a cat. He had also that supreme self-assurance characteristic of the American athlete; you felt at every stroke that there should have been thousands of lusty throats shouting "Attaboy" behind him. In the final contest between the two Frenchmen, Cochet seems to have thoroughly deserved the championship, but a game, after all, is only a game, and most tennis enthusiasts felt a little sorry when that pleasant sportsman, Jean Borotra, had to give way to his more seriously-minded fellow-countryman.

MR. W. T. TILDEN.

The Omnibus Centenary.

The old print depicting "De Tivoli's Patent Omnibus," which appeared in the picture page of the Irish Times, recently, has prompted a correspondent to send me a newspaper-cutting of the year 1860, which thus describes the merits of this remarkable vehicle.

"Whoever travels in an omnibus must experience the following nuisances:—1st, the frequent trampling upon one another's toes, tumbling upon each other's knees; 2nd, the disagreeable feeling at finding oneself packed into a huge, unsightly box, or cage-like machine, jolting along with eleven or twelve other strangers of all sizes and conditions, sitting upon each other's coat-tails, or buried under large volumes of crinolines, squeezing and poking each other's ribs, and breathing in each other's faces; 3rd, the discordance among the passengers with regard to keeping open or shut the windows or ventilators; 4th, the common occurrence of people who, finding themselves in close contact, are apt to mistake their neighbours' purses, pocket-books, handkerchiefs, etc., for their own; 5th, the distress felt on a rainy day at the advent of each new passenger, and particularly females with their ample garments, advancing, wet through, to the other end of the vehicle."

Nuisances Eliminated.

"All these nuisances," runs the paragraph, "are removed by dividing the omnibus into separate, well-ventilated compartments, as in De Tivoli's patent omnibus. The compartments are disposed in two rows, back to back, the passengers sitting alone each in one compartment, facing the pavement on their respective sides. A small window, with a shutter on each side, puts in communication the contiguous compartments, if agreeable to both parties to converse. Palmer's patent signal or bell puts each passenger in communication with the conductor. The doors may be open or shut by means of well-adapted self-acting springs."

Reading over the "nuisances" enumerated above, I cannot help thinking that most of us must have at one time or another experienced them in our modern and up-to-date vehicles of the same type. But, no, on second thoughts, I think we have progressed slightly. Delete the words "ample garments."

How Many Golf Clubs?

The remarkable interest that has been displayed during recent years in the big golf exhibitions, both amateur and professional, has one drawback—it is tending to slower play in everyday golf.

Many of the big golf "stars" carry, or rather their caddies do, an enormous number of clubs, so that there is always a club available for any emergency. In the big money or championship matches this cannot be criticisead, as one faulty stroke may have dire effects.

But in everyday golf a profusion of clubs leads to delay on the course. With the bag confined to half-a-dozen clubs an average club player usually need not waste much time in making his choice, but if the number is increased to a dozen or more, there is inevitable delay and sometimes chafing on the part of those following behind.

In every open championship contest many players are to be seen with a bag almost resembling a travelling trunk. Fortunately, some of the best exponents of the game are not extravagant in this direction. James Braid was the reverse of superstitious, and always carried thirteen clubs in defiance of tradition, sometimes taking unnecessary clubs to make up this number. Harry Vardon, too, at his best, confined himself to ten or eleven clubs.

Rubber Roads.

Noise is becoming such an important factor in city life that everything tending to lessen it must be welcomed. Experiments have developed a rubber paving block, and tests recently made with it in London prove that it practically eliminates noise and vibration. This is just as important to buildings as to the human ear.

A recent report from Singapore states that after five years rubber blocks that had been subjected to one-and-a-quarter millions of tons weight showed little signs of wear, while the ordinary roadway adjoining, which had been laid at the same time, had had to be repaired three times. In America, too, sections of the roads which are subject to heavy traffic have been laid with rubber blocks, and the results are said to be satisfactory.

With these rubber roads the initial cost is very high, but the cost of maintenance is reported to be low. Experts say that rubber makes better and more permanent roadways, because of the anti-abrasive and shock-absorbing qualities of the rubber blocks. Other advantages claimed for rubber roads are; that they are never dusty, need no tar-spraying, and, being non-absorbent, are very easily cleaned. The rubber blocks are laid upon a concrete base, and in some American instances were painted with bitumen before being fitted into place. With rubber roads, and less strident hooters on our motor cars, life in cities might become tolerable once more.

Idle Youths.

A correspondent writes:—In Belfast there are thousands of unemployed, and it is interesting to know how they spend their time. I was pondering over this question yesterday afternoon while strolling on the Antrim road.

I went down a street which brought me on to the "Grove," a great open space between Antrim road and the Shore road. It was teeming with young men who were indulging in all manner of sport. Cricket and football were the order of the day, and some were having thrilling races on bicycles. They appeared to be a cheerful crowd, especially a little bunch who were arguing in a corner. I went over to investigate and discovered that they were playing marbles! Not the marbles of children's dreams, but a scientific and exciting game. The way these exponents were able to "shoot" was a marvel, and they could "hit" an opponent for a good ten or twelve yards. I was commiserating with one of these young optimists, who gave me a few facts about the life of the unemployed. Before leaving me he remarked quite seriously: "It's not so bad being out of work when one has something to do."

People Who Are Asked the Way.

Human beings may be divided into two categories—those who are asked the way and those who are not. I belong to the former category, writes a correspondent, and I am asked the way in foreign places just as much as at home.

I arrived a few days ago in a little town not far from Bordeaux for the first time, and as soon as I went out I was asked where the post office was. The next day I was asked a question about the tram. I could reply to the first query, as my hotel was opposite to the post office, but not to the second. The same people who are asked the way also are asked the time; and here I am reminded of the amusing "Irish" answer to this:

"I'm sorry; I don't know; I'm a stranger in these parts myself!"

Has anyone noticed, by the way, that Dubliners nearly always reply to a question about the time: "It's about a quarter to eleven." "It's about twelve."

The Secret.

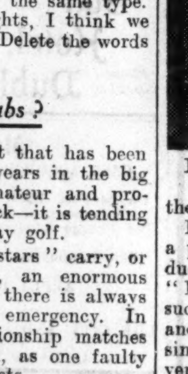
It has always been a grievance in the mind of Mrs. Farrell that her husband, Johnny, who works on the road, and has so many opportunities of picking up news from the passers-by, carries so little of it home with him, where it is so eagerly awaited. His wife, who is a charwoman, gets many a tit-bit of news from one or other of the various houses at which she works, and these she retails with great gusto to the silent Johnny, who so seldom has anything to tell in return.

Some time ago the peace of that neighbourhood was torn and shattered by a series of terrific explosions while blasting operations in connection with the widening of a bridge were carried out. The explosions occurred at irregular intervals and left one waiting breathlessly and uneasily for the next. The noisy day passed and unbroken silence reigned again, and Mrs. Farrell's employers asked about Johnny; "How did he like the blasting?" they wanted to know. Mrs. Farrell looked up from the brasses she was polishing; "What blastin?" she demanded, though her home was near by. "They were blasting all day yesterday," she was told, "and the road men were there."

Mrs. Farrell snorted indignantly. "Look at that now," she said, "an' Johnny never divulged a ha'porth."

Only Two from Ireland!

When the Malvern Theatre Festival opens on Monday, 19th August, with the first production in these islands of a new play by Bernard Shaw, it is said that only two people from Ireland will be present. At least, that is the report of Sir Barry Jackson, when he was asked about the booking for the festival. There were applications, he said, from every country in Europe, many from America, and some from the other continents; and of the countries making application for seats Ireland was easily the last with only two applications.



MR. G. B. SHAW.

It might have been thought that with a programme that includes the first production in English of "The Apple Cart," "Back to Methuselah," in full on three successive evenings, "Heartbreak House" and "Cæsar and Cleopatra" all in a single week, and with Malvern so convenient to Ireland in a holiday month, the applications from Ireland would have been second only to those of Great Britain. But Ireland last for a festival of the plays of one of her most brilliant sons! How is it to be accounted for?

The accounts of the new play, "The Apple Cart," which were received in London, after its production in Warsaw a few weeks ago, were not calculated to cause a rush to the booking offices of the Malvern Festival. It is said to be dull and long-winded, and so involved that little meaning emerges from its three acts. It would seem to be something like Mr. Wells's last book, the film scenario, entitled "A King Who Was a King." G.B.S. would seem to desire to show rulers that "this king business" can be made useful to mankind if the kings would only rule. After his eulogy of Signor Mussolini anything may be expected from a man who was everything—and is everything—but a democrat. Is G.B.S. unpopular in Dublin because of his arrogance?

Shakespeare Out-of-Doors.

Mr. Nugent Monck, who made many friends in Dublin years ago when he produced plays in the Abbey Theatre, and was seen here more lately as one of the judges in the Tailteann dramatic competitions, is conducting an elaborate enterprise at Norwich this week. He is director of the Maddermarket Theatre, where the Norwich Players have done noteworthy dramatic work. As part of a scheme to present all Shakespeare's plays in Norwich, they are giving a series of performances of "Henry VIII." as a pageant play, with a cast of 200 performers, including chorus and dancers. The Bishop of Norwich has lent the Palace Gardens for the pageant. Interior scenes are played on an Elizabethan stage set on one of the terraces of the garden. The play has been divided into two parts, the first ending with the trial of Queen Katherine and the second with the christening procession of Elizabeth.

In Dublin there have been garden performances from time to time of the plays generally recognised as suitable—"As You Like It," "Twelfth Night" and "A Midsummer Night's Dream"; but neither here nor elsewhere has "Henry VIII." been given, to my knowledge, in a pastoral setting. A Queen Katherine is ready here in Miss Elizabeth Young.

QUIDNUNC.

SALE OF PANTER COLLECTION.

SOME WONDERFUL OLD SILVER.

On Wednesday, July 17th, the Panter collection sale at Messrs. Sotheby's Galleries, London, will start with the disposal of the remainder of the medal and coin section.

Lots 162 to 205 are all Trinity College medals, of dates ranging from 1797 to about fifteen years ago; they represent awards for scholarship for the greater part, but there are a few University Boating Club challenge medals.

There are also medals belonging to many schools throughout Ireland.

Included with some humane and life-saving medals is this entry—"Large inscribed medal, recording the integrity of Mathew Whelan, car driver, in returning a sovereign."

An Order of St. Patrick Star and Badge are among the items.

A long list of military, regimental and police medals contains several Royal Irish Constabulary medals, and a silver snuff box is mentioned as having been presented to Farrier John Sadler in 1855 by the Phœnix Park Constabulary Troop. There is a 1917 gold trophy of the Royal Hibernian Military School.

The regimental medals are very numerous. Among them are a Papal States campaign medal (1860) and two medals of the 22nd Regiment, one of the year 1785; Sir H. Gough's Order of Merit of 1820, medals of the Royal Tyrone Regiment, the 88th Regiment (Connaught Rangers), and the South Devon Militia

The pictures to be sold are two drawings by Samuel F. Brocas—a view of Dublin, showing the old Houses of Parliament, and another view with an equestrian statue in the middle distance; a portrait by W. Hamilton, a portrait of Dr. Charles Lucas by Francis Wheatley, a portrait of John Philpot Curran by John Jackson, a portrait of James Caulfeild Earl of Charlemont, Commander of the Irish Volunteers, attributed to Hogarth, and a portrait of Peg Woffington as Polly Peachum, by Hogarth.

EARLY IRISH SILVER.

On Thursday, July 18th, the collection of early Irish silver will be offered for sale. It is representative of nearly every type, and, in particular, of the late seventeenth century and the first half of the eighteenth; the silversmiths of Cork, Limerick, Galway and Kinsale are represented.

The Kinsale Corporation punch ladle is of special interest. It is a fine ladle, with heavy, deep, circular bowl, and long, hollow handle of straight, tapering form, at right angles to the lip, and was made by William Wall, of Kinsale, in the early eighteenth century. The Kinsale Corporation plate, consisting of a bowl, mace, and this ladle, was sold in 1861, and it passed into several hands; the prices varied from 6s. 8d. to 5s. 1d. per ounce.

The Londonderry tankard is Queen Anne, and bears the arms of the city within a fine scroll cartouche; the sides are nearly cylindrical and without ornamentation. It rests on a heavy-moulded base, the cover domed and moulded, and with reeded edge and embryo volute thumb-piece; the scroll handle is of unusually pronounced type, with beaded ornament. It was made by Thomas Bolton, in Dublin, in 1709.

CORK AND DUBLIN WORK.

A magnificent piece is the William III. loving cup and cover. The body is supported by formal card-work decorations, and rests on a circular gadrooned base with moulded rim. It is engraved with a crest within a contemporary foliage cartouche; the two handles of scroll design are joined to the body by card-work, and are chased with a leaf suspending beaded ornament. The cover is domed and moulded, and has a gadroon edge and similar card-work pattern, radiating from a baluster knob deeply fluted. This was made by Thomas Bolton, Dublin, in 1694.

The specimens of Cork silver include a rare William and Mary salver, or tazza, which is a fine example of early Cork plate, with the ship and castle marks. It was made by William Burnett, Cork, 1690.

As well as the Kinsale ladle, there is, from the same district, a seventeenth century reliquary, in the form of a cross, made by Thomas Meade, who is mentioned in the Kinsale records as having baen admitted to the freedom of the borough in 1689.

Among the specimens of Dublin silver is a very rare one — a Charles II. ladle, with shallow circular bowl, very long, flat stem, and heart-shaped head, engraved on the back with armorials within a contemporary foliage cartouche. This is the work of Edward Swan, 1679.

An interesting work is a trowel, finely chased, with a medallion containing a group of classic figures—one standing pointing to the Royal Hibernian Academy buildings; the handle terminates in a royal coronet. With this trowel was laid the first stone of the Academy buildings. It was made by William Nowlan, 1828.

A Charles II. tobacco-box, engraved with the arms of Holt, of Aston, Birmingham, was made by Joseph Stoaker, 1663, a date when Irish secular plate was very seldom made. Nearly all existing examples of that date are ecclesiastical.

SALVERS AND CASTORS.

A beautiful Charles II. salver, made by Joseph Stoaker, 1673, bears the tulip decoration which is so difficult to obtain in seventeenth century Irish silver. The border is wide, and is embossed with large scrolling tulips and other flowers and formal leafage; the centre is slightly recessed and of plain type; it is supported on a plain splayed foot.

There is a set of three fine Queen Anne castors of unusual design, with narrow octagonal bodies of baluster form, engraved with a crest and decorated with mouldings, on fine moulded octagonal bases and covers domed and pierced with formal leaf motifs, and with vase-shaped finials. Castors of this period are rare in Irish silver. This set was made by Joseph Walker, Dublin, 1709.

Another set of rare castors is William III., made by David King, Dublin, 1701. The covers overlap the bodies about an inch and a half; the lower parts are bulbous in form, with no design, but a crest and bands of horizontal moulding.

An oval cake basket by Robert Calderwood, Dublin, 1755, shows an effective contrast in flat chasing on the centre portion and relief ornamentation on the rim.

Among the dish rings is one of the earliest type, very shallow, with the top and base rings of equal diameter, spool-shaped, and pierced and chased with four escutcheons, surrounded by flowers, foliage and scrolls, and wide undecorated bands at both edges. This was made in Dublin about 1750; the maker is unknown.

A Queen Anne snuffers tray of a type rare in Irish silver is elliptical in shape, with a crest in the centre, and finely moulded border and a cushion-shaped handle joined at the side; it rests on three short feet. It was made by David King, Dublin, 1707.

MINIATURES.

The collection of miniatures includes many by well-known Irish artists—Adam and Frederick Buck, Comerford, Horace and Nathaniel Hone, and S. T. Roch. Richard Brinsley Sheridan is the subject of several miniatures—one by George Engleheart. Among those by J. Comerford are Archibald Rowan Hamilton; Pamela, wife of Lord Edward Fitzgerald; Lady Louisa Connolly, and Maria Edgworth. A miniature of James first Earl of Charlemont was drawn by Horace Hone, at the request of the Royal Irish Academy, of which Lord Charlemont was one of the founders, to serve as a model for Mossop, the medallist, for the Conyngham Academy medal.

William Mossop, the medallist, is himself the subject of a miniature, and also of a wax medallion.

This section also contains a varied assortment of works of art—silhouettes, a cameo of the Duke of Wellington, a ring with a miniature of Edmund Burke, a riding whip presented to George IV. by the Kildare Jockey Club when he visited Ireland in 1821, and many other articles of interest.

On Friday, July 19th, a large number of wine and other bottle labels will be sold.

IN THE NORTHERN CAPITAL.

British Parliament and Safeguarding : Surprise in Belfast : City Council's Good Work : Many Schemes of Development : The New Art Gallery.

FROM A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Thursday.

THE thoughts of most people are turning towards the holidays, and there has been very little to record in Belfast during the past few days. The principal features of interest are the Orange demonstration, which takes place to-morrow, and the visit of the big racing yachts to Bangor for the Royal Ulster Club's regatta. Reports from the various seaside holiday resorts show that they are being well patronised, and amongst the visitors this season there is a larger proportion than usual of tourists from Canada and the United States. The large contingents of Orangemen who arrived from across the seas have been scattered all over the province, but they will meet together at Finaghy and other centres to honour the traditions of their order. It is expected that this year's demonstration will exceed in size and importance all former gatherings.

SAFEGUARDING DOOMED.

The decisive victory of the Labour Government in the British House of Commons on the question of safeguarding has created a good deal of surprise in Belfast. No one expected that the Government would be defeated, but such an overwhelming majority in favour of Mr. Macdonald's policy was not anticipated. All hopes of some form of protection for the linen industry are now at an end, and it will have to rely upon its own resources. The promises of assistance which were given cannot be realised, and the situation has been rendered even more depressing by disappointment. In these circumstances the Northern Government should look elsewhere for support for the industries of the province, and encourage any movement for their expansion. The arrival of hosts of tourists this week from America to participate in the Boyne celebrations should be utilised to impress upon them the importance of showing their sympathy in practical form. Many of our politicians will be airing their views to-morrow on subjects worn out with repetition, and stock shibboleths will be brought out once more for consideration.

These are inevitable on such a day, but a few words to the strangers within our gates regarding the advisability of purchasing Irish goods and spreading their fame and value when they go home would not be out of place. Irish linen is its own best recommendation where it is known and appreciated, but, like anything else, it requires to be continually brought under the notice of the purchasing public. A good opportunity is now provided in the Six Counties and, later on, at the World Conference of Orangemen in Glasgow for some effective propaganda work.

THE BELFAST COUNCIL.

During the past few years the Belfast Corporation has been blamed for its administration, perhaps, more than any other city in the British Isles, and some of the critics in their anxiety to find fault overlooked its many good qualities. No doubt, there were defects; but no public body is perfect, and the Belfast Council can claim to have done much to merit the confidence of the people. Its rates are comparatively low, and its gas and electricity undertakings are models of efficiency, supplies being provided at very moderate charges. Important schemes of development, costing hundreds of thousands of pounds, have been completed in the beautifying of the city and extending its borders. New roads, avenues and streets have been opened up, giving employment to hundreds of men who otherwise would be idle, and further extensive schemes are contemplated.

At a meeting of the Improvement Committee of the Corporation on Tuesday it was announced that new works involving an expenditure of £100,000 have been approved, while other projects are being considered, this enterprise being chiefly inspired by the necessity of providing work for the unemployed. In this respect the Corporation has ever been sympathetic. The Lord Mayor, in commenting upon the problem, said that the Corporation had put through its hands 418 schemes, of which 314 had been approved by the Ministry of Labour, while at present 100 schemes were being carried out.

TO RELIEVE DISTRESS.

It appears, further, that the Council is giving employment to 2,000 men in connection with these works. On an average some 1,600 men are now employed, compared with 420 men on similar work ten years ago, the wages paid amounting to between £600 and £700 per day, while £6,000 per month is spent on materials. This shows what is being done by the civic authorities to mitigate distress in the district, while at the same time the city is being improved in many ways. These matters were explained to a deputation of Northern members of Parliament who waited upon the Lord Mayor and the Chairman and Vice-Chairman of the Improvement Committee with the object of advocating relief works for the unemployed. Captain Dixon, the Chief Government Whip, paid a tribute to the Corporation for what it had already done in that respect, but urged that still more might be done, as he was aware that distress existed among those who were only too willing to work, but could not find it.

The Corporation, however, requires no spur to stimulate it in that direction. Its record is eloquent of sympathetic consideration for the workless, and it may safely be left to carry out its programme to the fullest extent. Proposals similar to those put forward by the Socialist Administration at Westminster might be advocated by the parliamentary deputation when the Northern House of Commons meets again next November. There are harbours to be improved, roads to be made, trees to be planted, and other national schemes waiting to be put into operation, as recommended long ago by the Committee who inquired into the natural and industrial resources of the province. The report of that body should be taken down from the shelf, dusted, and considered afresh in the light of the existing circumstances.

THE NEW ART GALLERY.

The new Museum and Art Gallery, which was informally opened in Belfast yesterday, should add considerably to the attractions of the city. It is a handsome building, picturesquely situated in the Botanic Gardens at Stranmillis, and its halls and corridors are lofty, airy and spacious. The formal ceremony will come later. In the past the North had the reputation of being a place where industry smothered art, and the more beautiful things of life were neglected, but in recent times the æsthetic side has been developed, and the people now take a deeper interest in music, painting, literature and culture generally. The new galleries afford many a fascinating glimpse into the past, some of the specimens in the natural history section being of great historic value. There is even a mummy on view, with face, hand and foot exposed—a grim relic of a forgotten age. Several exhibits of local interest include the tunic worn by Henry Joy McCracken at the Battle of Antrim, together with his sword, and there are other specimens relating to the Irish Volunteer movement of the 1798 period. McCracken was publicly hanged in High street, Belfast, a month after the battle.

The collection of pictures is not very extensive, and some critics say that quite a number of them are of no particular value, but the Lavery Room, in which the portraits of distinguished men painted by the gifted artist adorn the walls, is certain to give pleasure to the visitor. A strong sense of humour—perverted, some people think—must have influenced those responsible for sandwiching Mr. Joseph Devlin, M.P., the Nationalist leader, between two prominent Orangemen, Sir Edward Archdale and Sir Joseph Davison, the brilliant regalia worn by them contrasting oddly with the Free State colours artistically portrayed in the background of Mr. Devlin's portrait. This harmonious arrangement has caused a good deal of amusement in the city, and no one enjoys it more than the three gentlemen concerned.

NORTHERN ENTERPRISE.

The intimation that the great Belfast firm of tobacco manufacturers, Messrs. Gallaher's, Ltd., has decided to establish a big factory in Dublin has given a shock to some of the politicians who look with disfavour on anything in the Free State. The idea is to recover the southern trade which, it is said, declined since the border was set up, and it is gratifying to find that the enterprise of the firm down south will in no way interfere with employment in the Belfast factory.

A director of Messrs. Gallaher, in an interview, said that the new factory will be built on the most modern lines, and will be fully equipped with the latest machinery capable of supplying tobacco, cigarettes, and snuff of the same high quality and volume as that sent out prior to the division of Ireland into two States. It is expected that at least three hundred hands will be engaged, and that the factory will be in full working order within a year. This new venture will, no doubt, be welcomed in the Free State.

A ROMANTIC FIGURE.

Dr. Alexander Irvine, an Antrim man who has spent most of his life in America, is at present on a visit to what he describes as his "native tribe." He is the author of "My Lady of the Chimney Corner," in which the story of his early days is vividly told, and has been in turn a soldier, traveller, preacher, and a Professor of Yale University, where he occupied the chair in literature. Since his arrival some time ago he has been giving the community the benefit of his advice in municipal administration, temperance and other questions of public interest.

Dr. Irvine is an eloquent and convincing speaker, and his romantic history from newsboy to university professor makes a strong appeal to his hearers. He is very decided about the value of prohibition, but admits that in America the "most conservative party who were entrusted with the carrying out of the prohibition laws are the largest drinkers in the country to-day." The men who want drink can still have it, he says, even if they have to manufacture it themselves, and only time and vigilance can change that position. Yet the saloons have been closed and much of the money formerly spent on drink now goes in luxuries and comforts for the home.

THE ROYAL ULSTER REGATTA.

The annual two-days' regatta under the auspices of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club will be commenced at Bangor to-morrow, and, granted decent sailing weather, good racing should be witnessed. The big class will be represented by Shamrock, Cambria, Lulworth and White Heather II., and they will be sent off at eleven o'clock over a forty-seven-mile course, for a cup presented by the Borough of Bangor. Events are also provided for yachts from 13 to 50 tons T.M.—for which there is an entry of six—and for all the one-design classes on Belfast Lough, together with several handicap races. There are fifteen events on the programme, but for several no entries were received.

The greatest interest is being taken in the fixture, in view of the challenge for the America Cup issued by the Royal Ulster Club on behalf of Sir Thomas Lipton, who is a great favourite in northern yachting circles.

QUESTIONS IN THE DAIL.

PETROL STORAGE WITHOUT A LICENCE.

Yesterday in Dail Eireann,

Answering Mr. COONEY (F.F., Dublin, N.), Mr. FITZGERALD-KENNEY, Minister for Justice, said that under the Regulations made in July, 1907, petrol for use in light locomotives and not for sale, might be kept without a licence in quantities not exceeding sixty gallons. In other cases a licence was required under the Petroleum Acts, 1871 and 1879.

DROGHEDA MEAT FACTORY.

Replying to Mr. AIKEN (F.F., Louth), Mr. McGILLIGAN, Minister for Industry and Commerce, said that the failure of the Drogheda Meat Factory was due mainly to uneconomic buying in the home market, to high oncosts in the factory, and to the inability of the selling organisation in Great Britain to obtain prices for the factory product equivalent to its quality.

RAILWAY DISPUTE SEQUEL.

Answering Mr. P. S. DOYLE (Govt., Dublin, S.), Mr. McGILLIGAN said that he had, at the moment, no information as to the intentions of the Great Southern Railways Co. regarding the proposed expenditure of £100,000 as part of the terms of settlement by arbitration of the recent dispute with their shopmen.

Mr. DOYLE asked if the Minister would make inquiries into the matter.

Mr. McGILLIGAN said that inquiries had been made. He supposed that the matter was under consideration by the Board.

CHILDREN'S PLAYGROUNDS.

Answering Mr. COONEY, Mr. MULCAHY, Minister for Local Government and Public Health, said that he had been in communication with the Commissioners on the question of getting the parks or children's playgrounds in the Croydon Park and Marino districts of Dublin opened. He understood that contracts had been entered into for the erection of pavilions. As soon as these were completed and the grass surfaces sufficiently matured the grounds would be opened.

RECENT DUBLIN FIRE.

Further replying to Mr. Cooney, Mr. MULCAHY said that he understood from the City Commissioners that an abundant supply of water was available from hydrants in Mountjoy street and Constitution Hill on the occasion of the fire in the Irish Omnibus Company's garage, Dominick street, on June 28th. It appeared, however, that a hydrant in Dominick street did not furnish an equal pressure. In the present year £7,500 had been provided in the city estimates for replacing old mains, and Dominick street was on the schedule for relaying.

THE 1924 INDEMNITY ACT.

Answering Mr. Carty (F.F., Leitrim-Sligo), Mr. McGILLIGAN said that the total amount paid by way of compensation under the Indemnity Act, 1924, was £80,064. These payments covered about 2,900 claims. He would not give names, addresses and occupations of the persons concerned.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.

VERDICT OF ACQUITTAL.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE O'BYRNE AND A JURY)

The trial was concluded of the case in which Francis Donnellan, a farmer, was indicted for having on February 23rd last at Kilbecanty, Co. Galway, fired at Henry Niland on his way home to Gort, with intent to murder him; there were also counts charging him with firing with intent to do grievous bodily harm, and with posting threatening notices.

PEACE COMMISSIONER'S EVIDENCE.

Edward Preston, who had attended as Peace Commissioner at the barracks when the accused man was questioned before the Superintendent and Inspector of the Civic Guard, replying to the Judge, described what took place on the occasion. Donnellan was asked to write down a sentence and was duly warned. The accused took the paper and said that he was not a good hand at the "block letters" that he was asked to use, but he wrote portion at least of what he was suggested.

To Mr. Sherry—I remember Donnellan saying that he was a bad hand at using "capital" or "block" letters. The Superintendent might have said that the accused might "go on and finish the writing."

Was the accused in any way unwilling, flustered or confused?—No.

Detective-Officer John Sheehan, who had been investigating the case, produced a coat which he found in the house of the accused, and which on the shoulder was marked in a peculiar way as if from the butt of a gun. He questioned Donnellan, who made and signed a statement in which he described his movements on the 23rd February. The coat that he had taken was the one worn by the accused on that date.

To Mr. Sherry—The accused displayed no hesitation in answering any questions put to him.

Captain Quirk, in reply to Mr. Lavery, said that he had made a special study of the subject of handwriting, and was an expert. The two alleged threatening notices in the present case were submitted to him and he had compared them with the admitted writing of the accused and with the paper found in Donnellan's house. In his opinion the words on the "notices" were in the handwriting of the accused.

This closed the case for the prosecution.

Mr. Sherry asked for a direction on the ground that there was no evidence on which the indictment could be sustained.

Mr. Justice O'Byrne said that he would allow the case to go to the jury.

ACCUSED MAN'S EVIDENCE.

The accused was examined by Mr. Sherry, and described the circumstances connected with the local strike, which took place about the wood-cutting. He gave in detail an account of his movements on the night of the shooting and denied that he had had anything to do with it. He also denied having had anything to do with the writing or the posting of the threatening notices.

Evidence was given with a view to establishing an alibi on behalf of the accused.

After the absence of half-an-hour the jury (at seven o'clock) returned a verdict of "not guilty" on the four counts, and the prisoner was discharged.

The jury added to their verdict an expression of approval of the conduct of the Guards and of Inspector Curran, the officer in charge of the Court during the strenuous and long sittings of the Court. They added: "The policing of the Court was most efficiently and courteously performed by Inspector Curran and the men under him."

His lordship said that he thoroughly agreed with the tribute of the jury.

This closed the sittings.

Mr. J. Meghen, Commissioner, yesterday stated at Howth Urban Council meeting that sanction had been received for the Council to proceed with the work contemplated on a sewage scheme at Caraghbrack and Sutton at a cost of £3,300 7s. 9d.

YESTERDAY IN DAIL EIREANN.

CROWDED LAST DAY OF SESSION.

CENSORSHIP BILL PASSED AS AMENDED BY SENATE.

TRAFFIC CONTROL MEASURE AFTER THE SUMMER RECESS.

Immediately after questions in Dail Eireann yesterday, President Cosgrave took the precaution of moving that, if necessary, the House should sit all night, and the motion was carried by 65 votes to 49. It proved, however, to have been unnecessary; for the business was disposed of at such speed that the House actually rose earlier than usual.

Although the Dail has formally adjourned until October 23rd, a special sitting will be held on Wednesday, 31st July, to consider Senate amendments, the Second Chamber not yet having adjourned for its summer recess.

Nearly a dozen bills were passed yesterday, including the Censorship of Publications Bill (as amended by the Senate).

The second stage of the Dublin City and County (Relief of the Poor) Bill, 1929, was postponed at the request of the Minister for Local Government owing to a curious hitch having occurred. The Senate committee which had forwarded the bill had neglected to consult the Dublin County Council, and that body seriously objected to the omission.

The second reading of the bill which makes provision for giving effect to the agreement reached in consequence of the Wigg-Cochrane case was adjourned until after the recess.

On the adjournment, President Cosgrave stated, in reply to questions, that it was hoped to introduce a Traffic Control Bill in the autumn. The Government had under consideration the question of insisting on third party insurance for all vehicles plying for hire.

DUBLIN POOR LAW RELIEF BILL.

CURIOUS HITCH CAUSES POSTPONEMENT.

President COSGRAVE said that he had already announced his intention to move that the House adjourn until 23rd October next. He did not know if the ordinary business would be disposed of in the usual Parliamentary term, and he would, therefore, propose that the Dail sit later than 11 p.m., and that the motion on the adjournment be taken not later than 8 a.m. on Friday morning.

On a division, the motion was carried by 65 votes to 49.

With reference to the Dublin City and County (Relief of the Poor) Bill, 1929, which had come from the Senate, and the second reading of which was on the orders of the day,

Mr. MULCAHY, Minister for Local Government, said that when on Friday last he recommended that the second stage be taken that day he was not aware that the Dublin County Council had not been consulted by the Senate Committee which was dealing with the matter. Very serious exception had been taken by the County Council to that procedure, and he, therefore, found himself in the position of having to change his mind in regard to asking the House to accept the second reading of the bill. He hoped that when the House met after the Recess arrangements would have been made which would be more generally acceptable to the Dail.

Replying to Mr. DAVIN (Labour, Leix-Offaly),

Mr. MULCAHY said that he would be forced into the position of opposing the bill if the House decided to take it that day.

Mr. O'KELLY (F.F, Dublin, North) asked if the Minister had any alternative arrangements to put into operation for the needy poor for the next four or five months. If they did not pass the bill at present, six months would elapse before arrangements could be made to deal with the urgent situation which existed in Dublin. The Minister knew that there was a situation in the city which demanded immediate attention.

Mr. MULCAHY said that he would prefer that the second reading should not be taken that day. He did not want to be committed for or against the principle of the bill at present.

Mr. DAVIN—Does the Minister accept the principle of the bill?

Mr. DAVIN—The question of dates is a detail.

Mr. MULCAHY said that there was not only the question of dates, but the area of administration.

AN ARGUMENT FOR ABOLISHING THE SENATE.

The Intoxicating Liquor (Amendment) (No. 2) Bill, to vary the licensing hours in Cork on Sundays, July 14th and 21st, was received from the Senate.

The Senate deleted the provision for the second date.

Mr. ANTHONY (Labour, Cork Borough) who promoted the bill, accepted the amendment under protest. The "popular House," he said, passed the bill, but it was turned down by the Second Chamber. That was the biggest argument yet for the disestablishment of the Second Chamber. (Laughter.)

The bill, as amended, was passed.

SHANNON ELECTRICITY BILL.

In Committee on the money resolution in connection with the Electricity (Finance) Bill, 1929,

Mr. BENNETT (Government, Limerick) referred to the payment of £132,000 for improved navigation. He asked the Minister to make the position clear as to whether it was to be a charge on navigation.

The Minister said that it had not been stated that the charge would fall on the users of the navigation. The proposal made in the bill was that the Electricity Supply Board should not be asked to pay it. It was at present a liability on the Department, and action would be taken to get rid of it. That would require legislation, and there would be an opportunity of discussing it. Nothing had been determined except that the charge would not fall on the Electricity Supply Board.

The resolution passed, and the bill went through Committee without amendment. Standing Orders, by agreement, were suspended; and the bill passed through its final stage, being certified as a Money Bill.

LAND BILL PASSED.

The Land Bill, 1929, passed through Committee without amendment, and then its subsequent stages were agreed to.

AGRICULTURAL CREDIT BILL.

On the report stage of the Agricultural Credit Bill, an amendment, proposed by the Minister for Finance, was agreed to. It was introduced by Mr. Blythe to meet points made by Deputy Dr. Ryan and others in the Committee stages. It was intended to extend the discretion of the Corporation in certain circumstances to advance money for other purposes than for the purchase of stock and the improvement of holdings.

The bill passed through all its stages.

On the second stage of the Trim Urban District Council (Dissolution) Bill, 1929,

Mr. MULCAHY, Minister for Local Government, said that the bill provided for the continuance in office of the Commissioner for a further period of three years.

The bill passed through this and all further stages.

CENSORSHIP BILL PASSED.

SENATE AMENDMENTS ADOPTED.

On the Censorship of Publications Bill—from the Senate,

Mr. FitzGERALD-KENNEY, Minister for Justice, said that he would ask the House to accept the amendments made by the Senate in the bill. None of them affected the principle of the bill, and the only one which might be regarded as important was the amendment which reduced the number of the Board from nine to five.

Mr. LITTLE (Fianna Fail, Waterford) said that his party was opposed to this amendment. The Dail had decided on the number nine, and he thought that there was a better chance of excluding fanatical decisions with a Board of nine.

The amendment was carried by 63 votes to 49.

On an amendment providing that a periodical which contained an advertisement for a book which advocated birth control should not be deemed of itself to advocate birth control,

Mr LITTLE (F.F., Waterford) moved a further amendment to add the words "unless a majority of the Board of Censors shall have certified that such advertisement is likely in their judgment to lead to a breach of this section." The amendment would, he said, do away with the loophole which was left to a certain type of book in the Senate amendment.

Mr. FITZGERALD-KENNEY said that the Fianna Fáil amendment would really allow more advertisements to come in than the original amendment would. It was a more lax amendment. In the case of newspapers with large circulations which might publish such advertisements he thought that immediate prosecutions should be possible without appeal to the censors.

The amendment proposed by Mr. Little was rejected by 69 votes to 47.

The Senate amendment was carried.

The remaining Senate amendments were passed.

TOTALISATOR BILL.

The Totalisator Bill, as amended by the Senate, was passed.

TRADE LOANS BILL.

STILL SOME APPLICATIONS.

In moving the second reading of the Trade Loans (Guarantee) (Amendment) Bill,

Mr. McGILLIGAN, Minister for Industry and Commerce, said that it was the usual legislation introduced year by year. On the Estimate for his Department he had stated that they had come to the conclusion that the Trade Loans legislation had outlived its utility. He had based that statement on the fact that no applications were coming in, but since then three applications had taken on new life, and they were informed that two at least were likely to be proceeded with. There was also an application from the Limerick Harbour Commissioners, which was likely to be proceeded with, and for these four cases there was the necessity for carrying the original Act further.

Mr. LEMASS (F.F., Dublin S.) said the fact that the legislation appeared to have outlived its utility was very largely due to the method in which the Advisory Councils had approached the consideration of the applications made. They had approached the applications in the spirit of the board of directors of a bank, whereas the main reason for the enactment of the legislation was to provide a means by which industrialists that were not likely to command the immediate attention of the directors of a bank would be able to secure capital.

Mr. J. J. BYRNE (Government, Dublin N.) said that they were all sorry that the Trade Loans Act had not been a greater success, but the fact that, as stated by the Minister, it was responsible for the employment of two thousand extra people was no negligible thing with the state of unemployment in this country.

Mr. McGILLIGAN, in reply, said that the Board did not deal with applications in the spirit of directors. Where applications were rejected it was usually due to the previous history of the applicants.

The second reading of the bill was agreed to, and, Standing Orders having been suspended, the bill passed the remaining stages.

ARTICLE TEN.

THE COMPENSATION BILL

Mr. BLYTHE, Minister for Finance, moved the second reading of the Civil Service (Transferred Officers) Compensation Bill, which makes provision for giving effect to the agreement reached with certain civil servants arising out of the Wigg and Cochrane case. He explained the obligations involved in the Act of 1920 and the Treaty, and said that, although the Committee over which Mr. Justice Wylie presided was not a Statutory Committee whose decisions were final and conclusive, the Executive Council decided from the outset that they had no alternative but to accept all the recommendations of the Committee.

The Minister then referred to the history of the case of the two civil servants—Mr. Wigg and Mr. Cochrane—and the decisions of the Courts on the issues raised.

The judgments of the Privy Council did not satisfy the Government. So far as they were concerned, they were not prepared to pay a single penny out of the Exchequer that they were not liable to pay as a result of the judgment of their own Supreme Court. The matter was left in an unsatisfactory position, and negotiations ensued, with the result that an agreement supplementing and interpreting Article 10 of the Treaty was arrived at.

A Statutory Board would be set up, approximating in the same way as the Wylie Committee, and it would consist of a chairman, to be a judge of the High Court, two civil servants representing the Minister for Finance and two representing the staff. The bill imposed no new charges, and was approved by the transferred officers, while the Government regarded it as satisfactory.

Mr. DE VALERA (F.F., Clare) said that the bill required serious consideration, and he asked for its postponement.

This was agreed to, and the second reading motion adjourned to October 23rd.

PARTING WORDS.

The Children Bill, 1929, introduced in the Senate, passed through all its stages.

On the motion for the adjournment,

Mr. J. X. MURPHY (Ind., Dublin Co.) expressed disappointment that the Minister for Industry and Commerce had not introduced legislation to deal with the regulation of 'bus and other road traffic. Unless something was done the increased loss of life would be considerable. He hoped that during the recess the President would turn over in his mind what should be done with the alleged grievances of British ex-Servicemen in the Free State.

Mr. BRISCOE (F.F., Dublin, South) said that the Government should insist on all vehicles plying for public hire having third party insurance.

Mr. O'KELLY (F.F., Dublin Co.) said that he would like to call the attention of the President to the position of the poor in the city. He asked the President to use his influence with the Poor Law Authorities to seek a way out to do something for those poor persons by giving them a promise that legislation would be introduced guaranteeing them from liability on overcharge.

President COSGRAVE, replying, said that the matter of regulation of traffic had been engaging the attention of the Executive Council, and it was hoped that in the autumn session a bill dealing with the matter would be introduced. As regards Deputy Briscoe's point, the Executive Council had it under consideration.

EX-SERVICEMEN'S CLAIMS.

With reference to the ex-Servicemen, State Departments had been circularised concerning the report of the Commission appointed to deal with the claims made by ex-Servicemen, and only one reply was outstanding. It was a matter on which he did not expect to make any announcement until the autumn session.

The matter referred to by Mr. O'Kelly had been occupying the attention of the Minister for Local Government and Public Health for over twelve months. The Minister had come to some kind of working arrangement with the poor law authorities and charitable associations in the State with a view to giving more assistance. He would undertake to see the Minister for Local Government on the matter, but Deputy O'Kelly would realise that the real difficulty was that money had not been provided for the purpose of relief. He was glad that the deputy had mentioned that the matter was not one for political treatment, but should be the concern and duty of all parties in the State to aid in this problem concerning humanity.

The House formally adjourned until October 23rd; but President COSGRAVE intimated that there would be a sitting on the 31st July to consider Seanad amendments.

YESTERDAY IN THE SENATE.

TOTALISATOR LICENCES.

£500 FINE FOR BREACH OF REGULATIONS.

AMENDMENTS TO THE JURIES BILL.

On the Committee stage of the Intoxicating Liquor (Amendment) (No. 2) Bill, 1929, which alters the hours during which public-houses may remain open in Cork on Sunday, July 14th, and Sunday, July 21st,

Mr. JOHNSON objected to the inclusion of July 21st in the bill. There was, he said, no real objection to granting the same facilities as were granted to Dublin on the occasion of the Catholic centenary celebrations, but the proposal to include Sunday, the 21st, in the bill was, in his opinion, very unwise. He moved an amendment to delete the date July 21st. The chief promoter of the bill had intimated that rather than face opposition to the bill he would consent to this amendment.

Mr. LENIHAN said that there was grave danger that the bill would not be in force for next Sunday, because if the amendment were inserted the Dail would have to consider it, and the Dail was adjourning that evening. There was no increase in the hours of opening of the licensed houses, and it in no way affected the cause of temperance.

Mr. FANNING also opposed the amendment. There was, he said, a real necessity for the change when a great gathering of people visited the City of Cork.

Mr. O'HANLON said that in principle Mr. Johnson was perfectly right. He protested against the practice which was creeping in of changing the opening hours.

Mr. JOHNSON said that arrangements had been made by the Dail to take the bill that evening.

[Afterwards in Dail Eireann the bill was passed as amended.]

On a division the amendment was carried by 21 votes to 10.

The Standing Orders having been suspended, the remaining stages of the bill were passed.

BILLS ADVANCED.

The Copyright (Preservation) Bill passed through the report stage, and the Railways (Amendment) Bill passed through its final stages.

BOOKMAKERS AND THE TOTALISATOR.

CONDITIONS OF ADMISSION TO RACECOURSES.

The debate on the committee stage of the Totalisator Bill, 1929, was resumed.

Mr. JOHNSON moved an amendment to the effect that no fee for the grant of a totalisator licence should be charged unless it had been approved by the resolution of Dail Eireann. He said that this was a constitutional amendment, and was based on the theory and principle that a charge could not be made by the Crown or State without the consent of the Legislature.

Mr. COMYN said that the House which represented the people should have control over finance.

Mr. BLYTHE, Minister for Finance, said that no constitutional principle was involved. The Minister had already power to levy charges in connection with the Post Office.

The amendment was lost.

"DISQUALIFIED."

Sir WALTER NUGENT moved an amendment to Section 3, Sub-Section (6), giving power to exclude book-makers disqualified under any recognised rules of racing.

The amendment was adopted.

Mr. PARKINSON moved an amendment to the effect that the charge to bookmakers should not exceed £5 for the grand stand and ten shillings for the smaller stands on any racecourse, and that any sums derivable from the charges to licensed bookmakers should be paid into the general totalisator fund.

Mr. JOHNSON said that they should not be asked to fix sums, and that he doubted whether the term "grand stand" should appear in their legislation without definition.

Mr. MILROY said that there was no mention in the bill of the general totalisator fund.

Mr. BYRNE said that there was no reason for penalising the bookmaker, as was proposed in this amendment.

The amendment was defeated.

A GOVERNMENT AMENDMENT.

The following Government amendment was passed:—"If any person contravenes any of the conditions or restrictions subject to which the Minister has issued a totalisator licence under this Act, or contravenes any regulation made by the Minister under this Act, he shall be guilty of an offence, and shall for each offence, on summary conviction thereof, be liable to an Excise penalty of five hundred pounds."

The report stage was then passed, and Standing Orders having been suspended, the bill was passed.

INCOME TAX APPEALS IN CAMERA.

On the Committee stage of the Finance Bill,

Mr. BROWN moved the insertion of a new sub-section to provide that "every hearing by the Circuit Court of an appeal under Section 196 of the Income Tax Act, 1918, and every hearing by the High Court or the Supreme Court of a case stated under Section 149 of that Act shall, if the person assessed or proposed to be assessed to tax so desires, be held in camera."

On the suggestion of Mr. BLYTHE consideration of the amendment was postponed to allow him to confer with his legal advisers as to the implications of the proposal.

WOOLLEN TARIFF EXEMPTION LIMITED TO TWO YEARS.

An amendment by Mr. MacLOUGHLIN that the recently-imposed exemption limit in respect of imported woollen and woven tissues remain operative only for two years instead of five, as originally proposed, was accepted by the Minister.

The Committee stage of the Finance Bill was passed, and the report and final stages fixed for Wednesday next.

AMENDMENTS TO THE JURIES BILL.

MAJORITY VERDICTS IN MURDER TRIALS.

On the report stage of the Juries (Protection) Bill,

Mr. JOHNSON moved the following resolution to Section 5, and it was adopted:—"To add at the end of the section the words—'Provided that in the case of a trial of a person on a charge for which the penalty of death is prescribed, if the jury has found a verdict of guilty the foreman of the jury shall notify to the judge, in writing, the number of dissentients, if any, and the judge shall forward to the Minister the information thus obtained.'"

Mr. JOHNSON said that the effect of the amendment would be to increase the chances that the accused person would be reprieved.

ADJOURNMENTS.

Mr. O'HANLON moved an amendment, providing that the number of adjournments of trials because of the intimidation of witnesses be limited to two in respect of any one trial. Grave hardship, he said, might be inflicted upon an innocent person in custody by the activities of persons over whom he had no control, if the power of adjournment, as defined in the bill—which in certain circumstances appeared to suggest that it was unlimited—were allowed to stand.

Mr. O'FARRELL supported the amendment, and the Minister accepted it.

On the motion of Mr. JOHNSON, it was agreed that the bill should expire in September 1931, instead of in December, 1931.

The House adjourned until Wednesday next.

SEASIDE RESORTS.

FOR those who come to Ireland in search of a brief rest, and something that will make them forget the cares and worries of every-day life, there are places in Kerry that will suit them. The coast of Kerry is set with beauty spots like jewels. Parknasilla, Waterville, Ballybunion, with its famous caves; and, out west in the sea, lovely Valentia Island.

Wandering further up the Western coast is Kilkee, its claim on the affections of the public as a seaside resort has long rested on a sure foundation. North of Kilkee, Miltown-Malbay, Spanish Point and Lahinch also maintain a well-established popularity.

Mayo offers fine bathing, boating and sea-fishing at its coastal resorts—Killala, Westport, under the shadow of Croagh Patrick; Leenane, Mallaranny, Newport, Achill Island, Belmullet. To the North-West, with Belmullet as centre, the traveller in search of wild places and rugged grandeur of scenery can find his heart's desire.

SLIGO AND DONEGAL.

Sligo and Rosse's Point have always been well patronised, but of late they have come to hold a much more prominent place in public favour. They, too, have much to recommend them beyond the customary joys of the sea coast. Back from the sea-front lies many a place within a short walk or drive, where delightful days may be spent. Few will leave the neighbourhood without visiting Lough Gill, Lough Melvin and Dromahaire, with its ancient Abbey.

NORTHERN RESORTS.

In Antrim places of beauty and interest will be found in plenty to choose from when a change of scene is desired from the seaside. All the popular resorts provide excellent means of transit to neighbouring beauty spots.

All round the Northern counties' coastline the fine bracing air attracts yearly large crowds of visitors from abroad, and many Ulster folk, who believe—and quite rightly—that they might go further afield and fare worse, act on that belief, and patronise their own watering-places.

Larne, a busy port, has a faithful clientèle of friends, who add to the number of visitors each season, with praise of its beauties; and Ballycastle, further on, is an old-established favourite.

BRAY—The gateway to beautiful Wicklow.

line, we find the wild moorland country, lovely lakes, and mountain groups and single peaks calling to the climber to come and conquer them. Over Clew Bay rises the bold outline of Croagh Patrick; scene of a yearly pilgrimage.

At the head of Sligo Bay, the town of Sligo stands with its protecting mountains, those to the north presenting a curious flat-topped appearance. In the valleys of Glencar and Glenade are lakes of great beauty, and down the cliff-like walls of the valleys waterfalls hurl their spray.

THE NORTHERN COUNTRYSIDE.

In Donegal the mountain-climber will find enough and to spare to absorb his energies. The lofty promontories of the wild coastline are a good index to the character of the country inland. The cliffs of Horn Head are over six hundred feet in height, and, in the north-east Muckish and Errigal assert their claims to superiority in height over the lesser mountains of the county.

For lovers of the picturesque, the sharp contrasts afforded in the mingled black and pale-hued cliffs of the Antrim coast will have great charm. From Larne, through Cushendall, across high moorland, the traveller comes to Ballycastle, guarded on the east by the great wall of Fair Head, and, after a short journey through bogland and waste stretches, dotted with rugged scenery, he reaches the far-famed Giant's Causeway.

South of Belfast, in the fertile county of Down, we come to where those friends in an old song—"The Mountains of Mourne roll down to the sea." At their eastern extremity, Slieve Donard rears its 2,796 feet to the heavens, the western end dropping in precipitous manner into Carlingford Lough.

Wherever we turn in this country at every hand beauty meets us, beauty linked with historical associations, each enhancing the claims of the other to consideration. We may for long have lagged behind other countries in facilities for travel and accommodation, but we are fast leaving that reproach behind us. The tourist who comes to us prepared to enter into the spirit of the game of life, as we play it in Ireland, will return to his own country with a harvest of pleasant memories.

ANGLING IN IRELAND.

THE angler, whose chief ambition is to kill salmon, will be much attracted by the possibilities in the Lismore area, where, in the River Blackwater, is one of the best salmon rivers in Ireland. Sea trout and shad also run up the Blackwater, and it is the only river in the country in which the true roach and dace are to be found. The river also holds pike, the record pike being 29½lbs.

Visitors to County Kerry have an almost unlimited range for fishing. There is good salmon, sea and brown trout fishing in the Roughty and Sheen rivers and the Clonee River and lakes. There is the Killarney district, with its many rivers and lakes, all providing good fishing, and all lying amidst scenery unsurpassed in its beauty.

The keen salmon fisherman will, no doubt, make Galway his headquarters, and here he will find all the sport he can possibly desire in the famous salmon fishery of the Corrib. They say that Galway is the great academy of salmon fishing, and that to learn how to catch salmon properly one must pass through this school.

"FEW BLANK DAYS."

It is an unforgettable and stirring sight to see the salmon in certain seasons lying below the weir in great serried lines, like an army waiting to storm the obstruction ahead. Fishing is dear here, fifteen shillings or a pound a day, but one is always fishing over salmon, and there are few blank days. There is also this to be said for Galway, that the fishing is usually good in August, when most people take their holidays.

Good fishing for pike and perch can be had on the River Corrib, above Galway, and on Lough Corrib itself there is magnificent opportunity for the fisherman, in a lake which holds salmon, trout, char, pike, rudd, and bream.

In Connemara there are mountain lakes and rivers virtually at every hand's turn. The Ballynahinch Fishery is the most important in the district, and one of the best for salmon and sea trout in Ireland. It lies amidst the glorious country of the Twelve Pins and Maam Turk Mountains, a veritable paradise on earth. In moderate water every yard of the Ballynahinch River is fishable, and the summer months are the best season for salmon, as many as fourteen of which have been jilted in a day. Sea trout are good in July.

So one could go on almost indefinitely pointing to the angler's pleasure grounds to be found through Lennane, in its rich setting at the head of Killary Harbour, where there is fine sea-fishing, should one want change from the salmon and trout offered by the Loughs Fee and Muck.

SLIGO AND THE NORTH.

The wild beauties of West Mayo, including Achill Island, can be felt in all their grandeur while one throws a line in lake, river, or sea. On into the North-West, where one can make Sligo a stopping place, and fish through such glorious country as that in which lies lovely Lough Gill.

In the extreme North there is the County Donegal, where Gweedore and Rosapenna offer rich reward for the angler, but through the whole country-side there are rivers and mountain lakes, not to mention sea-fisheries, which will all yield a good catch.

The records of large Irish fish are remarkably scanty, and many are obviously exaggerated, though modern story-tellers

RACING IN THE FREE STATE.

THE wonderful record set up by Irish horses this year in England, where virtually every race of importance, including the Derby, has been carried off by horses bred in this country, must inspire sports-loving visitors to Ireland with a desire to see at first-hand Irish horses performing on their own courses. Nowhere, perhaps, can racing be enjoyed so ideally as in Ireland, where the love of the horse is so inculcated into the bones and blood of the people. Strangers coming to Ireland who have experience of racing in other countries are always agreeably surprised not alone at the intimate knowledge of horses and form displayed by followers of racing, but at the keen personal interest which everyone seems to take in horses. At the recent Curragh Meeting this was brought home very forcibly to Mr. S. B. Joel, who was amazed at the reception which was given to his horse, Kopi, and to himself on winning the Irish Derby. Unlike many patrons of racing in England, whose only interest is in the name and number boards, followers of the sport in Ireland, in the long run, are less concerned with their pockets than with their desire to see a good horse win. The impartiality with which a big crowd cheers on a good horse to victory is a very marked feature of all Irish race meetings.

PHŒNIX PARK COURSE.

Those who wish to take in a day's racing during their holidays in the country will find a number of attractive fixtures. Tomorrow there is a meeting at the Phœnix Park course, where, to meet the convenience of visitors, the first race has been timed to start at 6.30 to enable people to see the finish of the Grand Prix Motor Race. Tea and dinner will be served in the Grand Stand Dining Room from 4.30. The course is situated on the confines of the Phœnix Park, and is one of the most beautiful imaginable. It has been likened by English and French critics to the famous Longchamp at Paris. A very high tribute, no doubt, but borne out by the praises sung by people who go there for the first time.

OTHER FIXTURES.

In the matter of race meetings, Dublin is very fortunate in having within easy distance not alone the Phœnix Park course, but also courses at Baldoyle and Leopardstown.

Within an hour's train journey is the famous Curragh, the Irish Newmarket, where a three-days' meeting will take place on the 23rd, 24th and 25th July.

Within the next few weeks there will also be held in the West of Ireland the Galway Meeting, the outstanding feature of which is, of course, the Galway Plate, one of the most popular and coveted steeplechases run for in Ireland.

In the South there are a number of very attractive local fixtures, which always offer good sport. There could not be a more ideal setting than that at Powerstown Park, outside Clonmel, where there is a meeting next Wednesday.

At Tramore there is staged in August the only four days' meeting held in Ireland, and the fixture always proves popular with the holiday crowd at this well-known seaside resort.

CROSS-CHANNEL RESORTS.

WHEN the holiday trek starts there is always a considerable number of people who feel that the further they can get from their everyday surroundings the better. No matter what the homeland can offer of beauty and diversion such folk feel that they want something different and, accordingly, make their plans to go and see what other countries can offer them.

For these wanderers the splendid cross-Channel services from Ireland make it merely a matter of choice and available cash where they shall go. Moderate fares and frequent and rapid services have brought Wales and the West Coast of England, with all their delights of scenery and lively summer resorts within easy reach of holiday-makers from Ireland.

Every year the Isle of Man is the goal of a large contingent of Irish people, who hold that the best place for anyone to spend a vacation is that merry little island, where in many crowded watering places a huge throng turn the days and half the nights into one long carnival.

For those who want as much of the sea as possible many long cruises are now arranged, and shorter sea trips will enable less ambitious travellers to have the bracing sea air and frequent calls at ports on the route. On this page will be found considered plans for those wishing to visit the many great attractions of Wales and the South of England.

Scotland, with all it has to offer of splendid mountain and lake scenery and historic towns, attracts a large yearly toll of sightseers, and the close links between our race and the Gaels of Scotland gives it an added lure for Irish travellers.

BEAUTIES OF THE WEST.

THERE is variety enough in the West of Ireland and its scenery to put an edge on the appetite of the most blase globe-trotter. Along the Clare coast and inland the landscape varies from the stark splendour of the cliffs of Moher to the most peaceful stretches of quiet beauty. The student of natural history will revel in Clare and the treasures its limestone hills offer. Here, again, variety is the key-note, and alpine plants flourish in the same district with flowers that usually only a southern climate encourages to live.

The old-world town of Galway will check the wanderer's footsteps, surely, while he drinks in its wild tales of the turbulent times of long ago, and examines the ruins that enthral the historian and antiquarian, both in the city and in the Aran Islands, off the coast. Galway is the gateway to great tracts of lonely moorland and heather-covered hills, made known to the world by succeeding generations of artists and poets. From Galway, through Connemara to Clifden, will be seen to the north Lough Corrib and the high peaks of the Twelve Bens and Maam Turk. Through the Pass of Kylemore, beyond Clifden, we reach Killary Harbour, with its mountain guardians, chief among them the giant Mweelrea.

HILL AND DALE IN MAYO.

In Mayo again, with its irregular coastline, we find the wild moorland country, lovely lakes, and mountain groups and single peaks calling to the climber to come and conquer them. Over Clew Bay rises the bold outline of Croagh Patrick; scene of a yearly pilgrimage.

At the head of Sligo Bay, the town of Sligo stands with its protecting mountains, those to the north presenting a curious flat-topped appearance. In the valleys of Glencar and Glenade are lakes of great beauty, and down the cliff-like walls of the valleys waterfalls hurl their spray.

fall short of the imagination of the Chronicum Scotorum, dated A.D. 1109, which tells of a salmon caught at Limerick which was twelve feet in length, twelve hands in breadth without being split open, and the length of its neck fin was three hands and two fingers.

There is quite a drop to the 76lb. salmon caught between Ballyduff and Lismore in 1880, measuring over four feet in length.

GOLFING IN THE WEST.

The County Kerry is dotted with courses, which are freely taken advantage of by visitors to the Kingdom. Kilkee, in County Clare, has a course, but visitors to the county will find all the golf they require on the famous links at Lahinch. Recently the course has been reconstructed, and promises in a few years, when the new holes get into proper condition, to become one of the first dozen British golf courses. The South of Ireland Championship is usually held there, and possibly the native event will once more be staged there.

In the North-West, Rosses Point, in Sligo, is every year attaining a wider popluarity as a holiday centre, which has been enhanced by the splendid golf links, which offer capital golf.

Books of the Week

WHAT OF THE FUTURE?

CONSIDERABLE attention is being given nowadays to every aspect of imperial affairs. Hardly a week passes without a book being published dealing with the Dominions, the Colonies, mandated territories, and Dependencies, either separately or in relation to the Commonwealth, the Empire, or the world. The British Commonwealth and Empire is so large and varied that it can contain within itself all the problems that agitate the world to-day, and so books are published dealing with economic problems, political problems, problems of race and colour, communications, education, colonisation and population, and the hundred-and-one other problems which all go to make up what the ex-Premier of Australia has chosen to call "The Splendid Adventure," and Dr. L. Haden Guest "The New British Empire."

The authors of these two books are both worthy of attention on the subject. The Right Hon. W. M. Hughes was Prime Minister of the Australian Commonwealth for many years, including those important years of war which saw the formal change from dependence to equality in the relations of the Dominions to Great Britain. "The British Empire is not fashioned to a plan. Nobody foresaw it, designed it, or deliberately built it up like a symphony upon the theme of enlightened democracy with which it dominates the ears of the nations to-day. It is not the dream of a conqueror, translated patiently, expensively, into possessions, dependencies. Neither is it an accident—something which just happened. It is an organic growth moulded by time and circumstance. When the bud formed no one realised what the flower would be. The flower passed into fruit. The seeds strike into the earth. What new wonder they will bring forth we do not know."

What will be brought forth? The theories which Mr. Hughes airs in his book might render the whole adventure just a boyish dream. He rejects the Federation that fascinated the Imperialists of forty years ago, and he very vigorously belabours the decision of the Inter-Empire Relations Committee of 1926. Diplomatic disunity he condemns, suggesting that imperial unity is possible only so long as the "Dominions act with a wise restraint." But he sets a bad example himself; he sends restraints to the winds, and sets forth his highly controversial views with a force that may have a recoil in unexpected places. The Irish Free State gets a flick, but Canadian policy is criticised in a way that may enrage loyal Canadians. South Africa, too, is unsatisfactory to Mr. Hughes, and Americans cannot be expected to mistake his vigour for kindness. On the whole, it is a readable book which will attract attention to some of the problems of the Commonwealth usually passed over in silence.

* * * *

Dr. Haden Guest's book is a very different matter. When he had left the Labour Party after a dispute on Chinese policy Dr. Guest made a prolonged tour in Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and some less important parts of the Empire in search of facts. His book is packed with facts on the problems as he saw them on the spot. A mixture of the travel book and the sociological treatise, the book will aid in visualising the Empire to all who are interested in the development of the lands throughout the world controlled by English-speaking peoples. The book is well illustrated by photographs.

"THE TEMPESTUOUS PRINCE"

DUBLIN SOCIETY A CENTURY AGO.

A HUNDRED years ago Dublin society had the doubtful honour of entertaining for a time a continental visitor whom our brilliant and erratic countrywoman, Lady Morgan, described, charitably enough, as "a most 'finished' fop." The guest was Hermann Ludwig Heinrich Pückler-Muskan, a princeling of ancient lineage, but not of royal blood, who ruled one of the petty German States. During his stay in Ireland, we are told, he mixed with peasants and priests, hunted the stag over rough country with Lord Howth, drank with the squireens, paid a visit to Daniel O'Connell at Derrynane, called an island in Killarney after the wife he had left behind him, attempted a little devil-worship in a storm at Glengariff, took part in rags and charades, and flirted with the Friends of Civil and Religious Liberty as assiduously as with country girls on the roadside and titled ladies in drawingrooms.

His wooing of the Friends of Liberty was the least successful of his adventures. These too conscientious gentlemen had the good sense to exclude him from a dinner party. Lady Morgan was not quite so unkind, although her friends were warning her. "What!" they cried, "is poor Prince Pickle come 'here'? Oh, he will have you down in his 'morgen blatt'—he will 'pounce' on you." The "Wild Irish Girl," noted in her memoirs: "In short, I saw there was a ridicule about him, or a something, but it shall not deter me from being civil to him."

The Prince, indeed, had more than "a something" about him. He was an adventurer, a philanderer, a charlatan, but handsome, attractive, and bold. He fared much better in England, where he spent a considerable length of time pursuing, by arrangement with the wife with whom he had arranged a divorce pact, rich heiresses who were never caught. If he failed to repair his fortunes in these hunts, still he had the pleasure of being clasped warmly to the bosom of the best English society and made welcome in the company of the highest in the land. "Lord Darnley, the Duke of York, Lord Lauderdale and Lady Lansdowne were friends of old standing; the Duke of Wellington and the Dowager Lady Londonderry, acquaintance dating from the Congress of Aix-la-Chapelle. Pückler-Muskan was elected a member of the Travellers' Club and of the United Services Club; he attended all the brilliant functions of the seasons of 1827 and 1828—routs, balls, concerts, fêtes, Almacks and dinners.

"He was presented to George IV. at a levée; the first gentleman of Europe said that he remembered him perfectly, but showed some confusion with regard to dates. He dined with royalty, and was commanded to appear at royal functions; he was presented to the Duke of Clarence and to the Duchess of Kent, and was a member of an intimate party given by the latter. He dined with the Earl of Carnarvon . . . . he was invited to concerts at Devonshire House, and to dinner with the Duchess of Gloucester and the Duke of Sussex. He was at a fête and concert given by Lord Hertford, and was present with a thousand others at a squash at the Duke of Northumberland's, who showed him over his palace a few days later. He lunched with the Duke of Somerset, and found favour in the eyes of the Archbishop of York, who entertained him to dinner at the palace."

Rumour linked his name with that of Lady Castlereagh—but there is no end to his innumerable and almost incredible amours. So much can good looks, personality, pushfulness and lineage do for a man who evidently deserved some of the titles bestowed on him in chapter headings in this book—"The Rogue," "The Rover," "The Rake." Amor et virtus was the motto on his coat-of-arms!

Pückler-Muskan disported himself more recklessly still in his travels in Asia and Africa, and Miss Butler tells his whole story with vivacity, skill and a sympathy that warms into affection. It is an entertaining tale, and it has a certain instructive value as a revelation of social life in high circles a century ago. Those whom it may not amuse will agree, at the last page, with Lady Morgan when she wrote: "The Prince is gone, thank God!"

Over a score of excellent illustrations, including portraits of the Prince at different ages and in various costumes, and of some of his lady friends, give added charm to a handsomely made volume.

CARICATURE OF TO-DAY.

TO every age belongs its own point of view, and its own outstanding characteristics. Perhaps in no period has the tendency to criticism been more general—or more generally indulged—than in our own. No institution, and no well-known personality has escaped it. As caricature is one of the obvious forms of criticism, it is inevitable that it is more common now than previously. From the pages of the halfpenny Press, to those of the costly periodical, it is ever before us. Society, sport, politics, art, music, the church and the stage, all enjoy the doubtful privilege of being subjected to this form of almost wordless criticism.

With the change of manners, customs and point of view, the style of caricature has changed, and coarseness and broad humour have given place to the subtle, if somewhat remorseless, satire of to-day. Since Hogarth's time caricature has held a recognised place in this, as in other, countries. Its gradual development is interesting to follow, but it has never had so many exponents as at the present time. With the names of most of these we are all familiar, and all possess their devoted admirers. It is almost impossible to judge the work of an artist except by comparison with that of others in the same sphere. Thus, a collection of drawings by well-known caricaturists would serve to emphasize the individuality of outlook and sense of the ludicrous, possessed by every one of them.

The subject chosen for this year's special Autumn Number of The Studio is "Caricature of To-day." Amongst its hundred and forty illustrations are to be found reproductions from the pens of the best known contemporary caricaturists, in addition to some by the earlier masters. The selection, from the immense mass of material to be drawn from, can have been no mean task; but few will quarrel with the result.

An excellent introduction by Randall Davies, F.S.A., completes a volume which, undoubtedly, should hold an honoured place on the shelves of those who enjoy good drawing combined with caustic wit.

THE genius of Mr. Vachell is for a simple realism. He tells of the rise in fortune of a struggling youth, and excites his readers as if they were hearing of a friend's adventures. In "The Enchanted Garden" there are fifteen tales, all successful both in command of curiosity and in the representation of comfortable life. With the author, we move among the opulent.

"SEA LORE."—This handsome book by Stanley Rogers (Harrap, 7s. 6d. net) is illustrated by the author, like his former book, which we praised two years ago, "Ships and Sailors." It is full of instruction, agreeably conveyed, and may be recommended strongly to parents who wish to delight young folk at the seaside. With this volume, what boy will not find a seaport doubly fascinating?

THE MEMOIRS OF A DANCER.

THOSE who have read Isadora Duncan's remarkable autobiography will welcome its sequel. Those who have not, will certainly do so after reading "Isadora Duncan's Russian Days." They will want to know more about this remarkable Irish-American; this "body in the service of a soul"; this "human superhuman"; this tragic figure searching for joy and beauty, and finding cruelty and humiliation.

It was Isadora's great ideal "to nourish human beings on the joy of being alive. . . ." "To dance is to live," she said to France. ". . . . the riches of man are his soul and his imagination. . . . Give me one hundred war-orphans, and in five years I will give you beauty and riches beyond imagining." Similar requests were made by her to other lands, but only Russia heeded her. As we follow Isadora Duncan and her adopted daughter, Irma, one of her biographers, in their varied adventures we get many vivid glimpses of Soviet Russia. We see Isadora opening up her gramaphone at a wayside station to give the astonished and wide-eyed children a concert and a dancing lesson. Her sadness at seeing the old palaces of Russia marred by gaping shell-holes is contrasted with her delight at finding the Winter Palace a hospital for children. "I am convinced," she says, "that here in Russia is the greatest miracle that has happened to humanity for two thousand years." Again she says: "We are too close to understand, and it is probably only those who will be alive in a hundred years who will understand that by the reign of Communism humanity has made a great step forward from which it can never go back."

Of this great "step forward," in its 1921 stage, Isadora's biographers only succeed in conveying to the minds of their readers an impression of something excellent in theory, but hopeless in practice. We are brought to the realisation that social revolutions cannot succeed without mental revolutions. One loses patience with the great Isadora in her infatuation for the drunken mujik poet. We are only given a single specimen of his verse, and that has nothing to recommend it except that it was his last. Then we are made to despair for the future of individual liberty in the story of Isadora's return to America, and her treatment by the American Press. "Had I come to this country as a foreign financier to borrow money," she tells the New York reporters, "I would have had a great reception. As I only came as a recognised artist I was sent to Ellis Island as a dangerous individual."

On her departure she tells them: "This is the last time you will ever see me in America. I would rather live in Russia on black bread and vodka than here in the best hotels. You know nothing of love, food or art. In Russia there is freedom. Here the people do not know what it is. . . . If anyone speaks his mind, the Government prosecutes him; but they can't stop him from drinking!" Isadora never lost her ideals. "All problems can be solved if one begins with the child," she said.

THE PENN COUNTRY.

IS there any place within thirty or forty miles of London, barring Surrey, which has greater charm and seclusion than the Penn country and the Chilterns which Mr. Ralph Robinson has chosen to describe and Mr. Charles Bathurst to illustrate? In the matter of seclusion Surrey might yield the palm to it; for although the motor coach and the bungalow are multiplying, there are still vast areas left which, if the present growing spirit prevails, will be dedicated for ever to the service of the human foot.

Mr. Robinson and Mr. Bathurst, walking hand in hand, as it were, have done wonderfully well, and our only regret is that the volume is too large to slip into a pocket when we go into that delectable land therein described. Their district begins with Jordans and the Chalfonts, indelibly connected with the name of William Penn, who here withdrew from a misunderstanding world, and found his last resting-place by the little meeting-house at Jordans, which yet retains much of its seventeenth century simplicity and seclusion. Their northernmost point is reached on the wooded heights of Ashridge, now happily dedicated to public use, and right across Buckinghamshire to the tangled valleys of the Oxfordshire Chilterns. It is not all country-going; for great men have lived in these beautiful wilds—statesmen like Burke and Disraeli, poets like Milton, Shelley and Gray, and even Rupert Brooke gave it benediction. There are great houses to be seen, and memories to recall of great men who have served their country well—grim Palace a hospital for children. "I am fancies, too, as of the phantom coach that still rolls its midnight way under the pine trees of Newlands Park.

No one knows this country thoroughly, though Mr. Robinson gets somewhere near perfection, and so his book may be recommended alike to those who have tramped it for years and to those who are only beginning to discover the beauties of its endless pathways.

BOOKS FOR YOUNG PEOPLE.

QUITE a spate of children's books has appeared recently from the publishing offices. Miss Anne Casserley, whose "Michael of Ireland" was so popular last year, gives us another charming book of country tales, illustrated by herself, with such characters as the Shaughran, Shaun the Fiddler and Paudeen of the hill as providers of good fun.

"Puffin, Puma and Co." is a jolly book of verses about animals, which George Morrow has illustrated in his best manner. "Feathered Friends of Stream and Shore" is a handsome and ambitious work which tells all about sea birds, and contains exquisite mounted colour pictures.

An exceptionally interesting new series of books for the young is published by Mr. Jonathan Cape. The volumes are classified according to the ages of the children and are instructive and beautifully produced and illustrated.

"More of Milly-Molly-Mandy" is a book explained by its title. Like its forerunner it tells of a little girl's droll adventures in simple language, and contains good drawings.

It will be good news for thousands of nurseries that Doctor Dolittle, who arrived in the moon last Christmas, has enjoyed a series of characteristic adventures there, all of which are chronicled (and depicted) in a book which is available now.

"GHOST TALES AND LEGENDS."—This is the title of a very good little book by Mr. H. Drummond Gauld, F.S.A. (Scot.), a writer who collects his material in the Scottish countryside. Scotland is fertile in fantasy, as every reader of Scots knows, and there are the germs of fine or terrible stories in many of the traditions here recorded. (Chambers, 2s. 6d. net.)

FACES OF THE DEAD.

A REMARKABLE, if gruesome, work is "Undying Faces." It is translated from the German and is illustrated with 118 half-tone pictures. Almost all of the illustrations are full-page representations of death masks, and thus we are enabled to see the true effigy in death of many a famous man—of the canonised Bernardino da Siena, of Lorenzo Medici, Henri IV. of France, Oliver Cromwell, Pascal, Peter the Great, Newton, Swift, Fox, Pitt, Paine, Sheridan, Napoleon, Scott, Uhland, Dostoevsky, Hugo, Tolstoi, Lenin, and others.

The author remarks that death, judged by its physical expression, almost always is a deliverance; for "the last breath is followed almost immediately by an unearthly smile." After a little while coldness and decay begin. A death mask, to be satisfactory, must be made in the happy interval. How this is done the author describes in detail. The book makes grim reading and admiration; but the pictures bear out the author's saying. Almost every one of these illustrious dead wears a countenance of peace, relief, or triumph.

RECENT FICTION.

SUGAR AND SPICE.

MISS Richmal Crompton's name again appears on a remarkable book of short stories. "Sugar and Spice" is not on the same plane as "Middle Things," its themes being widely different. The tales are, however, just as true to life. Unlike the gentle, everyday women of "Middle Things," the "Sugar and Spice" ladies, in many cases, turn out to be whited sepulchres. In "So sweet, so modest" there figures a lady of a type we know well—we have all met that exquisitely charming enchantress, all honeyed sweetness and open-eyed simplicity, who never deceives women, but invariably ensnares men. She is as retiring as Uriah Heep and insatiably avid of flattery, from no matter what source. "The Woman who was Greedy" describes the mind of a harpy of another variety—the woman whose selfishness saps the vitality out of three generations of her men folk.

Of a different sort is the story of "The Mountebank's Wife." It describes the humiliations and sufferings of a girl who not only loses caste on her marriage, but finds she is wedded to a hollow braggart instead of to a hero of romance. After long years of suffering she is offered an ideal home by her son-in-law, but to her own surprise, she indignantly rejects the proposal. Her husband is, indeed, no longer a fairy prince; he is her child, whom she loves with all his faults.

"Sugar and Spice" contains fourteen short stories, every one perfect of its kind.

"Sugar and Spice." By Richmal Crompton. Ward, Lock and Co. 7/6 net.

IN "The Embezzlers" is a picture of the new Russia, which shows that it is not essentially different from the old. Apparently embezzling State funds is a flourishing national business in Soviet Russia; Valentine Kataev, the author of this novel, takes it for granted. So the accountant and the cashier in an undefined business inadvertently take to themselves the funds from which wages and salaries are to be paid, and depart for Petrograd on a spree. Their drunken adventures in Moscow, Petrograd, and other places go to make a story that suggests Gogol's masterpiece. The book is one of the funniest pieces of writing encountered in a long time, and may be recommended confidently to all in search of really light reading. Comparison of new Russia with old Russia may be left to the critical sociologists.

"The Embezzlers." By Valentine Kataev. Ernest Benn 7/6 net.

AMONG writers of detective stories, Mr. Henry Wade is conspicuous for the extreme tidiness of his plots. "The Missing Partners" and "The Verdict of You All," however, were not more fastidious than "The Duke of York's Steps," the tale of the murder of a banker by an unusually cunning, and yet perfectly simple, method. Perhaps, the investigation, if it could not be shortened in real life, might be abbreviated in the tale: the persevering detective sometimes perseveres beyond our patience.

The Laurels go to WHIPPET

LAND'S END TO JOHN O'GROATS ON "TOP."

The Superior Whippet 4-cylinder was designed for the everyday motorist, for the man who wants a car which is dignified and pleasing in appearance, a car that gives him full accommodation for five passengers if necessary, and a car that is fascinatingly easy to drive. The Superior Whippet is essentially a top gear car, gear changing is almost eliminated, whilst the proof of its exceptional ease of control is that an entirely standard 4-cylinder Superior Whippet Saloon has completed a top gear run from Land's End to John O' Groats under R.A.C. observation, and in accordance with the R.A.C. regulation.

This run—a run of 886½ miles—was undertaken entirely in top gear, for starting, for hill climbing, for traffic work, even when baulked in dense traffic on a steep hill, nothing but top gear was used. This is convincing proof of the amazing ease of control of the Whippet and of its wonderful top gear performance. This performance is the performance that you as an everyday motorist would require.

Catalogues and full details would be sent you or a demonstration arranged entirely without obligation to yourself.

UNIQUE GATHERING IN BELFAST.

AMERICAN VISITORS' BANQUET.

A gathering probably unique in the history of Ulster took place in the Shaftesbury Restaurant, Belfast, last night, when a dinner was given by the Ulster Club of the United States of America, 600 members of which are at present on a visit to this country to attend the twelfth of July and twelfth of August celebrations. Four new flags were unfurled, which will be carried in the procession to-day.

Mr. N. Gilmore, President of the Club, who presided, said that there was no parallel to such a banquet as that given 1,000 leagues from home, and it might never be paralleled again in the history of Ulster.

Mr. Thomas Mann, treasurer of the Club, said that he hoped that that would not be the last trip that they would be privileged to make.

NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND

When a racing motor car and a pony and cart collided at Kingsbridge, Dublin, yesterday, a boy who was seated in the cart was flung over the parapet of the bridge and drowned in the Liffey.—(Page 10.)

The Coast Lines steamship Lady Longford went aground in a heavy fog in Youghal Bay yesterday morning.—(Page 10.)

The Free State Senate yesterday adopted by 21 votes to 10 an amendment by Mr. Johnson deleting the date July 21st from the Intoxicating Liquor Bill, which proposes to alter the opening hours of public-houses in Cork on Sundays, July 14th and 21st. Afterwards in Dail Eireann Mr. Anthony, one of the promoters of the bill, accepting the amendment under protest, said it was the biggest argument yet for the disestablishment of the Second Chamber.—(Page 5.)

Dr. R. W. Livingstone, Vice-Chancellor of Queen's University, Belfast, expressed interesting views on education at the prize distribution in the Armagh Royal School yesterday.—(Page 8.)

Dail Eireann rose yesterday until October 23rd. Seven bills were passed, including the Censorship Bill, as amended by the Senate. President Cosgrave stated that it was hoped to introduce a Traffic Control Bill in the autumn. The Government, he said, were considering the question of compulsory third-party insurance for public vehicles.—(Page 5.)

GREAT BRITAIN

Nine cadet boys were burnt to death when a dummy house collapsed during a fire brigade display at Gillingham Park, Kent, last night.—(Page 9.)

Owing to the certainty that all those in submarine H 47, which was sunk on Tuesday, are dead, and the great difficulty and danger attending the work of salvage, it has been decided to abandon all further operations.—(Page 9.)

Changes in the naval new construction programme are contemplated by the Cabinet, which is aiming at avoiding any new construction which might hamper Ministers in future negotiations regarding disarmament.—(Page 9.)

The House of Commons last night passed the money resolution in connection with the Wigg and Cochrane case agreement.—(Page 9.)

The House of Commons last night in committee passed the financial resolution in connection with the Unemployment Insurance (Money) Bill, which proposes to increase the Treasury contributions to the Unemployment Fund.—(Page 10.)

ABROAD.

Two passengers who were in a Spanish aeroplane when it ran into an air pocket over Tarifa were thrown from their seats and killed.—(Page 9.)

SPORTING

At Salisbury Lovat Scout won the Champagne Stakes.—(Page 12.)

London Stock Markets were quiet, and idle conditions prevailed. Rubbers were firmer and some Industrials improved.—(Page 14.)

Lombard street was easier, but rates were patchy from 5¼ down to 4¾ per cent. for short money, with the bulk of the business at 5 per cent. Discount rates were irregular.—(Page 14.)

Privy Council Appeals.

The anomalous situation regarding appeals to the Privy Council has been illustrated once more by the action of the Free State Government in the case of the Performing Rights Society, Limited, versus the Bray Urban Council. Three years ago a band in the employment of the Bray Council included in its programme of music two items, the copyright of which was vested in the Performing Rights Society, of London. This body applied to the High Court in Dublin for an injunction against the Council. Its application was granted by Mr. Justice Johnston, although the defendants argued that the Copyright Act of 1911 had ceased to operate in the Free State after the signing of the Treaty in December, 1921, and that neither the Free State Constitution nor the subsequent Adaptation of Enactments Act had incorporated it in the body of law applicable to the Saorstát. On appeal to the Supreme Court, however, Mr. Justice Johnston's decision was reversed, in spite of the fact that the case for the Performing Rights Society was reinforced by counsel representing the Free State Government. The Society then applied for leave to appeal to the King in Council, relying on Article 66 of the Free State Constitution, which expressly confers the right of such application, and preserves His Majesty's right to grant it. Last November the Privy Council gave leave to appeal on the ground that the case was of more than domestic importance. An appeal was pending when the Free State Government decided to take a hand in the game.

The effect of the Supreme Court's judgment was that between the date of the Treaty and the date on which the Free State Copyright Act of 1927 came into force there was no copyright law in the Saorstát. The Act of 1927 specifically saved all rights acquired before December 6th, 1921, but, through some curious omission, no provision seems to have been made for those authors who created works, or those assignees who acquired copyrights, between 1921 and 1927. In order to fill up this legal vacuum, the Free State Government introduced the Copyright Protection Bill (1929), which passed its report stage in the Senate yesterday, thus remedying the flaw in its former Act which had been discovered by the Performing Rights Society. By a special section of the new bill, however, the Government deliberately has prevented the Society from prosecuting its case before the Privy Council. This section is analogous to the ad hoc legislation by means of which the Government, five years ago, prevented an appeal in the Lynham versus Butler case; and it is particularly flagrant in view of the fact that leave to appeal already has been granted. In the Senate, on Wednesday, Mr. McGilligan, despite the fact that he intervened in his capacity as Minister for External Affairs, told Sir John Keane that the Government regarded the case as a "purely domestic matter." The Government's intention was "to get rid of the prerogative of the Crown, or, in the alternative, to let it stand, with an understanding that appeals to the Privy Council would tend to become less and less." It must be understood "that people who wanted to appeal to the Privy Council did so at their own risk."

Two aspects of the Government's policy in this case must cause grave concern to every thoughtful citizen. One is the discourtesy which has been shown to an English society, seeking merely to assert its acknowledged rights in the Free State; and the other, which is far more important—if hardly more disturbing—is the Government's attitude towards the Privy Council. The treatment of the Performing Rights Society certainly is no credit to Saorstát Eireann, but Mr. McGilligan's statement in the Senate is a menace to the whole Constitution. The right to appeal to the King in Council, if leave is granted, is one of the most precious gifts of British citizenship; and it is unchallenged in every other Dominion. Sir John Keane told Mr. McGilligan that the more honest course would be to cancel Article 66 of the Constitution, and all upright men will agree with him. What is the use of this article if, at any moment, the Free State Government can introduce ad hoc legislation to nullify it; and, if one article can be defied by Ministers, is there any reason why others should be sacrosanct? What will happen when Mr. de Valera and his party come into power? They will have excellent precedents for any attacks on the Constitution that they may choose to make; and, like Mr. McGilligan, they will be able to take refuge in the assertion that they are dealing with "a purely domestic matter." Is the Free State, or is it not, a Dominion of the British Commonwealth? If it is a Dominion, the right to appeal to the King in Council is part of the people's birthright; if it is not a Dominion, the entire Constitution is a fraud.

Dublin's Post Office.

Dublin's General Post Office, which has been a ruin for thirteen years, was restored yesterday to the public service. The event is auspicious, and President Cosgrave's speech was not unworthy of it. Some part of his reminiscence—as, indeed, the nature of things demanded—was controversial, but in much of his pride and hope every good Irishman will be a willing partner. We have nothing but praise for the Free State Government's effort to repair the material wounds of war. It began the work in an atmosphere of civil tumult, and for a time laboured, like Nehemiah, with a sword in one hand and a trowel in the other. Secure peace has quickened the policy of reconstruction, until to-day Dublin—rebuilt, well-paved, well-tended, circled with new suburbs of healthy homes—can claim a high place among the capitals of Europe. Moreover, the Government's historic sense has been a vigilant caretaker of old craftsmanship and old dignity. In 1916 and afterwards three of Dublin's finest buildings were destroyed, as Mr. Cosgrave says, "through warlike action." The Customs House has been brought back without loss of beauty; the Four Courts are in process of renewal, and yesterday the General Post Office re-opened its doors. Happily, the furies of Easter Week spared Johnston's noble portico. It survives as a monument of Georgian grace; and, in the restored and enlarged buildings behind it, "provision has been made for services that were not thought of in the remotest dreams of the postal authorities of those days." We learn with pleasure from Mr. Cosgrave that the material and workmanship of the new Post Office are Irish and maintain, unbroken, a national tradition of taste, thoroughness and skill. Not only the public, but the postal officials who, for some years, have toiled in makeshift quarters—and here we pay tribute to their consistent courtesy and cheerfulness under difficulties—will welcome the change to ampler accommodation and modern conveniences. The Department, also, as we may hope, will take inspiration from its new access of dignity, and will try to abridge the gap between up-to-date premises and inefficient services. When Mr. Cosgrave reminds us that a Free State citizen can send a letter for two pennies "half-way across the world," he reminds us also that a citizen of Northern Ireland can do the same thing for three-halfpence, and that the present cost of Free State telegrams is extortionate. Rome, however, was not built in a day. The new General Post Office is an earnest of progress; opened on the eighth anniversary of the Anglo-Irish Truce, it ought to be a symbol of reconciliation. "War," said President Cosgrave, "has now given way to peace"; and the Free State to-day is in close and profitable contact with her great neighbour—even though her Government has been careful to obliterate the Royal Arms from Johnston's portico.

Persian Unrest.

History tells us that the way of the reforming autocrat is fraught with difficulties. In the earliest times the enlightened Pharaoh Akhnaten was unable to overcome the prejudices of the priestly caste, and only a few months ago King Amanullah of Afghanistan lost his throne through his precipitate efforts to introduce western culture among his primitive subjects. The present revolt among the nomadic tribes of Persia indicates that Riza Khan Pehlevi is beset by the same troubles. Unrest among the Bakhtiaris and Baharlus in the neighbourhood of Shiraz has required the despatch of troops to forestall insurrection. It is not likely, however, that Riza Khan will share the fate of Amanullah. The Shah graduated in the ranks of the Persian Cossacks, and, therefore, does not lack the common touch that so often escapes those who are born in the purple. Furthermore, a considerable class in Persia has assimilated some idea of civic responsibility, to which tribal grievances make no appeal. The country has enjoyed a constitution, with interruptions, since 1907, and, though its scope may have been limited, it has borne fruit. Persia, moreover, unlike Afghanistan, has traditions. The position to-day of Riza Khan is almost exactly parallel with that which confronted Ardeshir I., the first monarch of the House of Sassan, when he resuscitated Persian nationalism after the Parthian domination. He and his successor, Sapor I., were forced to wage many petty wars with dissatisfied sheiks before the monarchy reached its zenith under Sapor II. and Chosroes Anushirwan. The present tribal disturbances are but a proof of the Shah's vigorous policy, and we may suppose that Riza Khan Pehlevi will be as successful in his efforts to reform his country as was Ardeshir I.

"The Blue Danube."

"Mortals have many languages, the immortals one." In a welter of modern "ragtime" an occasional legacy from a greater past rears its head. To us there is nothing surprising in the fact that this season's jeunesse dorée should have rediscovered the delights of the "Blue Danube" Waltz. Strauss's masterpiece, of its own kind, is comparable with Beethoven's nine symphonies in its appeal to all time. It is, as Wagner said of the seventh symphony, the apotheosis of the dance. The fact that the "Blue Danube" should have achieved a new popularity is a comforting feature in a depressing age. We may boast to be far better than our sires, but, in our efforts to achieve a modern success, we are apt to forget those qualities which rescued our more limited forefathers from mediocrity. Burke has told us that the age of chivalry is dead, but those who remember the society of pre-war days will hesitate to believe him. In the ballrooms of London, Dublin and Paris a chivalrous courtesy invariably prevailed. A lady was a lady and not an "old bean," while a standard inherited from the days of Sir John Chandos and the Chevalier Bayard was not ashamed to declare itself. The music of Strauss and Waldteufel was sufficient in itself to preclude the vulgarity that so often passes for wit to-day. We live in an age of advertisement and commercialism, and a disillusionised people seeks anew the culture that it has discarded. Once again the "Blue Danube" sets a measure for the feet of modern London. The old Blue Viennese band may be replaced by a quintet in dinner jackets, but Strauss's message is unaltered. He wrote a waltz for ladies and gentlemen.

TROTSKY EXCLUDED FROM ENGLAND.

THE HOME SECRETARY'S STATEMENT.

In the House of Commons yesterday Mr. Clynes, Home Secretary, in reply to Colonel Wedgwood, said that the Government, after carefully considering all the circumstances of the case, had decided against granting permission to M. Trotsky to visit this country. (Loud Opposition cheers.)

Colonel Wedgwood—Is the right hon. gentleman aware that in the past Garibaldi, Mazzini, Karl Marx and others were permitted to come to this country?

The Speaker—The hon. gentleman put on the paper a very definite question, and the answer is very definite. I do not see that there is anything else to be said about it. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. P. Harris (Liberal, Bethnal Green, S.W.)—Is it not the tradition that the right of asylum is a most sacred thing in this country, and are we not to be permitted to cross-examine Ministers on decisions of this kind as to whether they are right or wrong?

The Speaker—No point of order arises.

Colonel Wedgwood—Are we to understand that we are prohibited from asking the reasons why the Government have been led to commit this act of "safety first"? (Laughter, and shouts of "Raise it on the adjournment.")

The Speaker—Supplementary questions must have some bearing on the original question or answer.

MOTOR ACCIDENT.

OLD MAN KILLED IN BRAY.

A tramway 'bus, driven by Leslie Addison, 176 Pembroke road, Dublin, when passing through Castle street, Little Bray, knocked down and kille doutright Henry Rickerby, aged 70, Ardee street, Bray.

An inquest was held later in the evening, and, formal evidence having been taken, the inquest was adjourned.

Addison was arrested by the Garda and charged with causing the death of the man. He was remanded on bail to the District Court.

WEATHER FORECAST.

General Inference.—An anti-cyclone lies over Germany, France and Southern England, while a depression off the West of Ireland is showing little energy as it moves north-eastward. Apart from some light rain in Southern and Eastern Scotland early, weather will be fair generally, with high day temperatures, especially in the southern half of the Kingdom.

North-West, North-East, South-East and South-West Ireland.—Light to moderate westerly to south-westerly winds; fair; rather warm; local coastal mist or fog early and late.

Further Outlook.—Fair and warm in the East, doubtful in the West.

Irish Sea.—Crossings from Holyhead, Heysham, Stranraer, Glasgow, Ardrossan and Liverpool—Moderate to light south-westerly winds; fair; local coastal mist or fog early and late; sea slight.

St. George's Channel.—Crossing from Fishguard—Light variable winds; fine; local coastal mist or fog early and late; sea slight.

NORTHERN EDUCATION BILL.

In the Northern Senate yesterday the Minister for Education (Lord Charlemont) intimated that the new Education Bill would be introduced next year.

COURT AND PERSONAL.

The news that the King spends so many hours daily in the gardens at Buckingham Palace is regarded as the most satisfactory bulletin that could be issued. Though the King and Queen will not visit Balmoral Castle this season, many visitors are expected on the Deeside, and the Duke and Duchess of York will make a short stay at Balmoral in September. The Earl and Countess of Shaftesbury and their family will be at Abergeldie Castle, which has been lent to them by the King; and Lord Stamfordham, with a party, will spend some time at Craig Gowan, Balmoral.

The Duchess of York has promised to attend the Pageant of Ashdown Forest, which will be presented next Wednesday at Forest Row, Sussex. It is hoped that the Duke of York's engagements may allow him to accompany Her Royal Highness.

Yesterday afternoon Princess Louise Duchess of Argyll attended a tea party given at Claridge's Hotel by the Argyll and Southern Highlanders, of which regiment Her Royal Highness is Colonel-in-Chief. On the previous day she visited the Convalescent Home for London Mothers at Sunningdale, and opened the Pound Day collection in aid of the institution.

Princess Beatrice, who will shortly leave London for her annual visit to the Isle of Wight, opened a garden party yesterday at Moray Lodge, Sir Leicester and Lady Harmsworth's place at Campden Hill, which they lent in aid of the appeal for the Waifs' and Strays' Society.

The King of Spain, many of the High Commissioners and Agents-General for the Dominions and Colonies, and a number of Overseas visitors were present at the British Empire garden party, which was held at the Roehampton Club. The programme included a polo match, a musical ride by the 17th/21st Lancers, and a flying exhibition by Captain H. S. Broad.

King Amanullah, accompanied by Queen Surayya and the members of their family, has left Marseilles en route for Rome.

The Earl and Countess of Bessborough will be in residence at Stansted Park, Hampshire, from the end of this month, and will entertain a party for Goodwood Races. Viscount and Viscountess Craigavon will leave Belfast for London early next week, and will be in residence at 27 Belgrave square for their daughter's wedding with Lieutenant-Commander Linzee, R.N., which will take place on Wednesday, July 24th.

Sir John and Lady Leslie, who are at present in London, will return to Ireland at the end of the season. Sir Thomas Stafford has returned to Rockingham, Boyle, from North Wales. Lady Slade has arrived in Dublin from England.

Lady Lilian Grenfell will leave Ravenscroft, Sunningdale, shortly for a stay of some weeks in Belgium. Lady Waterlow has arrived at Bagnoles de l'Orne from Paris. Lord and Lady Airedale and the Hon. Mabel Vereker are among the recent arrivals at Aix-les-Bains. The Earl of Dumfries has left Scotland for the Continent, and will be away for some months. Sir Francis and Lady Layland-Barratt will leave London next week for a cruise to the Baltic.

Dr. Leonard Abrahamson has left town for one week.

Dr. W. G. Myers, 22 Harrington street, has left town for ten days.

Switzers Restaurant remains open until 7 p.m. (Saturdays 3 p.m.). Substantial Teas, including Fish, Grills, Cold Meat, Salads, Sweets, Ices, etc., at very moderate prices. Entrances—Wicklow street and Grafton street.

At Holmes' Sale, Hundreds of Remnants, Fabrics, Silks and Wash Goods half price to clear. 69, 70, 71 South Great George's street.

At Walpoles, stock of Summer Dresses now offered at specially reduced prices. Walpoles "Special Offer" starts on Monday. See advertisement on back page and write now for free catalogue of bargains. Walpoles, Suffolk street, Dublin.

Last two days of Vard's Sale, Furs and Gowns. Bargains at 8 Grafton street and 16 Duke street.

Special Sale of Frocks, Coats and Hats. Great reductions. McManus, 125 Stephen's Green.

The world-wide reputation that Maison Prost, Ltd., has secured for its wigs, transformations, pin curls, chignons, etc., is due not entirely to first-class workmanship and materials, but to the creation of an article particularly suitable and adaptable to each client, under personal supervision.

Royal Hibernian Hotel, Dublin, and Salthill Hotel, Monkstown. Meals interchangeable between both hotels. For particulars apply Manager.

The Cream of Hospitality for Social Functions—"H.B." Ice Cream. 'Phone your needs to Rathfarnham 88.—Hughes Bros., Ltd., Hazelbrook Dairy, Rathfarnham.

At Slyne's Sale, Charming Model Frock in Beige Georgette and Lace, easy fitting, price 5½ guineas. Slyne's Sale, 71 Grafton street.

DUBLIN HOTELS FULL.

Dublin hotels are having a strenuous time in finding space for all the calls on their accommodation that the motor races entail.

On inquiring yesterday at the leading hotels it was learned that all available rooms have been booked for the period covering the motor races; and the boardinghouses have the same cheerful tale to tell of brisk business owing to the widespread interest in the great spectacle.

Miss Mullen, manageress of the Gresham Hotel, said yesterday: "We are fully booked up." The managers of the Hibernian and the Shelbourne made a similar statement.

VICTORIA JUBILEE MASONIC ANNUITY FUND.

The stated meeting of the governors of the Victoria Jubilee Masonic Annuity Fund was held in the Freemasons' Hall, Molesworth street, Dublin, last Wednesday, when the report of the scrutineers of the ballot for the election of sixteen annuitants was read. It was resolved unanimously that the sixteen candidates who obtained the highest number of votes be elected. Accordingly Nos. 10, 1, 22, 8, 11, 3, 26, 2, 5, 9, 14, 21, 19, 24, 17 and 27 on the ballot list were declared duly elected annuitants on the fund.

Eleven persons were killed in a benzine explosion at the Red Cross Rubber Works in Odessa yesterday. The whole of the two-floored building collapsed.—(Reuter.)

LONDON LETTER.

THE KING'S CONDITION.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
THURSDAY NIGHT.

No change in the condition of the King was reported to-day at Buckingham Palace, and His Majesty was able to receive the Vice-Chamberlain of the Royal Household, Mr. Jack Hayes, M.P., who attended to present the Address of the House of Commons in reply to the Speech from the Throne. Mr. Hayes, who was wearing morning dress, had his usual buttonhole of a red carnation, and was received by the King in his workroom. The interview was of a purely formal character, and lasted only a few minutes. The King after the visit was able to go for a walk in the Palace grounds. In Court circles it is thought that, although the King and Queen will not be able to go to Dee-side in the autumn, Balmoral will be occupied by several members of the Royal Family. It is uncertain whether the Prince of Wales will find time to go North, but it is highly probable that the Duke and Duchess of York will do so, while the houses on the Royal demesne, as usual, will be lent to personal friends of the King and Queen.

An Episcopal Scene.

In the Upper House of the Convocation of Canterbury to-day the Archbishop of Canterbury's resolution, sanctioning the use of the new Prayer-book, was passed by twenty-three votes to four, after a scene between the Bishop of St. Albans and the Bishop of Birmingham. The latter is somewhat outspoken in many of his declarations, and seems to have given offence to some of his episcopal brethren. The Archbishop of Canterbury put an end to the scene by calling upon the Bishop of Birmingham to endeavour to refrain from the use of provocative language, which could not advance his calling and did a great deal to disturb the whole movement of life in the Church of England at the present time. The Archbishop added that he felt obliged to say what he did. Prayer-book revision seems to become more and more provocative as time goes on.

Miners' Hours.

Pledges given by Mr. Macdonald during the course of the general election are now coming home for redemption, and at the meeting of the Executive of the Miners' Federation here this morning it was stated that it was expected that the pledge to repeal the Eight Hours (Mines) Act would be honoured, and efforts are to be made to secure a definite statement from the Prime Minister before the Miners' Conference meets at Blackpool. Again, there appears in the order papers of the House of Commons to-day a motion supported by several members, calling upon the Government to continue the education of children until they are fifteen, with the provision of a maintenance allowance.

School Ages.

In connection with the raising of the school age to fifteen, it may be recalled that the Socialists expected that the Prime Minister would find a place for this proposal in the King's Speech, and much disappointment was expressed when it was found that it was omitted. In the circumstances, it is not at all surprising that the Government has decided to postpone this matter; for, while it might be advantageous from the unemployment point of view to delay nearly four hundred thousand children from entering into the industrial world, it is no light matter for the parents of these children to keep them at home after they have reached the age of fourteen and begin to possess ideas as to pocket money and amusement. The suggestion that a maintenance allowance should be given raises at once a financial question of some magnitude; for the sum per child would not be much less than five shillings a week, and this would mean some millions per year.

Signor Mussolini.

A great deal of interest is taken in the Lobby in the report that Signor Mussolini intends to come to London for the International Aero Exhibition. The visit of a Foreign Premier is always a matter of political importance, even though it may be on purely private business, and it is interesting to speculate what the attitude of the Labour Government will be on this occasion. Everybody will desire that the illustrious visitor should have the welcome to which his position entitles him; but it will not make life any easier for Ministers, already considerably harassed on the Left wing, if they have to do the honours to a man regarded by the comrades of the Left as the arch-enemy of international democracy. Signor Mussolini's last visit to this country was a very quiet affair.

Labour Peers.

Lord Darling has put down a motion on the order paper of the House of Lords which, if passed, will afford considerable relief to Mr. Ramsay Macdonald, inasmuch as it will render unnecessary the creation of a number of Labour Peers. It is to the effect that henceforth every one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, who is a member of the other House of Parliament, shall have the right to sit and speak in the House of Lords, but shall only vote in the House of which he is a member. Such a step would provide a strong reinforcement to the meagre number of Labour Peers in the Upper House.

The Premier's Salary.

Mr. Macdonald is to be asked next Monday whether he will appoint a Select Committee to examine the expenses attached to the duties of the office of Prime Minister, and to recommend to the House such additions as may be found desirable. The question will be put by Mr. Bracken, the Conservative member for Paddington. It may be interesting to point out that an inquiry into this subject was held in 1920, when a Select Committee proposed that the salary of the Prime Minister should be increased from five thousand to eight thousand pounds per annum.

A Masonic Memorial.

Rapid progress is being made with the foundations of the building for the Masonic peace memorial to be erected on an island site near Drury Lane, and it is expected that the actual structural work will be started in the early autumn. The building will be immense, with a central tower of one hundred and sixty feet high, while the great temple will be of marble, and large enough to accommodate two thousand people. The building will be of Portland stone, and when completed it will be one of the finest examples of modern architecture in the country. It is to cost £639,000, and, with the provision for its maintenance, will need the million pounds raised by English Freemasons as a memorial to the Masons who fell in the war.

Parliamentary Accommodation.

The great demand for seats in the Strangers' Gallery of the House of Commons has led to a desire that there shall be more accommodation for the public. Every day sees numbers of visitors turned away because there is no room, and several members have complained that they have been unable to find places even for near relatives. The First Commissioner of Works is to be asked next Monday if it would not be possible to extend the public galleries so as to provide facilities for the increasing number of people who wish to listen to the debates. It is pointed out that the side galleries, now reserved for members, are seldom used, except on important occasions, and it is suggested that these might be placed at the disposal of the public. They could be reserved for members whenever occasion arose.

EVE OF GRAND PRIX MOTOR RACE.

THE FINAL PRACTICES.

SOME SPLENDID CORNER WORK.

KAYE DON'S IMPRESSION OF THE COURSE.

"RECORD" SPEED A POSSIBILITY.

By KAYE DON

EXCLUSIVE TO "THE IRISH TIMES."

The strain of it is over. You might be surprised at that. But it is the fact that the worry attaching to motor racing is associated more with the preliminaries than with the actual event. So many things have to be done. The cars must be prepared; they must be tried out on the course; they must be adapted to the peculiar conditions. After the cars have gone through their paces, and the drivers have done with this nasty business of getting up with the larks, it is plain sailing—or, should I say, driving? We have done everything we can. Our cars are as good as we can get them, and well, in any case, we are through with everything except actual racing. There is a sense of freedom about it. It is like posting a letter which you are not quite sure you ought to post. Once it is done it is irrevocable, and so you do not worry any more about it.

To-day's race should be a very good one. Some of the cars have shown up very well in practice, and he would be a bold man who should declare for any one as a probable winner. I have my own ideas about it, but I do not suppose that they agree with those of other people. One of the little fellows in the 750 c.c. Class has been lapping at very high speed, and he is the most dangerous of the hares.

My stable is satisfied with its cars in the middle division, and we ought to do very well. Signor Ramponi, that brilliant little Italian driver, must be considered. He is capable of winning. But to win a race of this description you must have luck or, perhaps, I had better put it in the negative sense, and say that you must not have any bad luck. Your car must stand up to the work. That is part of the contest.

LUCK?

One very often commiserates a man who is forced out of the running during the race and says "Bad luck." But is it? The battle is one of endurance as well as of speed. If a car is very, very fast, but cannot stand the strain for the full distance, then it is not so good a car in that particular race as the slightly slower, but more durable, vehicle.

We could so tune our cars that they would be very fine sprinters, but not stayers, and it is, in fact, sometimes arranged by a manufacturer-entrant that one of his representatives should go out on what is sometimes called a "wrecking expedition." It is his job to set a very hot pace and go as far as he can. He might beat the "record" for the lap. He might induce a competitor to overdo things by giving chase and overstressing his car. If he does either of these things, he has achieved something.

Motor racing consists of something more than treading on the gas and holding the wheel. One has to use what is colloquially known as "savvy." There is a good deal of organisation behind the scenes, and signalling codes usually are adopted between the driver and the "man at the pits." One drives in accordance with developments, and may put his speed up or down during the race according to the manner of its progress. For example, a man who held a long lead, with only a few laps to go, would make a tactical mistake by trying to put up a very fast lap. It is his job to "play for safety."

On the other hand, the man who can only win by putting up some very fast laps must subject his car to the strain of excessive speed, and—to use another colloquialism—"win or burst."

THE COURSE.

The course is, I think, the fastest on which I have ever driven. There are two corners. The first of them occurs within a mile of the start, where the road turns off from the straight to what might be termed the rear of the course. I should say that the safety limit of speed for this bend is from thirty-five to forty miles an hour. Then it is "full bore" round the back road till the approach to Gough Corner. This is the most interesting part of the course. It is an excellent "hazard." The final turn into the straight is an ideal road-racing corner. It is faster than the first bend, and may be taken at anything up to about sixty miles an hour. Then we are on the straight again, with a slight incline almost to the grand stand, which has been erected on the fastest part of the course.

The road surface is magnificent. On the first day of practice I was rather worried by loose flints which were flung up by other cars. They stung rather badly. But the road has been well swept, and this rather trying handicap has been removed.

The straight, which is about two miles long, is just about the most perfect stretch on any road racecourse in the world.

It is a very fast course, indeed. We shall register some high speeds in the Saorstat Cup Race for 1,500 c.c. cars to-day, and to-morrow I shall not be surprised to see the race won at "record" speed for any road race. The organisation has been sound, and the arrangements excellent. And now we are just waiting for the starting signal. It should be a great event, and if the spectators enjoy it as much as we shall, they will certainly have a good time.

A WARNING.

I understand that very adequate arrangements have been made to keep the course clear. I hope that the public will keep out of the danger zones and give the officials and the police every facility for doing their job of work. In the excitement of watching the races there is sometimes a tendency to encroach. Do not do it. If you watch the race from the enclosures at Gough Corner, do not get too near. You never know. A car may overshoot the corner. Play for safety.

POINTS OF THE FINAL PRACTICE.

TWO NOTEWORTHY DRIVERS.

BY OUR MOTOR CORRESPONDENT.

A well-marked improvement in the performances of virtually all the drivers in the Grand Prix practice was evident in the Phœnix Park yesterday morning. This was shown in the almost complete lack of "incidents," in spite of the high average speeds recorded in every class. The competitors seemed to be fairly well "settled" in their corner work, and showed very little variation in their speeds and methods lap after lap. Most of them followed the same path round the bends, but a few have adopted quite distinctive methods.

The course was reserved for the over 1,500 c.c. cars for the first hour of the practice. During this period I occupied a point of vantage on the sandbags round the base of the Gough Monument, and studied the cornering methods of the drivers.

Two who caught the eye particularly were Thistlethwayte, on the big Mercedes, and Captain Malcolm Campbell, on the super-charged Sunbeam. The outstanding features of the driving of both were their steadiness, regularity, and obvious safety, all combined with a very fine turn of speed. When the race demands it, both will be able to clip another second or two off their times for this corner without taking undue risks.

APPROACHING THE TURN.

Campbell approached the turn on a totally different path to any other drivers, keeping well out to the left, and then sweeping across the apex in such a way as to give him a fine start up the straight. The Bentleys, as a whole, were inclined to swing a bit wide on the bend, and were not quite as steady as one would expect. But they wasted no time on it.

The Alfa-Romeos and Bugattis kept close to the inside of the bend all the way round until they emerged into the straight. Leonard Headlam (Alfa-Romeo) appeared to be the fastest of all. Time after time he swung round, the wheels skidding slightly all the way. On all the turns this driver follows the extraordinary procedure of rapidly and violently oscillating the steering wheel.

Almost equally fast, and more orthodox in his handling of the car, was the driver of F. W. Stile's Alfa-Romeo. There were several good duels on the corner. Thistlethwayte (Mercedes) and H. R. S. Birkin (super-charged Bentley) did two or three laps in close company, the former apparently trying to incite the Bentley driver to put his foot hard down and show what his car could do; but Birkin refused to be "drawn." The Lagondas put in some good steady practising, but the O.M.'s did not appear to be on the course.

LAP TIMES AND SPEEDS.

The best lap times and speeds of the cars taking part in to-morrow's race were as follows:—

OVER 3,000 C.C. CLASS.
T. THISTLETHWAYTE: 7,100 c.c. Mercedes	3 09	81.2

H. F. WOLFE: 1,950 c.c. Lagonda	4 08	61.8

THE SMALLER CARS.

When the smaller cars started their practice they appeared to take the Gough Corner noticeably faster than did the "over 1,500's." Certainly the majority were running much nearer to their safe limit of speed.

Gunnar Poppe (super-charged Austin "Seven") was easily the "star turn" of his class. He took the bend miles an hour faster than any of the other "750's," and even appeared to be a good match for some of the 1,100 c.c. class. Victor Horsman (super-charged Triumph) was also very good, his acceleration from the corner being excellent. The 1,100 c.c. cars—one might almost call them the Riley class—took things very steadily, and kept a good deal in reserve. The Rileys are certainly beautifully steady, and hold the road almost like the big cars.

Quite a lot of "liveliness" was displayed by the 1,500 c.c. cars. The Alfa-Romeos were all fast and well under control. Ramponi made one round at a particularly fast pace. S. C. H. Davis (Lea-Francis) adopted tactics very similar to those of Malcolm Campbell, approaching the corner much more widely than did the other drivers. Also he was consistently fast.

Perhaps, the most impressive of all the small car drivers was A. Bertelli (Aston-Martin). Time after time he went round, following the same path every time within inches and at an unvarying high speed. His work at the Gough Corner was unexcelled by any driver during the morning. The Aston-Martin may not have quite enough speed to run into first place to-day, but it will not be far away at the finish. It has a lap-start over all the other cars in its class, it being the only one not fitted with a super-charger. It will take the other cars a considerable time to catch it, and they will certainly not be able to take things easily or to dally by the way.

PROBABLE NON-STARTERS.

It now appears certain that the B.N.C. (1,100 c.c. class) will not start, nor will Dr. J. D. Benjafield's Alfa-Romeo, Turnbull's Aston-Martin, the Marendaz, or the Alvis in the 1,500 c.c. class. There will probably be five runners in the 750 c.c.

FIVE PEOPLE BURNED TO DEATH.

EXPRESS CRASHES INTO GOODS TRAIN.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BINGHAMPTON (N.Y.), Thursday.

Five persons who were trapped in the blazing wreckage of four coaches on the eastbound Cleveland-New York Express were burned to death. The express crashed into the rear of the tank-car of a goods train that had become derailed. Sparks from the express engine set fire to the tank, and the blaze spread rapidly.

BOMB FACTORY AT LAHORE.

CONSPIRATORS ON TRIAL.

CHARGES OF MURDER.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

LAHORE, Thursday.

The discovery of a bomb factory at Lahore was mentioned in the course of evidence given at the second hearing today of the trial of sixteen men from the Punjab, United Provinces and Bengal, who were arrested in connection with the murder of Mr. J. P. Saunders, Assistant Superintendent of Police, at Lahore on December 17 last. Mr. Saunders was shot dead while cycling home from his office, and the two youths who had killed him escaped on motor cycles after they had fatally wounded an Indian police clerk who gave chase. Charges in connection with the bomb factory and a conspiracy to murder officials are also being preferred.

A police official, Abdul Aziz, who was in charge of the investigations after a bomb had been thrown among the crowd at the Dussehra celebrations at Lahore, gave evidence to the effect that a certain Babu Singh had offered to provide him with a clue in connection with the murder of Mr. Saunders, provided that he was paid a thousand rupees. Babu Singh informed him that it was Bhagat Singh, one of the accused, who had founded the revolutionary party in the Punjab; but Babu Singh then changed his mind and refused to make any further disclosures.

Abdul Aziz ordered the arrest of Bhagat Singh, who was captured at Delhi, in April, after bombs had been thrown in the Assembly. The police then obtained information to the effect that mysterious oval-shaped hollow iron objects were being made in a certain house in Lahore by blacksmiths. A careful investigation resulted in the discovery of sulphur in the drain running from the house, and Mr. Stead, Deputy Inspector-General of Police, was informed from Delhi that bombs had been found there similar to those manufactured at Lahore. It was decided to raid the suspected house, and three young men found there were arrested, including Jaigopal, who has now turned approver. One of them, Sukhdev, who is now on trial, is alleged to have pulled out a loaded revolver, which was promptly seized by a policeman. He then, it was stated, admitted that in one of the rooms was a live bomb, and this, with eight other bombs in course of manufacture, as well as a pistol and bullets, was duly discovered.

Counsel for the prosecution informed the Court that certain chemicals exhibited in court had been found on Sukhdev, whereupon Sukhdev shouted from the dock: "Not at the time of the raid. I was just going to bathe and had no clothes on."

IMPRISONMENT FOR CONGRESS LEADER.

TWO YEARS' SENTENCE.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

DELHI, Thursday.

Dr. Satyapal, the well known Punjab Congress leader, who was charged with making a seditious speech last March, was sentenced to-day to two years' rigorous imprisonment and ordered to pay a fine of five hundred rupees or in default to serve an additional six months' rigorous imprisonment. The accused received the sentence with a smiling face. It is understood that he will shortly lodge an appeal.

Dr. Satyapal stated that he did not remember the exact words of the speech in question, but he admitted that the governing sentiment in it was one of entire dissatisfaction with the present system of government and the desire to replace it by Swaraj, the government of India by Indians free from alien domination.

VESSEL AGROUND IN YOUGHAL BAY.

FOG PREVENTS TOWAGE OPERATIONS.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

YOUGHAL, Thursday.

The Coast Line steamship, Lady Longford, ran aground in a heavy fog this morning in the bay. The vessel struck on a sandy bottom.

After an unsuccessful effort to remove her from her position, it was decided at a late hour to-night to postpone towage operations until 11 o'clock to-morrow morning. A vessel of 1,600 tons, and built in 1921, she was proceeding on her first voyage from Liverpool to Cork; but owing to the dense fog she ran aground near the Black Rock in Youghal Bay. An S.O.S. was sent out immediately, and lifeboats were sent out from Ballycotton, Knockadoon Head and Yougnal, but on arrival at the steamer were informed that their services were not required.

A DENSE FOG.

The Youghal lifeboat returned to harbour this evening, and Coxswain Foley reports that they were unable to get near, or even see, the stranded vessel owing to the falling tide and the dense fog prevailing. The rocket life-saving apparatus was brought by a roundabout journey to the beach off which she lay half a mile out, but the men could only barely see the outline of the hull when the fog would lift a bit.

In an interview with Michael Foley and Patrick Maher, of the British Legion fishing boat, who first put out to offer help, they told me that a powerful tug from Queenstown tried to tow the Lady Longford off in favourable weather conditions at 9.45 p.m., but failed to move her up to 10.30 p.m., considerably after high water. The operations were eagerly watched by crowds of people, visitors and townspeople.

NINE BOYS BURNED TO DEATH.

COLLAPSE OF FLAMING DUMMY HOUSE.

Nine Cadet boys were burned to death at a fire brigade fête in Gillingham Park, Gillingham, last night. The fête was being held on behalf of the local hospitals.

A structure in the form of a house had been built for the purpose of illustrating life-saving methods by the firemen.

The boys were inside, representing the occupants, and were to have been rescued.

Suddenly, at about half-past 10 o'clock, the dummy house caught fire and collapsed in flames, and the boys were burned to death before they could be rescued.

ONE HUNDRED AND SIX MILLION SHEEP.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

CANBERRA, Thursday.

Official figures show there are now 106 million sheep in Australia. This is the highest number that has been recorded for thirty-eight years. In 1928 the number was approximately 99 millions, and in 1927 approximately 103 millions.

BRITISH NAVAL PROGRAMME.

IMPORTANT CHANGES ANTICIPATED.

SUBMARINE ORDERS MAY BE CANCELLED.

FROM THE PRESS ASSOCIATION LOBBY CORRESPONDENT.

Important changes in the naval new construction programme are expected as the result of a revision which is now being considered by the Cabinet.

It is proposed to cut down the programme as much as possible, consistent with the provision of replacements that are found to be absolutely necessary, the Government's aim being to avoid any new construction which might hamper Ministers in future negotiations regarding disarmament.

The new construction programme for this year, already authorised by Parliament, consists of two cruisers, one flotilla leader and eight destroyers, one submarine dépôt ship and six submarines, four sloops and one gunboat.

MAY BE CANCELLED.

For all those vessels which have been allotted to private yards the orders have already been placed. These include five of the six submarines in the programme, and it is expected that the private yard submarine orders will be cancelled.

The reductions will probably also affect other items of the programme.

The revision which is now in progress contemplates the transfer from foreign stations to home dockyards of work which would minimise the disturbance of employment that might otherwise be caused.

The Prime Minister is expected to be able to make a statement in the House of Commons before the adjournment for the holidays.

THE LOST H47.

ALL OPERATIONS ABANDONED.

NAVY'S LAST RESPECTS.

The following official statement with reference to the sunk H47 was issued yesterday:—

"The Secretary of the Admiralty announces that, after full consideration of the circumstances attending the location and salvage of H47, it has been decided to abandon all further operations.

"The following facts guided their lordships in reaching this decision—the certainty that all those who are missing perished almost immediately the vessel sank; the great depth of water and risk from tides and weather in the locality where she was sunk would render the salvage of the vessel, even if an ultimate possibility, a long and anxious task, involving the divers and others engaged on the work in great and continual danger. Even if H47 were salved the damage sustained from pressure and flooding would render her unfit for further service, and salvage operations of such difficulty would not be justified."

NAVY'S TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

The Admiralty announced later that, at sunset last night H.M.S. Rodney, flying the flag of the Rear-Admiral Commanding Submarines and attended by an escort of destroyers and other craft, paid the Navy's last respects to submarine H47.

A special correspondent, describing the scene, stated:—In the gathering dusk Burial Services were held and wreaths laid on the water round the spot where the H47 was lost. H.M.S. Rodney and six destroyers dropped anchor, and the crews lined up, and Burial Services were conducted simultaneously by the chaplains of the vessels. Wreaths were laid on the water by seamen.

PETTY OFFICER'S FIGHT FOR LIFE.

Stoker Petty Officer Hicks, who was a member of the crew of the lost submarine, saved his life by clinging to the rail stay of L12, hanging on even when she dipped into the water before righting herself.

I did not realise that L12 was going down as I was clinging to it, Hicks told a friend. I thought I was being washed by a huge wave. I hung on until I was clear of the water again. At first the crew of the L12 did not know that there had been a collision with H47. They thought that their boat had hit a rock or something of the kind. "What are you doing there?" one of them said to me. I told them I was from H47, which had been sunk. They were thunderstruck, but they rushed to help me and pulled me aboard.

INQUEST ON ABLE SEAMAN.

The inquest was held at Milford Haven yesterday on Able Seaman A. E. R. Sampson, of the L12, who lost his life when that vessel collided with H47.

A verdict of death from drowning was returned.

FATAL FLYING ACCIDENTS.

AIR POCKET CAUSES TWO DEATHS.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MADRID Thursday.

Lieutenant Guerrero, who has just landed here after piloting an aeroplane from Larache, reports an unfortunate and unusual incident.

When they were over Tarifa, Spain's southernmost town, his machine ran into an air pocket, and Lieutenant Castro and Senor Quivias, who were his passengers, were thrown from their seats by the machine's sudden jump, and fell from a height of over 4,000 feet, with, of course, fatal results.

17-YEAR-OLD AIRMAN.

FATAL CRASH IN CANADA.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

TORONTO, Thursday.

Canada's youngest aviator, William Armstrong, aged 17, has been killed in the crash of an aeroplane near here.

He was in an Armstrong passenger biplane at the time, piloted by Floyd Bangart, who was seriously injured.

MAN VERSUS MACHINE.

GREAT ENDURANCE FLIGHT.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

CULVER CITY, CALIFORNIA, Thursday.

The endurance flight of Messrs. Mendell and Reinhart, which has entered on its tenth day, has developed into a contest to determine which will break down first—man or the machine. All previous endurance "records" have been left far behind, and the only thing remaining for man and the engine to fight, apart from the unconquerable factors of time and gravity, is each other.

On one side are two "tough hombres," as they have elected to call themselves, who are following the routine of four hours' sleep and four hours' flying, and are eating mostly rolls and chicken and drinking hot coffee.

On the other side is a 200 h.p. aeroplane engine, which had done 450 hours' duty before it began is record-breaking flight. Up to this evening neither man nor machine appeared to show any sign of giving way.

THE UNTIN BOWLER.

CHICAGO, Thursday.

According to intelligence received, unfavourable weather conditions at Port Burwell (on Ungava Bay) have prevented the Untin Bowler from taking off for Greenland until to-morrow.

DAIL TAKES A HOLIDAY.

HOUSE UP UNTIL OCTOBER 23.

RAPID DISPOSAL OF BUSINESS.

MANY BILLS PASSED.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

Whether it was the late sitting of Wednesday night, with a consequent tired feeling, or whether it was solely the result of the excessively hot weather outside, there was about the Dail yesterday a general atmosphere of lassitude. Deputies throughout showed little inclination to enter into serious discussion of matters that came before the House.

The Government were determined to get through outstanding business, and accordingly one found President Cosgrave, immediately after questions, rising to move the suspension of Standing Orders to allow the House to sit not later than eight o'clock this morning. He did not think that the business on the Order Paper would take more than the usual evening session, but in case that deputies felt inclined to obstruct matters he held this all night sitting in reserve. After last week's experience no one wanted another all-night vigil, and the House proceeded hastily to clean up all outstanding matters.

THE CENSORSHIP BILL.

The promoters of the Intoxicating Liquor Bill, which sought to have publichouses opened from five to eight o'clock in Cork on the 14th and 21st July, had to take the bill as amended by the Senate, and that House had deleted the opening on the 21st July from the bill.

The House also accepted the Senate's amendments to the Censorship of Publications Bill, the principal of which was that the Board of Censors should number five persons, instead of the nine fixed in the bill as it previously left the Dail. Mr. Little sought to have the figure restored to nine, but his eloquence was without avail.

The Dublin City and County (Relief of the Poor) Bill was withdrawn as the County Council had not been consulted in the matter. The House passed the Totalisator Bill as amended by the Senate.

THE FAILURE OF TRADE LOANS.

Another bill passed was the Trade Loans (Guarantee) (Amendment) Bill, which, the Minister explained, was the usual legislation introduced year by year. He had already stated that they had come to the conclusion that the Trade Loans legislation had outlived its utility, as no applications were coming in, but since his statement there had been three applications. He was informed that two were likely to be proceeded with. There was also an application from Limerick Harbour Commissioners which was likely to be proceeded with, and to meet these cases they had to carry on the original Act.

Mr. Lemass laid the blame for the break down of the Trade Loans legislation on the Advisory Councils, who had approached consideration of applications in the wrong spirit.

The House gave the first reading to the Agricultural Produce (Fresh Meat) Bill, which seeks to make provision for the regulation of the export of fresh meat and offals by the registration and control of premises used for the slaughter of animals. It also deals with the export of dead rabbits and poultry.

The long-promised bill for the protection and preservation of national monuments was also introduced, and passed the first reading.

THE CONTROL OF TRAFFIC.

On the motion for the adjournment of the Dail until the 23rd October, Mr. J. X. Murphy expressed regret that the bill to deal with control of 'buses and traffic generally had not been introduced, as promised by the Minister for Industry. Mr. Briscoe added his voice, and urged that 'bus owners should be compelled to insure against third party risks.

That the President should himself take some action to provide relief for the able-bodied unemployed in the city was urged by Mr. S. T. O'Kelly.

President Cosgrave said that legislation to deal with the 'bus and control of traffic problems would probably be introduced in the autumn. The Executive Council had the point raised by Deputy Briscoe under consideration. As to Deputy O'Kelly's point he mentioned that the Minister for Local Government had entered into some arrangement with the Poor Law authorities and charitable organisations. He himself would also see whether anything further could be done in the absence of legislation.

The House adjourned until the 23rd October, President Cosgrave intimating that, in the event of its being necessary to meet before that date to consider amendments from the Senate, it was proposed to assemble on the 31st July.

NEW YORK BANKING SCANDALS.

THOUSANDS RUINED.

NEW YORK, Thursday.

New Yorkers are somewhat perturbed by two scandals in the banking world. A fortnight ago the firm of Clarke Bros., a private bank, closed its doors after a career of eighty years in the Wall street district. Thousands of widows in poor circumstances, and clerks and typists and other depositors with small means, were ruined, and it is doubtful if twenty cents in the dollar will be recovered from the débâcle.

To-day four partners in the firm were indicted on charges of conspiracy to defraud, and of using the mails to defraud.

According to the District Attorney, the partners owe their own bank something like a million dollars.

The other affair is the failure of the City Trust Company, and the indictment of Mr. Frank H. Warder, formerly State Superintendent of Banks, who is accused of accepting large gifts of money in order to conceal the state of affairs of the Trust Company.

The findings of the special Court of Enquiry set up by Mr. Roosevelt, the Governor of New York State, were published to-day, in which Mr. Warder is described as a "faithless public servant."

As a result of the report the Governor has appointed a committee of bankers, business men and legislators to draw up a bill for the reform of the banking laws in the State of New York.

RUSSIAN FORGERS SENTENCED.

ZINOVIEFF LETTER BOAST.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Thursday.

Two Russians, Vladimir Orloff, who held a high position in pre-Revolution Russia, and Peter Paolonowski, were today sentenced by a Berlin court to four months' imprisonment for forging documents and for attempted fraud. They had tried to sell forged documents compromising Senator Borah and other prominent Americans to an American journalist in Berlin.

During their trial it was declared that Orloff had boasted that he was responsible for forging the notorious Zinovieff letter.

Both accused declared that they were fanatical haters of the Bolshevic régime.

CIVIL SERVANTS' CLAIMS.

SEQUEL TO WIGG AND COCHRANE CASE.

In the House of Commons last night the following money resolution in connection with the Irish Free State (Confirmation of Agreement) Bill was moved by Mr. Ponsonby, on behalf of the Government:—

"That it is expedient to confirm and give effect to an agreement dated the 27th day of June, 1929, and made between His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom and His Majesty's Government in the Irish Free State, for interpreting and supplementing Article 10 of the Articles of Agreement for a Treaty between Great Britain and Ireland, to which the force of law was given by the Irish Free State (Agreement) Act, 1922, and by the Constitution of the Irish Free State (Saorstat Eireann) Act, 1922, and to authorise the payment out of moneys provided by Parliament of any sums payable in pursuance of the said agreement by His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom to His Majesty's Government in the Irish Free State."

Mr. Ponsonby, Under-Secretary for the Dominions, explained that the Bill was prepared by the late Government, and the present Administration had found it ready for passage into law. The course which had been adopted by Mr. Amery commended itself to the present Secretary of State, and as concurrent legislation had been introduced in the Free State Parliament, he was bringing this resolution in at the earliest moment, in order that the compensation awarded to the transferred civil servants and the whole machinery of assessing compensation might be finally and satisfactorily settled. He recited the history of the Judicial Committee's decisions, and the agreements subsequently made, and said that as these involved modification of Article 10 of the original Agreement, it was necessary to embody it in precise terms by which statutory authority must be given. He claimed that the bill could be regarded as an agreed measure.

Mr. Amery said that the proposal could be supported without hesitation, but he asked what was the amount of payments still due.

Sir E. Hilton Young said that he did not rise to question the agreement. These people were entitled to get compensation by a decision of the High Courts, on a legal basis, from the Irish Exchequer, but, in fact, the British taxpayer had once more to find the money in order to smooth relations.

STATESMANLIKE.

Lieutenant-Commander Kenworthy said that in the last Parliament they had had demands from the Conservative benches that this very thing should be done, and now, when it was being done by a Labour Government, Sir E. Hilton Young might have been a little more generous. He thought that this was a statesmanlike agreement, which would do justice to a very deserving class and would remove future causes of friction between England and the Irish Free State.

Colonel Howard Bury welcomed the motion as carrying out the judgment of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. Great Britain had, as usual, to meet the financial burden which would enable the Irish Free State to carry out the judgment of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. These unfortunate civil servants had been presenting their claim for five years, and won their case. He wanted to know whether they had yet been paid, and when they would be paid; what was the total amount due, and what would be the liability in the future, due to the cost of living in the Irish Free State, which was a very protected country. That might cause an increase in the cost of living. (Loud Labour cheers.) He also asked what was the position of those who remained in the Civil Service and of the Lytton entrants.

Mr. W. J. Brown (Labour, Wolverhampton, W.) said that for something like seven years this small body of men and women had been striving to get, not justice, but their legal rights, and they had to fight their case right up to the Privy Council, and to spend a large sum of money in doing so. He did not think there should be an attempt to get credit out of what had been a very discreditable transaction.

Mr. Ponsonby, Dominions Under-Secretary, said that he agreed that this was not a question of asking for credit on one side of the House or the other It was a question of carrying out an engagement which had already been entered into by another Court.

Replying to Mr. Amery, Mr. Ponsonby said that this was a matter in which both sides put a different interpretation on the Article, which was finally interpreted by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. He had been asked about the number of cases, and he said in reply that they were being dealt with very rapidly. Something like 500 were outstanding. As to the question of the Lytton entrants, referred to by Mr. Brown, he assured him that this was a matter which would be entertained sympathetically, but it had not, so far, been brought before the Secretary of State.

The House agreed to the resolution.

LABOUR SUPPORTERS IN THE LORDS.

TWO NEW PEERS.

The following announcement was issued from 10 Downing street last night:—

"The King has been pleased to approve that the dignity of a Barony of the United Kingdom be conferred upon Sir William Warrender Mackenzie, G.B.E., K.C., and upon Sir George Croydon Marks, C.B.E."

Sir George Croydon Marks, who is Chairman of the Columbia Gramophone Company, sat as Liberal M.P. for North Cornwall from 1906 to 1924. He recently announced himself as a supporter of the present Labour Government.

SIR WILLIAM MACKENZIE.

Sir William Warrender Mackenzie was born in 1860. He has acted as chairman and member of numerous industrial committees, being especially active in this direction during the war.

COURTAULDS INTERIM

REDUCED TO FOUR PER CENT.

Courtaulds have declared an interim dividend of 4 per cent., free of tax, as compared with 5 per cent (1s. per share) this time last year, on the doubled capital.

ENGLISH PRAYER-BOOK CONTROVERSY.

ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY'S RESOLUTION PASSED.

The Lower House of Convocation of Canterbury, meeting in London yesterday, passed a resolution by 96 votes to 54 approving the Prayer-book resolution moved by the Archbishop of Canterbury in the Upper House, authorising through administrative action the use of the Prayer-book of 1928, which failed to secure Parliamentary sanction.

The Upper House agreed to send the resolution, with three minor amendments, to the Lower House, and the latter approved the resolution, subject to the omission of the words, "clear and convincing."

LATE NEWS.

BRITAIN AND RUSSIA.

NEW FOREIGN PROJECT

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THE TIMES.

The Parliamentary Correspondent of The Times to-day writes:—It is understood that the Government hope to take during the coming week the first step towards restoring relations with Soviet Russia by sending a communication to the Russian Government. The form of the communication is now under consideration, but it is hoped that it will be of such a character that before the end of this month a representative of the Soviet Government will come to London in order that there may be direct discussions on the issues outstanding between the two countries. If a satisfactory understanding can be arrived at as the result of such a meeting, the Government will then take the necessary steps to put the normal machinery of diplomatic relations into operation.

THE REPARATIONS CONFERENCE.

A number of other matters of foreign policy have also been considered by the Cabinet at its recent meetings. Disappointment is expressed in Ministerial circles at the fact that France has not yet seen her way to agree to the holding of the Reparations Conference in London, as the British Government suggested. The date tentatively arranged for the opening of the Conference is August 6th, and another message is being sent to the French Government expressing the hope that they will agree to the Conference being held in London, in view of the fact that all the other nations concerned are willing. It is urged that the Conference is likely to last for at least three or four weeks, and that it is very inconvenient for Ministers in a new Government to be away from their own capital for so long. It is pointed out, further, that this Conference will be followed by the meeting of the Council of the League of Nations and the Assembly of the League, during which time the Foreign Secretary and other Ministers will have to be away from London. This is one of the reasons why the British Government cling tenaciously to the hope that the Reparations Conference will be held in London.

THE OCCUPATION OF THE RHINELAND.

The question of the evacuation of the Rhineland will certainly be raised at the Conference. It has already been stated in the House of Commons that the British Government is under no pledge to keep British troops there until the other Allied Governments also decide to withdraw, but it is stated in official circles that the Government will be keenly disappointed if a public declaration is not made in the early days of the conference that Great Britain, France and Belgium have given the instruction that evacuation of the Rhineland is to be proceeded with as speedily as the technical arrangements will allow.

The Government has already been in communication with the Dominions and with the Government of India on the question of signing the optional clause. All the replies have not yet beeen received, but Canada has expressed its willingness to sign without reservation. But it is realised that other Dominions may desire that certain reservations should be made. In view of the desire for complete unanimity on the subject, it is probable that the clause will eventually be signed, with one or two reservations, which would not have been included if this country had decided to act on its own account.

PREFERENTIAL TARIFFS.

DOMINIONS DISTURBED.

The Daily Telegraph to-day says:—It is by this time but too evident that Mr. Snowden's express objection to preferential tariffs in principle, an objection which he declares to be entertained by the Government as a whole, and his announced intention of "sweeping away" these import duties in respect of which preference is of most value to the rest of the Empire, has seriously disturbed the public mind in each of the Dominions. Even a slight knowledge of the character of public feeling in the Empire overseas would have warned Mr. Snowden that the institution of preference is not regarded solely as a matter of business. It is looked upon as a manifestation of sympathy and the desire for a more intimate inter-imperial relationship.

THE PRAYER-BOOK.

The Daily News and Westminster Gazette to-day says:—The decision of the Convocation to authorise the use of the Prayer-book of 1928 seems to us, in the interests of the Church itself, very unfortunate.

The bishops have now manœuvred themselves into an impossible position. They are trying to enforce the use of the Prayer-book which the High Court of Parliament explicitly on two separate occasions refused to sanction. And they are doing this on the ground that they cannot enforce the legally approved Prayer-book. But how then can they expect to enforce one undoubtedly illegal?

MR. MACDONALD AND RUSSIA.

The Morning Post to-day says:—Before he became Prime Minister Mr. Macdonald promised to secure the recognition of Russia, "by hook or by crook," which seems to be how he is doing it. At any rate, inquisitive Conservatives were quite unable to extract from him any promise either to submit the correspondence with the Dominions on the subject or the matter itself to the House of Commons before it is concluded. Many as have been Mr. Macdonald's tributes to the principal of "public covenants, publicly arrived at," this transaction is to be carried through under the darkness of secret diplomacy. This is one of those affairs for which the Prime Minister wants complete freedom from the inconvenient intrusions of the House of Commons.

SIGNOR MUSSOLINI.

PROPOSED VISIT TO LONDON DENIED.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ROME, Thursday.

In view of certain reports that have reached Rome from abroad, the Minister for Foreign Affairs denied absolutely that Signor Mussolini has any intention of visiting London, and adds that at present the Prime Minister has no intention of leaving Italy.

THE LATE CAPTAIN POWER.

FUNERAL AT WEXFORD.

Impressive scenes marked the funeral of Captain J. Power, Chief of the Dublin Fire Brigade, at Grange Cemetery, County Wexford, yesterday. A guard of honour, comprised of members of the City Fire Brigade, walked beside the coffin, which was borne on a fire engine. The guard was under Station Officer Howard, and amongst those who travelled from Dublin were Captain White, Rathmines Fire Station, and Mr. P. T. Daly, who delivered an oration at the graveside.

The chief mourners were Mrs. Power (widow), Thomas Power, James and Laurence Tocher, Miss B. Tocher, John Renhan and John Barry.

PERSIA RECOGNISES IRAK.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

GENEVA Thursday.

The Secretary-General has communicated, for the information of the Council of the League of Nations States members and the Mandates Commission, a Note, dated June 11th, 1929, in which the Persian Government announced that it recognised the Irak Government on April 25.

It is added that direct relations were thus inaugurated between the two Governments, which should permit the settlement shortly of all questions outstanding between Persia and Irak.

M. POINCARE ON DEBTS PROBLEM.

YOUNG PLAN AS NEW FACTOR.

MEETING PLACE OF THE POWERS.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Thursday.

M. Poincaré opened the great debate on the debt agreements this afternoon before a packed Chamber. He first drew a distinction between the debts themselves and the debt agreements. The debts, he said, had long been admitted and ratified. The question before the House was the ratification of the agreements which reduced the debts. The absence of a safeguard in the agreements was regrettable, but all the French Government's efforts during the past three years to obtain it had met with a categorical refusal. For that matter no other country had secured it.

THE YOUNG PLAN.

Now there was a new factor, the Young plan, which created a de facto, if not de jure, inseparable relationship between reparations and inter-Allied debts. If the Young plan were accepted by the Governments and brought into force, Germany's payments would go to America through the intermediary of the International Bank.

He hoped the Young plan would be applied, but it could not be if there were opposition in America and Great Britain.

If France refused to ratify the debt agreement it would cause great surprise in Great Britain, in particular, and Mr. Snowden had clearly indicated what would be the British Government's demands in such a case. Moreover, the Germans would be justified in arguing that if France refused to subscribe to long-term engagements they would be entitled to do the same as regards reparations.

OPPOSED TO RESERVATIONS.

M. Poincaré said he was opposed to the inclusion of reservations in the act of ratification. The British and American Governments had long ago informed France that they were not inclined to accept reservations.

M. Poincaré proceeded to trace a long historical survey of the debt negotiations between France and America. Here he was going over old ground, as he had already exhausted the subject in committee.

In his recital of the repeated failures of successive French Envoys to obtain better terms, M. Poincaré was dispassionate and objective. He uttered no complaint, avoided criticism, and simply observed: "In spite of the profound and indestructible friendship between the two Republics, we do not think or feel about everything in the same way."

M. Poincaré's speech this afternoon lasted three and a half hours. He has more in store. He will deliver the second instalment to-morrow morning.

The debate itself is not likely to finish until the end of next week. There is a feast of oratory in prospect, and a disconcerting series of motions, resolutions, counter-motions, and counter-resolutions to be disposed of.

CONFERENCE VENUE.

ANOTHER APPEAL TO FRANCE.

The Press Association understands that the conference of the Powers to discuss the Young reparations plan will open on August 6th, and that another effort will be made by Britain to induce the French Government to waive its objection to London as the meeting place.

There is reason to believe that all the other countries concerned agree on the suitability of London.

The British Government's insistence upon a London conference is because it would be inconvenient for Ministers in such a recently formed Administration to leave this country at the present time.

The conference will probably take about a month, or even more, and it is to be followed by the meetings of the League of Nations. It is possible that those Ministers who would have to attend both sets of meetings would be out of England and away from their departments for at least eight or nine weeks.

£60,000 BELFAST FIRE.

BELFAST, Thursday.

Damage estimated at over £60,000 was caused by a fire this afternoon at the Prince's Mills, Prince's Dock, Belfast, belonging to Messrs. James Clow and Co. Fortunately, there was no loss of life, as all the workers were able to make their escape, and some of them took part in the efforts to extinguish the flames.

The entire Fire Brigade in Belfast turned out, and for about an hour twelve lines of hose were played upon the burning building.

The fire was first discovered about two o'clock, just as the staff was about to resume after the dinner hour. It was not learned how the fire originated; but the manager expressed the view that it may have started in the kilns, where the flour was dried. As soon as the smoke was seen the Brigade was summoned. The Brigade first directed their attention to preventing the fire spreading to adjoining buildings, one of which is a Roman Catholic church.

ROYAL EXILES IN ROME.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ROME, Thursday.

Ex-King Amanullah, his Queen, family and suite have arrived in Rome, having travelled by easy stages from Marseilles, where they landed after their voyage from India.

Pilot Officer R. M. Swaine, of Netheravon, Wilts, was killed yesterday afternoon when his machine crashed in a field on the outskirts of Trowbridge.

RAILWAY FARES IN THE FREE STATE.

"THINGS ARE IN A STATE OF FLUX."

The Free State Railway Tribunal had before it yesterday consideration of the question of passenger fares.

Mr. Phelps, K.C., who appeared for the Great Southern Railways Company, explained that they wanted to consider the standard charges that would be applicable. Mr. Elliott had given evidence on the point, and he did not propose to go into the question of how the fares were arrived at. He was going to ask Mr. Floyd to give evidence on the point that they were asking the Tribunal to adopt another scale that they had already discussed. The Tribunal should recognise the fact that, at the present time, things with reference to passenger fares were in a state of flux. Owing to 'bus competition and one thing and another they could not do better at the present time, unless there was some adjustment in the matter. They could only suggest, in the interests of the company, that they adopt the scale they were putting forward. The company's officers were living in great hope that in a short time they would have to deal with the matter again. The estimate they put in for passenger traffic was an extraordinarily optimistic one, and the figures, he regretted to say, showed that they were even more optimistic than they thought they were. The figures that appeared in the abstracts for 1928 showed a falling-off of £60,000 below the previous year's return, and the quarter up till last Friday, July 5th, for the half-year had shown a decrease of something like £67,000 below the figures of last year.

Mr. P. J. Floyd, representing the passenger department of the Great Southern Railways, in evidence, said that the suggested change was a reasonable alternative for the one at present in print. A great deal of traffic was carried at exceptionally low fares, and there was no clean, guiding line beyond the circumstances involved. Some time ago only first and second class passengers were carried on the mail trains and then third class traffic was introduced. The single journey was made under the fixed Parliamentary fare, but there was a slight increase on the return portion of the ticket.

The company sought now to have the old Parliamentary fare raised. The suggested actual rise was from 1.75 to 1.85 per mile. The company was bound to run trains at certain specified times under contract to the Post Office. Since the amalgamation the company had been pressed to improve the mail service to and from the South of Ireland. People in Cork complained that there was very little time for dealing with cross-Channel correspondence on the same day. Accordingly the witness revised the whole time-table, and accelerated the "up" train by fifteen minutes and maintained the "down" schedule, adding two additional stops—at Kildare and Thurles. Those trains ran at a very high speed, and he must keep the weight of the trains within a limit. Otherwise the service would be an expensive one.

ROAD COMPETITION.

Continuing, Mr. Floyd said that when evidence was given in connection with the proportion of standard revenue to be carried on passenger traffic and other scales, road competition had not reached the very serious proportions existing to-day, and it was regretted that passenger revenue had become sadly depleted owing to the inroads made by private motor and 'bus, further accentuated by the shortage of money, and the emigration of certain classes from the Free State.

It was evident that with competition such as existed the company cannot hope to reach the "A" year revenue mentioned, which, nevertheless, it was entitled to obtain under the Act to enable it to meet its obligations. The company would have desired to be in a position to help the Tribunal, but with the alteration in 'bus taxation from the 1st July, and the new arrangements alluded to the other day with the Irish Omnibus Company, it would be agreed that time must elapse before information would be available to the company on which it could base conclusions, and suggest a policy which would in turn be beneficial to the Tribunal.

The Railway company asked the Tribunal to postpone action on the passenger heading until October next, when certain proposals the company were considering would create a position that would help the Tribunal.

The Tribunal concurred with the suggestion of the company, and adjourned till next Monday morning.

RACING MOTOR CAR AND CART COLLIDE.

A distressing accident occurred on the quay at Kingsbridge, Dublin, yesterday afternoon, when one of the racing cars entered for the International Grand Prix Motor Races in the Phœnix Park collided with a pony cart, with the result that a boy of fourteen years who was seated in the back of the cart was pitched over the parapet of the bridge into the Liffey and drowned.

The victim of the accident was Patrick Devine, of 50 Smithfield. It is stated that he made an effort to swim to safety, but sank before assistance could be rendered. The accident attracted a large crowd, which remained to watch dragging operations that were started soon afterwards.

The pony cart was driven by James Furlong, aged about eighteen years, who was a friend of Devine and lived at the same address. Furlong was flung on to the footway, but was not injured.

The racing car was the Bugatti (No. 12), which was to be driven by Mr. Basil Eyston in to-morrow's race. Mr. Eyston was at the wheel, and was accompanied by Mr. George Philipps, of 119 Piccadilly, London, and Mr. Hubert Hapworth, of 37 Parson's Green, London. He had gone to the dépôt in the Park, where his car passed the examination and weighing-in, and was returning to the city, between one and two o'clock, when the collision occurred. The pony cart was going in the opposite direction.

It is stated that just before the accident happened a water cart went over the bridge. Mr. Eyston's car skidded and ran into the pony cart, which was overturned.

Mr. Eyston pulled up immediately, and he and his passengers rendered whatever assistance they could. After the accident Mr. Eyston was taken to the Kilmainham Civic Guard station, where a charge was preferred against him. He was let out on bail, and returned to the Royal Hibernian Hotel, where he has been staying since he arrived in Dublin. This morning he will be brought before a District Justice.

The body was recovered last night at about 8.30 by a Sea Scout, Thomas Drennock, of 4 Mount Pleasant avenue, Rathmines, who dived from a boat near the bridge.

The dead boy had been a Sea Scout for a number of years.

Mr. Eyston, it appears, was to drive a Riley in to-day's race, and the Bugatti to-morrow. Yesterday evening, however, Mr. Boydell, an official of the Royal Irish Automobile Club, informed an Irish Times reporter that he would not now compete on either day. The Bugatti involved in the accident escaped with only slight damage, and will be driven in to-morrow's race by another member of the Bugatti team.

TO-DAY'S RACE.

THE ENTRANTS AND CARS.

By Our Special Correspondent.

After more than six months of preparation, and three days of practice trials, the motor contests for the Irish International Grand Prix begin with the race for the small cars up to 1,500 c.c. in the Phœnix Park to-day.

The race starts at 1.30 p.m., and it is expected to last for about four and a half hours. It is calculated that the winner should pass the post within four hours of the start.

A thrilling race is promised, and many exciting trials of speed will be witnessed. Both corners will supply their quota of thrills.

Twenty-three cars will participate in the event, five of the original entries having dropped out from one cause or another. The cars that will not compete are Mr. J. B. Johnson's B.N.C., Mr. Hugh Cogan's Alvis, Mr. D. M. K. Marendaz's Marendaz Special, Mr P. H. Turnbull's Aston Martin, and Dr. J. D. Benjafield's Alfa Romeo. These, however, do not affect the race.

YESTERDAY'S PRACTICE.

Thirty-nine cars took part in the practice trials yesterday morning, but all the drivers were engaged in getting used to the course rather than trying to put up lap "records." The lap work of all was consistent and careful and without incident. The only unusual occurrence was when a deer jumped the barrier on the great straight and stopped in the middle of the road in front of an approaching Bentley. The deer stood on the road, as if fascinated by the car, and the driver was compelled to apply his brakes and come to a stop. No sooner had he done so than the deer ran away and rejumped the barrier, to gain the shelter of the trees.

There was a crowd of spectators, which must have numbered something like 2,000.

Twenty-one of the small cars took part in the practice. The average speeds maintained were very high, but no further lap "records" were established.

Eighteen of the heavy cars turned out, and these maintained speeds averaging from 75 to 81 miles an hour. Captain Malcolm Campbell's Sunbeam did its best lap-speed of the practices at 78.2 miles an hour, and Mr. Glen Kidston's six-cylindered Bentley did the lap at a speed of about 80 miles an hour.

Mr. T. Thistlethwayte took an Irish Times representative round for several laps on his big Mercedes. His first impression was of the astounding speeds that can be attained on the course, and the second was of Mr. Thistlethwayte's great skill as driver. Having been out on a Riley, a Lea-Francis, and in Captain Campbell's Sunbeam, the Irish Times representative found that of the four, the Mercedes, while recording the highest speeds by more than forty miles an hour, appeared to be going slowest. This effect was the result of the wonderful construction of the car and engine. Mr. Thistlethwayte covered the fastest lap of the day with the Irish Times representative in the passenger seat; he was travelling over the straight at a speed of more than 125 miles an hour.

All the big cars that were presented for the examination and weighing in at the Dépôt yesterday go through.

TELEPHONE FACILITIES.

The Dublin Post Office Telephone Department has made special arrangements to provide telephone facilities in the Phœnix Park in connection with the Grand Prix motor races to-day and to-morrow.

Mr. O'C. J. Cassidy, traffic superintendent of telephone services, yesterday told an Irish Times representative that three public call offices, available for local and trunk calls, have been erected, and are situated within fifteen or twenty yards of the rear of the grand stand, and that an officer will be in attendance to take charge of them. These, Mr. Cassidy said, will be adequate to meet any demand that may be made for telephone facilities, either for the Press or the public.

The telephone boxes will be indicated by the word "Telephone," and will be so prominent as to be easily discerned by any person to desires to use them.

THE GENERAL POST OFFICE.

RESTORED BUILDING RE-OPENED.

PRESIDENT COSGRAVE'S ADDRESS.

The reconstructed General Post Office in Sackville street, Dublin, was formally opened yesterday by President Cosgrave in the presence of a large gathering, which included virtually all members of the Executive Council, the Chief Justice, members of the Dail and Senate, heads of the various departments of State, and representatives of the professions, commerce, administrative and business life of the city.

The ceremony took place at noon, and before that a detachment of soldiers of the Free State Army took up position in open formation in front of the Post Office building. A big crowd gathered in the space between Abbey and Henry streets, and traffic was suspended. When President Cosgrave arrived "The Soldier's Song" was played by the Free State Army Band.

THEN AND NOW.

STAFF'S TASK IN NEW BUILDING.

Speaking from a platform in front of the building, President Cosgrave, in a brief speech, recalled the changes that had taken place in postal services since the General Post Office was erected over a hundred years ago. In those days there were no wireless, telegraphs, telephones, steamships or trains. It cost 1s. 6d. to send a letter to the Isle of Man, 2s. 7d. to send one to the United States, and its delivery was uncertain. To-day two pennies would cover the cost of sending a letter half way round the world, and non-delivery was almost an impossible eventuality.

In the new building the staff would be called on to handle three hundred million written communications a year, in addition to telegraphic and telephonic business. The building which they now were re-opening, said President Cosgrave, was designed by Francis Johnston, who, after Gandon, was the most outstanding architect of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. Under his direction many of the finest edifices which adorn Dublin's streets were built. The General Post Office, with its portico eighty feet long; its six massive pillars, the three splendid figures surmounting the pediment—Hibernia, with spear and shield; Mercury, with caduceus and purse; Fidelity, with finger on lip and key in hand—was numbered amongst the great buildings of which Dublin was proud. It was fortunate that the stirring events which took place in the building left the old main frontage comparatively uninjured, and enabled the graceful outlines of the architect to be maintained as the key to the reconstruction.

IRISH MATERIALS.

In the restoration of the building every opportunity had been taken to use materials of Irish production. The wall linings are of sandstone from Donegal, and marble from Kilkenny, Cork and Connemara. The metal work—bronze and iron—was all done in Dublin; the stone work and carving were done by local stone cutters and carvers; the teak and mahogany fittings were the work of Dublin firms; the plastering, which gave much of the architectural effect, was worked in place in the time-honoured manner of this city.

Proceeding, Mr. Cosgrave said that this was an eventful occasion. It was a link between the present and the historic past. Just a little over thirteen years ago there arrived before those portals a small band of brave men, nurtured in the teachings and the yearnings of those bygone generations, who came here to assert, in the name of those generations and in the name of their contemporaries, the right of this nation to independence.

EASTER MONDAY, 1916.

On Easter Monday of 1916 at this very hour they came here and took possession of this building—a handful of men against the might of an Empire—but strong in spirit and faithful unto death. The flag which would be hoisted that day on the restored building is the same flag that was hoisted on that occasion in the presence of Clarke, Pearse, Connolly, McDermott, O'Rahilly, Kent and McDonagh; the hand that hoisted it was the hand of one of their comrades who was then present.

That day and that hour had other anniversary associations. On that day and at that hour eight years ago the truce which marked the conclusion of hostilities between this country and Great Britain became operative. That occasion marked the beginning of a new era. It closed a struggle which had lasted seven centuries and had cost this country countless lives and incalculable material loss.

THE NEW ORDER.

War had now given way to peace, construction had replaced destruction. The restoration of that building was symbolical of the new order. At different times three of Dublin's greatest buildings were destroyed through warlike action. The Customs House had been rebuilt; the General Post Office had now risen from its ashes; in a very short space of time the Four Courts would be completely restored.

This building was the first to suffer. On the occasion of its re-opening they might well recall with gratitude and with pride the sacrifices which have enabled it to be re-opened for public use by the head of an Irish executive, in the presence of members of an Irish Parliament, surrounded by representatives of the State's new institutions. They might well be encouraged by the reflection that as that building had come back to them renewed and beautiful, so, too, was the Irish nation progressing in the path of prosperity and peace. "Let the flag be hoisted," concluded the President.

FREE STATE FLAG HOISTED.

The Free State flag was then run to the top of the flag staff, and as the tricolour broke to the breeze it was received with the general salute from Free State Army buglers. Mr. G. O'Sullivan, T.D. for County Dublin, performed the ceremony of hoisting the flag—a function he also performed in 1916, when the Republicans entered the Post Office. He also hauled down the flag there when the surrender took place.

President Cosgrave then formally opened the door of the Post Office, and entered the building, where he was the first to purchase a stamp, post a letter, send a telegram, and hold a telephone conversation. The office was then opened for public business, and large numbers of those present purchased stamps, posted letters, and transacted other business.

THE ATTENDANCE.

Amongst those present were:—Mr. E. Blythe, Free State Minister for Finance, and Mrs. Blythe; Mr. FitzGerald-Kenney, Free State Minister for Justice; Mr. D. Fitzgerald, Free State Minister for Defence; Mr. Fionan Lynch, Free State Minister for Lands and Fisheries; Professor O'Sullivan, Free State Minister for Education; Mr. Mulcahy, Free State Minister for Local Government, and Mrs. Mulcahy; Mr. M. R. Heffernan, Parliamentary Secretary, Free State Department of Posts and Telegraphs; Mr. S. Burke, Parliamentary Secretary, Free State Department of Finance; Mr. S. Dolan, Parliamentary Secretary, Free State Department of Industry and Commerce; Mr. E. J. Duggan, Parliamentary Secretary to President Cosgrave; Professor M. Hayes, Ceann Comhairle; Senator T. W. Bennett, Chairman of the Senate; Mr. D. O'Sullivan, Clerk, and Mr. P. Coffey, Assistant Clerk; Mr. D. O'Hegarty, Secretary, Free State Executive Council; Chief Justice Kennedy.

The following Deputies and Senators were present:—W. Davin, W. P. Aird, G. Wolfe, J. J. Dwyer, J. J. Byrne, M. Jordan, T. Mullins, M. Henry, J. O'Sullivan, B. O'Connor, P. S. Doyle, T. Sheehy, J. IRISH COURSES FOR TEACHERS.

PROPOSED REVISED REGULATIONS.

Circulars are being issued by the Department of Education in Dublin giving notice as to the qualifications in Irish which will be required for national teachers in future.

As under the previous regulations, a bilingual certificate will be required for any appointment in the Gaeltacht, and what is known as an ordinary certificate to teach Irish for new appointments in English-speaking districts.

Candidates for appointment as principal teacher of a school of 95 pupils or over, or as vice-principal teachers, must, except in the case of teachers over 37 years of age, have a bilingual certificate; those over 37 years of age must have at least an ordinary certificate in Irish.

TEACHERS TRAINED OUTSIDE.

Any teachers trained outside the Saorstat who may be admitted to the service must have at least an ordinary certificate on admission, and must have at least a bilingual certificate before their probation can be passed.

Teachers of infants' schools and infants' departments must, in addition to at least an ordinary certificate in Irish, have oral qualifications to give bilingual instruction. After 1st July, 1931, a bilingual certificate must be obtained before a newly trained teacher's probation is passed.

In the case of teachers in Irish-speaking districts, no increments of salary can, unless in exceptional circumstances, be granted after 30th June, 1931, until the teacher obtains a certificate of competency to give bilingual instruction. In English-speaking districts, teachers under 37 years of age will require to have obtained an ordinary certificate before July, 1931, and a bilingual certificate before July, 1934, in order to warrant the granting of increments.

The award of special bonuses in future will be made conditional on the obtaining of a bilingual certificate.

EXTRA VACATION FOR TEACHERS.

Although the special courses in Irish arranged by the Department of Education in recent years have been discontinued, it is understood that the Irish Colleges in the Gaeltacht are continuing to function and are holding special courses for teachers.

In order to facilitate teachers who desire to spend a portion of their vacation in improving their knowledge of Irish, it has been arranged that extra vacation (either extra school vacation or extra personal vacation), mainly on the lines in operation last year, will be available for those who attend approved college courses.

In the case of teachers with a bilingual or higher certificate, private study and association with the people of the district may, with the special permission of the Department, be substituted for attendance at an Irish college.

A NECESSARY QUALIFICATION.

A period of approximately three weeks' attendance at a college or sojourn in the Gaeltacht, as the case may be, will qualify for the extra vacation. As provided in last year's regulations, provision is also made for the closing of the schools where the number of teachers from any school in attendance at the courses renders this necessary.

LEARNING TO LIVE IN TWO WORLDS.

DR. LIVINGSTONE'S VIEWS.

Speaking at the prize distribution in the Armagh Royal School yesterday, the Vice-Chancellor of Queen's University, Belfast (Dr. R. W. Livingstone) asked: "Why do we go to school?" and in reply suggested that they went in order to learn to live in two worlds. If school failed to teach them to live in both of these worlds it was a failure. "The first world is the world of every-day life," he proceeded. "You go to school in order to learn how to lead successfully whatever existence is going to be your lot—whether you are going to be farmers, or lawyers, or ministers, or doctors; whether you are going to manage a school or a shop or a business. The most important things one begins to learn at school are to express oneself clearly, to see the weak and the strong points in an argument, to distinguish in any subject what is important from what is unimportant, to get into the habit of opening one's mind to new ideas, to learn how to get knowledge and how to use it. If you have begun to learn these lessons, you have begun to be educated. If you have not your real education has not begun.

EVERY DAY LIFE.

"What is the second world which I had in mind? It is a less obvious world: many people never enter it at all. And yet our lives lose immensely in value, in happiness, in success, if we do not enter it, or if we let it fade out of our view.

"Outside our life is another life, of which we are a part—the life of the world, of the human race. Ours began—for the eldest of us here—perhaps seventy years ago. That other life began, perhaps, 20,000 years ago. And though we may have grown and developed since we were born, it has grown and developed far more and far more wonderfully; for it has developed from a race of beings hardly distinguishable from monkeys into a race which St. Paul, Shakespeare, Wesley, Darwin, and Enistein are members.

HISTORY.

"What do I mean by living in this world? I mean reading history, and realising that one reads it in order to know the story of how mankind has risen from savagery to civilisation, and how they did it; meeting its great men, seeing what they did, and how they did it—Caesar, St. Paul, St. Francis, Cromwell, Wesley, Napoleon. I mean reading literature, and trying to see how its writers, men like ourselves, felt and thought about the world in which we, too, live. That is what I mean by living in this second world."

In conclusion, Dr. Livingstone said: "Certainly, it is my own conviction that the main business of education is not passing examinations or acquiring knowledge, though both of these are parts of it, but learning how to live with success in the world of our own lives, without losing sight of that larger world outside; and that by remembering this we shall make the education of our children better, and the task of our schools and their headmasters and teachers easier."

THE OLD ARMACHIAN SOCIETY.

The Headmaster (Mr. W. Hutchings, M.A.) said that it was encouraging to find so many old boys accepting the invitation to be present that day, many of them busy men and from various parts of the country. He wanted to say a word about the Old Armachian Society. Considering the short time that it had been in existence, he believed that it had made good progress; but not so good that it could not be better. An Old Boys' Society could be a powerful institution, with immense opportunities for helping the school, and he appealed to those old boys who had held aloof from the society to do so no longer.

The prizes were then distributed by Dr. Livingstone, who, on behalf of the School Board and all present, was cordially thanked by the Ven. the Archdeacon of Armagh. Dr. Livingstone replied, and the proceedings concluded with the National Anthem.

LAW REPORTS.

CORK WOMAN'S ESTATE.

VERDICT FOR CLERGYMAN.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE SULLIVAN AND A JURY.)

The hearing of the suit brought by the Rev. Patrick James Collins (known in religion as Father Ignatius), of The Friary, Kilkenny, against Mr. Jeremiah Collins, of Carrigmahon, Monkstown, Co. Cork, was concluded. The plaintiff, as executor, sought to establish the last will, dated 19th October, 1927, of his mother, Mrs. Honora Collins, who died on 7th April, 1928. The defendant, who is the widower of the testatrix and father of the plaintiff, contested the will on the three usual statutory grounds, and, in addition, pleaded undue influence on the part of the plaintiff. This allegation the plaintiff denied.

It was stated that the value of the estate was sworn for probate purposes at £1,560. The testatrix left everything for the benefit of Mrs. Kerin, one of her daughters, and Mrs. Kerin's infant son, and appointed the plaintiff trustee.

Mr. Phelps, K.C., Mr. FitzGerald, K.C., and Mr. Vaughan Wilson (instructed by Mr. Michael Murphy) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Rearden, K.C., and Mr. Binchy (instructed by Messrs. Barry C. Galvin and Son) for the defendant.

Mr. Jeremiah Collins, the defendant, was examined by Mr. Binchy, and stated that his relations with his wife always had been of the best. Some years before his wife's death she and he agreed each to make a will. He made a will leaving all that he might die possessed of to his wife, to be divided between her two daughters after her death. He made Father Ignatius his executor. He knew nothing about his wife's will of 19th October, 1927, until his wife was dead for fifteen days. On 25th May, 1928, Mr. Galvin, his solicitor, wrote, on his instructions, consenting to probate of his wife's will, but the reason why he consented was that he thought that the will was the old will that his wife made, or was to make, according to the mutual agreement.

Cross-examined by Mr. FitzGerald, he said that when his wife was under the charge of Dr. Charles in the Hume street home, Dublin, he might have written to her saying that if she did not come home at once he would close the place and dismiss the servants. He had been given to understand that his wife was a perfect cure, but he did not consult Dr. Charles as to whether she should leave or not, and never saw Dr. Charles at all.

Asked if he was aware of any reason why his wife would have omitted his name from her testamentary dispositions other than the influence of his son, he said that he was not.

Mr. FitzGerald—Who is the young lady writing to you from Finsbury Park, London, as "My dear Cap" and signing herself "Kit"? This letter was found in your wife's handbag after her death.

Witness—I do not know any Kit in London. I never got a letter from any lady in London.

Mr. FitzGerald—This letter was found in your wife's handbag after her death. You say that you know nothing about it?—I never saw it.

The foreman of the jury asked was there any date on the letter.

Mr. FitzGerald said that the letter was undated.

Witness—The whole thing is a concoction.

Mr. FitzGerald—By whom?

Witness—By whoever wrote it.

Mr. Justice Sullivan—There has been no proof that this letter ever reached this gentleman. He says he never got it, and there is no evidence of it.

Two other witnesses having been examined, the case for the defendant closed.

Mr. Justice Sullivan said that he would rule that there was no evidence of undue influence in this case, and he would leave the three usual issues to the jury.

The jury, after an absence of eight minutes, found in favour of the will.

Mr. Justice Sullivan accordingly admitted the will to probate.

Mr. Rearden said that, having regard to the circumstances of the case, the defendant should be declared entitled to his costs out of the estate.

Mr. Phelps opposed this, and submitted that costs should be given against the defendant.

Mr. Justice Sullivan said that he was not impressed with the bona fides of the opposition to this will at all. If he thought that this was a case in which there was any bona fide doubt about the validity of the will he would take a different view, but he did not believe that this was a bona fide contest by the defendant as to the validity of this will, and he did not want to say any more than that. He would not allow the defendant his costs out of the estate, but he would not give costs against him.

CROKER WILL CASE.

In the case of Cremin v. Croker, an application was made on behalf of the defendant, Mrs. Bula Croker, for an order extending the time for lodging the necessary documents in appealing from the judgment of Mr. Justice O'Byrne in favour of the plaintiff at the trial before him and a jury in the High Court.

The action had been brought by Mrs. Fanny Cremin, Ballytore, Co. Kildare, who, it appeared, had been in the employment of the Croker family, to establish a codicil to the will of the late Mr. Richard Croker, under which she was a beneficiary to the extent of £5,000. The defence was that the codicil in question had been revoked in the lifetime of the deceased testator. The finding of the jury was that the codicil had not been revoked, and the trial judge admitted the codicil to probate.

Mr. Lynch, K.C., with whom were Mr. FitzGerald, K.C., and Mr. McGuckin (instructed by Mr. H. B. O'Hanlon), in making the application on behalf of Mrs. Croker, admitted that they had been in default with regard to lodging the necessary documents.

Mr. Wood, K.C., who, with Mr. H. Hamilton, K.C., and Mr. T. Conolly (instructed by Messrs. Miley and Miley), appeared for the plaintiff, referring to the stringency of the rules of court relating to the matter, pointed out that two months had elapsed since the conclusion of the trial, and that nothing had been done by the defendant, with regard to the appeal during that period.

The Court made an order extending the time to fourteen days.

TWO DEPOSIT RECEIPTS.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE JOHNSTON.)

In the matter of the estate of John Patrick Keenan, late of Longford House, 240 Merrion road, Co. Dublin, ex-member of the Royal Irish Constabulary, deceased—Florence Lynch, plaintiff, and the Attorney-General, defendant—the plaintiff, sister-in-law of the deceased man, who had resided with her at the address mentioned, claimed a declaration that she was entitled to the sum of £184 on deposit receipt, together with current interest, at the Ulster Bank, College Green, Dublin, and to the sum of £281 on deposit receipt, together with current interest, in the Post Office Savings Bank, London, both by way of donatio mortis causa, and, if necessary, for the administration of the deceased man's personal estate.

Letters of administration intestate of the goods of the deceased man were granted to the plaintiff on the 16th April last. The deceased man, who, it was stated, had been a widower for some time, died intestate on 13th November last, without leaving any next-of-kin surviving.

From the plaintiff's evidence it appeared that shortly before 2nd November last the deceased man, referring to the deposit receipt and the bank book, requested her to take such action as might be necessary to transfer the money into her name. On the day before his death he repeated the request, and she subsequently took the necessary steps with regard to the matter. She stated that the deceased man after the death of his wife always expressed his desire and intention of leaving to her anything that he died possessed of for her sole use and benefit, and that his intentions were to make her a gift of the moneys.

For the defence it was contended that there was no real donatio mortis causa gift completed by delivery under the circumstances.

Evidence having been given by Dr. Westropp, who had attended the deceased man during his last illness, and by Mrs. Mary Quigley, postmistress of Merrion road sub-post office,

Mr. Justice Johnston made the declaration sought, stating that he was satisfied that all

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE HIDDEN HAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—Whose is the hidden hand which is manifestly gaining control over the Free State Government and over the Roman Catholic Church in Ireland? The great object of the Treaty settlement was to establish a firm and lasting friendship between England and Ireland. No one can say that England has not done her part in furthering this object. In Ireland two facts of sinister significance have happened lately, which are inexplicable, except on the assumption that there is some hostile influence, more powerful than the Government and more powerful than the Roman Catholic Church. The first is the refusal of the Governor-General, the King's representative in Ireland, to be received with the Imperial Anthem, and his insistence upon a piece of music whose only merit is that it is associated with a rebellion against the King's authority. Such an attitude is, I suppose, unprecedented in the history of the British Commonwealth of Nations. I presume that the Governor-General is a gentleman and has the feelings of a gentleman; and, this being so, his action must have been extremely painful to him personally. What overpowering influence compelled him to so wanton a disregard for the feelings of all the King's loyal subjects?

The second fact of serious significance is the omission of the Roman Catholic Church in Ireland to join in the universal and heartfelt thanksgiving to God for the King's recovery from his very long and painful illness. To anyone who is acquainted with the very clear and emphatic teaching of the Roman Church on the duty of rendering due honour and obedience to the civil power this omission is absolutely inexplicable, except on the assumption that some influence, too powerful to be resisted, put a ban upon such thanksgiving in Ireland. The omission is all the more remarkable in the face of recent popular rejoicings over the freedom and prosperity of the Roman Church under the beneficent reign of King George and his predecessors for the last hundred years.

No Roman Catholic theologian will deny that George V. is the legitimate King of Ireland. He can trace his title to rule this country to a grant to his ancestor, Henry II., from Pope Adrian IV. in 1155, and confirmed by Alexander III. He has the following special claims upon the loyalty of Irish Roman Catholics:—He is the first King for a long period who has not taken an oath offensive to the religious beliefs of Roman Catholics; he is the first King, since James II., who appointed a Roman Catholic to be his Viceroy; he used his personal influence to settle our recent troubles by peaceful negotiations instead of by "immediate and terrible war." English Roman Catholics are among his most loyal and devoted subjects. If they celebrated High Mass in London as an act of thanksgiving for his recovery, why not in Dublin, by a people for whom a long series of special legislation has been passed by his Government, and that of his predecessors, to alleviate their condition? His personal character, and the high standard of a Christian family exhibited in his home life, ought to appeal strongly to those who profess to value so highly such a standard.

The King is raised by the Constitution above the disputes and quarrels of party politics. In spite of the jarring voices of a few irreconcilables, who live in the remote past and who, in political matters, cannot see beyond their own noses, no disrespectful word is ever heard against the King. Many are among his most loyal subjects. Had the Roman Catholic Church in Ireland joined in the universal religious homage to Almighty God for mercifully sparing his noble, devoted and invaluable life, what an outburst of good-will towards Ireland would have been the result! Again I ask, what sinister influence prevented this consummation devoutly to be wished?—Yours, etc.,

DUDLEY FLETCHER.

THE FREE STATE POST OFFICE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—A rather ironical comment on the reopening of the General Post Office is to be found in stubborn facts. The internal postage in the Irish Free State is thirty per cent. dearer than in any other country in Western Europe. A telegram from Dublin to London costs fifty per cent. more than a telegram from Belfast to London. Owing to a more efficient agreement, the postage on a magazine from Paris to Canada, or from Canada to Paris, is cheaper than from Paris to Dublin or from Dublin to Paris. Every package per parcels post which comes into the Free State costs the recipient sixpence more than a recipient of a similar parcel from the Free State.

Every country gets the Post Office that it deserves.—Yours, etc.,

THE ROCK OF CASHEL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—I wish to inform an inquiring and sympathetic public that "The Rock Restoration Fund" is closed or, at least, suspended for the present. All donations (which in one week totted up to close on £2,000) have been returned, and intending donors are requested to hold their hands. Count McCormack has given a princely start to the great project. It may, or it may not, mature into the work of restoration. The Rock may, or may not, become the seat of the national basilica of reparation, thanksgiving and commemoration; but one result, at least, is bound to follow: There must be occasional "Celebrations on the Rock"—Yours, etc., the essentials in connection with a good donatio mortis causa existed in the case. He allowed the plaintiff and also the defendant their costs out of the estate.

Mr. W. G. Fallon (instructed by Mr. J. Vincent Brady) appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Basil McGuckin (instructed by Mr. H. B. O'Hanlon) for the Attorney-General.

ADMINISTRATION OF AN ESTATE.

OMAGH WOMAN'S CLAIM.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE JOHNSTON.)

In the matter of the estate of Mr. William Walter McGwire, deceased—Gyles and another v. Glynn and others—an application was made on behalf of Mrs. Charlotte Stuart, of Derymony, Omagh, Co. Tyrone, for a declaration that, in the events which had happened and upon the true construction of the will, dated 10th October, 1905, of Mr. William Walter McGwire, deceased, whose estate is being administered in the action, Mrs. Stuart was absolutely entitled to one equal third share of the moneys, stocks, shares, funds and investments representing the accumulated funds created by the will of Sir William McMahon, deceased, dated 2nd April, 1836, subject to the payment of outstanding claims for death duties, to the State and to the payment of certain costs awarded in the matter of Gaussen v. Ellis, and an order declaring Mrs. Stuart as the surviving plaintiff in the present action, and the defendant, Sir Joseph A. Glynn, and other defendants entitled to their respective continuation costs of the suit from 16th February, 1927. Sir William McMahon was Master of the Rolls in Ireland in the early part of the nineteenth century, and had acquired considerable property in the Counties of Tyrone and Clare. Mr. William Walter McGwire was a descendant of Sir William McMahon.

Mr. Justice Johnston made the declaration and the order sought.

Mr. Oliver Murphy (instructed by Messrs. Moore, Keily and Lloyd) appeared for Mrs. Stuart; Mr. Geoghegan, K.C., and Mr. Spain (instructed by Messrs. W. Mooney and Son) for Sir Joseph A. Glynn, who was named as a defendant on his own behalf and as representing the Council of Ireland of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul; and Mr. McGuckin (instructed by Mr. H. B. O'Hanlon) for the Attorney-General.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

From Our Parliamentary Correspondent.

WESTMINSTER, Thursday.

Mr. J. Hayes, Vice-Chamberlain of the Household, this afternoon was the bearer of a message from the King thanking the Commons for their dutiful Address. Wearing the uniform of his office and carrying his cocked hat under his left arm, with his rod in his right hand, he made the three bows prescribed on walking up the House to read the message. Then came the backward walk, with the regulation bows. Mr. Hayes did them to everybody's satisfaction, and retired amid warm cheers.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE.

Mr. Robert Young, the new Chairman of Committees, made a somewhat inauspicious start, finding himself in trouble with a section of his own party, who took exception to his ruling which limits the scope of permissible discussion on a money resolution to give effect to the Government's proposal to increase the State contribution to the Unemployment Insurance Fund. Sir H. Betterton, the ex-Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Labour, as a matter of procedure, inquired as to the range of permissible discussion. Mr. Young laid it down that the discussion must be confined to the adequacy, or otherwise, of the proposed Exchequer grant. A storm of protest from members of the Clydeside group swept through the House.

When a certain degree of quiet had been restored, Mr. Neil Maclean, another Labour member, rose to a point of order. Is it a point of order? asked Mr. Young. Mr. Maclean said that it was. All that it came to, however, was another appeal for a revision of the Chairman's ruling. This Mr. Young refused to listen to, and he called upon Miss Bondfield to move the resolution.

Miss Bondfield explained that under the present rate of contributions the income of the fund was about 43 millions, of which the workers and employers contributed 31 millions and the Exchequer 12 millions. The proposal to increase the Government grant would bring the Exchequer contribution up to 15½ millions a year, or one-third of the combined contributions of employers and employed. The present critical condition of the fund was directly attributable to the policy pursued by the late Government in 1925, in which year the Treasury contribution was reduced. The present debt of the fund was about 36½ millions, and they were already paying two millions on borrowed money. Further borrowing was undesirable, and the Government thought that the best course was to increase the Treasury contribution.

The resolution was agreed to without a division, and the House rose at 11.30 p.m.

CLONAKILTY SHOW.

SPLENDID HORSES AND CATTLE.

CORK, Thursday.

It is not surprising in this cattle-producing country of West Cork to find shorthorns of exceptional merit on view at the Clonakilty Agricultural Society's annual show, which was held to-day, but one was not prepared for the high standard of exhibits in the hunter classes. This was the view of Mr. P. Hogan, the Free State Minister for Agriculture, who was present, and pointed out to me the fact that in his opinion this was one of the finest cattle-breeding districts in this country. Close on ten thousand people were present during the jumping competitions in the afternoon.

The Minister suggested that the excellence of the pedigree shorthorns on view was a further striking proof of the benefits of utilising first-class pedigree sires. In this connection considerable advance has been made in the Western districts of County Cork, but, as Mr. Hogan said, the improvement in the hunter classes was even more pronounced. Here also the policy of the Free State Department of Agriculture is having good effect, as the quality of the large number of one and two-year-old hunters on view can be attributed to the first-class stallions which were supplied to the area some time ago.

CHALLENGE CUPS.

The Becher Challenge Cup, for the best four years old hunter, gelding or mare calculated to carry from 12st. to 13st. 7lbs., went to a fine bay gelding owned by the Rev. P. O'Connell, P.P., Enniskeane, which led from six others.

Mr. J. Forbes's Half Crescent, an outstanding two years old, won the Nyhan Challenge Cup for the best three-year-old gelding or filly likely to make a hunter. Mr. G. H. Beamish, Kilbrittain, was another prominent exhibitor, and he gained premier place with his three years old dark bay filly Maureen, the twelve years old brood mare Norah being placed second.

In the cattle section the Challenge Cup presented by Mr. Michael MacWhite, the Irish Ambassador to the United States of America, for the champion pedigree bull of the show went to Mrs. H. C. Scriven's Melleray Monarch, which also gained premier award in a class of seven.

The Ward Challenge Cup for the best registered dairy cow was won by Patrick Beechinor, Clonakilty.

The Supervisor's Cup for the best heifer of 1927 went to David Brickley, Clonakilty.

TANGLED FORM.

LOVAT SCOUT SCORES.

CAMACHA BEATEN TO THIRD PLACE.

From Our Travelling Correspondent.

SALISBURY, Thursday Night.

This two-year-old form is becoming rather complicated. First we had the crack filly, Qurrat-al-Ain, only getting up to beat Scotford in the last few strides in the Queen Mary Stakes at Ascot. Next we had Scotford beaten a few inches by Qurrat-al-Ain's stable companion, Ann Gudman, at Newmarket. To-day, in the Champagne Stakes here, Ann Gudman, with odds laid on her, was beaten a head and a length by Lovat Scout and Accredit, which is all a little confusing. I imagine that if we go on thinking Qurrat-Al-Ain to be the best filly of the season we may not be far wrong in the end.

Ann Gudman did not suggest at Newmarket that she was a filly with the sweetest of dispositions, and to-day Beary had some trouble to induce her to leave the paddock, a both seeming to have an irrestible attraction for her. The name of the race, it must be remembered, was the Champagne Stakes. She was drawn on the outside, and she gave some trouble at the gate, but finally jumped off in front, and led the field.

ACCREDIT CHALLENGES.

A newcomer from Mr. Persse's stable, called Accredit, a colt by Achtoi, owned by Major V. H. Parr, became her first serious challenger, and a quarter of a mile from home he had just about taken her measure. Then Lovat Scout drew up on the outside, and after both had headed the filly Lovat Scout was only just able to get up and beat Accredit by a short head, Galhampton finishing fourth.

Lovat Scout had failed to beat Bennachie at Newmarket, and I judge from the running of the former here that in Bennachie Mr. Persse trains a very smart colt. Accredit also must be useful. He was receiving 13lb. from Lovat Scout, was making his first appearance in public, and was a 20 to 1 chance, but he came out of the race with every distinction. There were some promising horses behind the placed ones, too.

The rest of the racing, which went through under a blazing sun, was a little humdrum. That most popular revue actress Miss Dorothy Dickson won her first race, the Tisbury Maiden Plate, with her only horse Silver Stand, whom she bought last year for 70 gns., and whom John Beary trains for her. Michael Beary went into the lead at half-way on Silver Stand and won easily by a length from Saint Stratford. The gelding was bought in for 300 gns.

AMATEURS' RACES.

The amateurs' races were flat to-day. In the Members' Welter Mr. A. Cottrill on Colorado's brother, Yosemite, won by a length from Mr. Cyril Kirk on Sir Frederick Freake's Gleesome; and in the Wallop Selling Plate Mr. Wellesley won for the third time on Mr. R. C. Dawson's Aquilon, who had nothing to do to beat Premo. Mr. Dawson has had Aquilon for some years now, and he has been a general utility horse in his stable, but to-day he let him go to Mr. Herbert Blagrave.

That most reliable and consistent horse, Charnwood, who had lost by a head to Bachelor's Date at Nottingham on Monday, was started for the Alington Plate, and he came from behind half-way up the straight to overhaul Mr. Singer's Billow, and win by a length and a half. Billow was the second string from the Manton stable, and their other runner, Gay Guy, started favourite.

FIREDAMP FALLS.

Soon after coming into the straight Firedamp stumbled and fell, his jockey, A. Burns, being so badly bruised that he had to be taken to hospital. Gay Guy, who was lying immediately behind, had to jump him, and in doing so lost a lot of ground. Burns is now in Salisbury Hospital, where Donoghue lies. An x-ray photo of the latter's injury shows a clean break of two bones just above the ankle.

Camacha was favourite for the last race, but was beaten half a length and a length by Sir Charles Hyde's Gamesome and the [illegible] Gallowglass. Gamesome is a first foal by Bucks Hussar, by the Gimcrack winner, Gameshot.

SELECTIONS.

England, Wales and Scotland have racing to-morrow. The most important event, I suppose, is the Welsh Derby at Chepstow, which lies, I imagine, between the King's Lyme Regis and HASTE AWAY. A decided preference is for the latter. The Usk Plate should go to KNOCKALLA, and the Wyndclyffe Plate to ROSE KNOT.

The Lingfield Park Plate at Lingfield seems between Winton and Sidonia, and I prefer WINTON. SISTER CLOVER should win the Jack's Bridge Maiden Plate, and FLASH TOY the Summer Handicap.

At Hamilton Park, REDESWOOD may win the Glasgow Plate and CLEAR CASH the Larkhall Plate.

PHŒNIX PARK.

BREEDERS' PRODUCE STAKES.

Considerable interest is being manifested in to-morrow's race for the Irish Breeders' Produce of 1,000 sovs., which is the outstanding feature of the attractive programme arranged for the Phœnix Park Club Meeting. Proceedings there are not due to commence until 6.30, so that those attending the Motor Grand Prix in the immediate vicinity can reach the racecourse in ample time. Adequate catering arrangements have been made, and teas and dinners will be served in the Grand Stand diningroom from 4.30. The field for the Breeders' Produce Stakes will be made up of the following:—

BALLYFERIS (Major Dixon), b. c., by Apron—Gillard, 8-10 (Behan) ...Jos. Canty
ROSE CYGNET (Major E. M. Conolly), b. f., by Cygnus—Rose Window, 8-7 (Behan) ...James Doyle
WILD CORN (Mr. J. T. Rogers), ch. c., by Essexford—Wild Wheat, 8-5 (Owner) ...M. Wing

SPECIAL SELECTIONS FOR TO-DAY.

Daily Sketch:—Double—Haste Away and Winton.

CORK BOOKMAKERS' PRICES.

At a meeting of s.p. bookmakers of Cork City, held last evening, it was unanimously decided that, in view of the altered conditions under which returns of [illegible] English racing were now made, certain [illegible] should be set up. These limits are—25 to 1 [illegible] events, 50 to 1 double events, 100 to [illegible] to 1 place, double events; and 20 to 1 for place accumulators. It was also decided that there should be no limit in races where ante-post betting was published in the Press.

There were only three absentees from the meeting, and they were represented by proxies, the decision being unanimous.

DOWN ROYAL.

OUTSIDERS SCORE.

A WINNER DISQUALIFIED.

If backers had much their own way on the first day of the Maze meeting they experienced the other side of the picture yesterday, when, except in one instance, favourite after favourite was beaten. With fields turning out in better strength, the racing was of a far more interesting character, and the attendance also showed an improvement on that of Wednesday.

A party of five turned out for the Dromore Selling Plate, which was won in easy style by Mr. J. J. Parkinson's Friar Melody's Pride, who led from start to finish, but at the ensuing auction failed to elicit a bid. As matters turned out, this was the only favourite to score during the afternoon. Kildare's Pride, who headed the quotations on the Lagan Plate, looked like scoring until a furlong from home, when Silver Blue threw out a strong challenge, and this daughter of Blue Ensign, running on in unexpectedly game fashion, readily credited Captain Herbert Dixon with the stake. Silver Blue, who is beautifully bred, has been a difficult mare to train, and this was only her second appearance on a racecourse, but she is fairly certain to prove valuable as a brood mare later on.

South Louth completed a sequence of three wins off the reel by capturing the Maze Steeplechase from three others. This mare is trained by her owner, Major H. D. Beamish, the hon. secretary of the County Down Hunts meeting at Downpatrick. She is by Southannan, and her dam, Jenny Jones, will be remembered as a winner of numerous races in the war years, when she was trained by Mr. H. S. Harrison, who deputised for Mr. R. H. Walker during the latter's term of active service.

It is not often nowadays that one has to chronicle the success of the least fancied horse in a race, but Keep Clear, the winner of the Sprinters' Plate, was the absolute outsider of the five runners for that event. There was a fine set-to between the winner and Bold Sally, and with two such skilled riders as Canty and Wing in opposition the finish was exceptionally interesting. Keep Clear had the best position throughout, and this about turned the scales in her favour.

When Captivale wore down and eventually beat Sunigree by a length for the Hillsborough Plate it was quite evident to those on the stands that there were grounds for an objection, and it came as no surprise when the Stewards, acting on their own initiative, disqualified the winner and awarded the race to Sunigree. Their reason for doing so was that the winner had bored and interfered with the second.

It was a tame conclusion when only Rock Forest and Mr. Porta went to the post for the Stormount Plate, and in this instance another reverse awaited backers, the long odds laid on Rock Forest being ruthlessly floored by Mr. Porta, whose rider, Mr. J. M. Morrison, thus completed a double event.

Details—

Dr. G. F. Gillespie's Susiewusie, a, 11-0 ...Mr. J. Woods 0
(Winner trained by Owner.)
Betting—5 to 4 agst. Bally Weaver, 2 to 1 SOUTH LOUTH, 5 to 1 Susiewusie, 100 to 8 Fair Sheila.
Susiewusie led from Bally Weaver, South Louth and Fair Sheila for half a mile, when Bally Weaver went on in front, followed by Susiewusie, South Louth and Fair Sheila. At half-way Susiewusie fell, and South Louth, heading Bally Weaver, made the remainder of the running, and won by twelve lengths; eight lengths divided second and third.

3.10—SPRINTERS' PLATE of 100 sovs. Second 10 sovs. A selling race for two-years-old. 5 f.
Mr. J. T. Rogers's b. f. KEEP CLEAR, by Midensis or Lighthouse—Little Princess, 8-8 ...M. Wing 1
Mr. H. M. Hartigan's BOLD SALLY, 8-8 ...Jos. Canty 2
Mrs. M. Dawson's WHO'S CALLING, 8-8 ...E. M. Quirke 3
Lady Weizall's Shipmate, 8-12 ...A. Barrett 0
Mr. J. F. Byrne's Gay Soul, 9-1 ...J. H. Harty 0
(Winner trained by Owner at the Curragh.)
Betting—5 to 2 agst. Shipmate, 3 to 1 Who's Calling, 4 to 1 each Gay Soul and Bold Sally, 100 to 16 KEEP CLEAR.
Gay Soul began slowly, and Keep Clear made the running from Shipmate, Bold Sally, and Who's Calling. At the distance Bold Sally challenged Keep Clear, but in a close finish the latter stayed on the better, and won by a neck; two and a half lengths divided second and third. Shipmate was fourth.
The winner was bought in for 70 sovs.

3.35—HILLSBOROUGH PLATE of 75 sovs. Second 5 sovs. A weight for age flat race. 2 m.
Mr. W. Hume's b. g. SUNIGREE, by Sundari—Filigree, a, 12-0 ...Mr. J. Morrison 1
Mrs. J. Irvin's ROWLAND'S PRIDE, 6, 11-9 ...Mr. J. R. Alder 2
Mr. S. Graham's NEW GIRL, 6, 12-0 ...Mr. S. Waring 3
Mr. E. Delany's Liqueur, 5, 12-0 ...Major R. H. Scott 0
Mr. W. F. Uprichard's Captivale, 5, 12-0 ...Mr. T. Nugent, disq.
(Winner trained by J. Morrison at Dunmurry, Antrim.)
Betting—4 to 1 on Captivale, 5 to 1 agst. SUNIGREE, 20 to 1 each Rowland Pride, Liqueur, and New Girl.
Sunigree led from Rowland's Pride, New Girl and Captivale for over a mile, when Sunigree was followed by Captivale and Rowland's Pride. Inside the distance Captivale challenged Sunigree, and wearing him down in the last hundred yards won by a length; fifteen lengths divided second and third.
After the race the Stewards objected to Captivale on the grounds of boring and interference, and after hearing evidence they disqualified the winner, and awarded the race to Sunigree. They also severely reprimanded Mr. T. Nugent, and cautioned him as to his future riding.

4.0—STORMOUNT PLATE of 50 sovs. A handicap flat race. 2 m.
Mr. Jas. Morrison's MR. PORTA, a, 10-7 (car. 11-2) ...Mr. J. M. Morrison 1
Mr. T. Flood's ROCK FOREST, a, 11-12 ...P. Powell 2
(Winner trained by Morrison at Dunmurry, Antrim.)
Betting—5 to 1 on Rock Forest.
They raced in close company until inside the distance, when Mr. Porta drew away to win by fifteen lengths.

MISHAP TO A. BURNS.

Following closely on the accident to S. Donoghue at Salisbury on Wednesday, came another mishap yesterday, when A. Burns was injured by a fall from Firedamp, in the Alington Plate at the Bibury Club Meeting. At the time of the mishap Burns's mount was well up with the leaders, with the result that several horses galloped over the prostrate jockey.

The Stewards inquired into the mishap and were of opinion that the accident was due to Firedamp stumbling and falling, no blame being attributable to any jockey.

Burns was removed to hospital—to the same ward occupied by S. Donoghue—where it was found that he had received injuries to the arm, chest and knee.

Burns was to have ridden Benedictus in the following race, the Downton Handicap, but, by permission of the Stewards, K. Robertson was substituted at 7lb. overweight.

SPORTING GOSSIP

Cesarewitch and Cambridgeshire.

There will be a second acceptance this year for the two popular autumn handicaps, the Cesarewitch and the Cambridgeshire. The second acceptance stage is on the Tuesday in the week before running, the forfeit then being increased to £10.

Donoghue Progressing Satisfactorily

The condition of S. Donoghue, who sustained a fractured ankle when he was thrown by his mount, Polyphonta, on leaving the paddock at Bibury races, is reported to be quite satisfactory. It is stated that it will be about a month before he will be able to ride again.

QUIDNUNCS ... 6 A.I.P.C. ... 4

A feature of yesterday's match at the Nine Acres, Phœnix Park, between A.I.P.C. and Quidnuncs, was the brilliant form displayed by Major Kirkwood, who scored five of his side's six goals. Quidnuncs won by six goals to four. Major Kirkwood was ably assisted by Mr. Magee, who marked his man very well. Sir Lingard Goulding, too, was in splendid form, and hit three goals for A.I.P.C.

Early in the game Sir Lingard Goulding got possession at midfield, and wound up a fine run by scoring a goal. Quidnuncs pressed for some time after this, but they failed to overcome a sound defence. Mr. Lawlor scored for A.I.P.C. from a cross shot by Mr. Larminie before the change of ponies. Quidnuncs galloped off at the start of the second chukkar, and Mr. Lillis experienced hard lines, his shot stopping a yard from the goal. Major Kirkwood, however, scored in the next minute, while immediately following the throw-in the same player levelled matters. Mr. Lillis secured the lead for his side before the bell.

In the third period Sir Lingard Goulding scored a capital goal with a cut shot. They entered upon the last chukkar on level terms. In the last chukkar Quidnuncs went off at a great pace, but sent behind. Sir Lingard Goulding sent his side down with the hit-in, but Quidnuncs returned, for Major Kirkwood to score. Dashing off again from the throw-in, the same player added a fifth. A few minutes later he put on a sixth goal; and before the final bell Sir Lingard Goulding scored.

Teams:—

A.I.P.C.—Mr. Lawlor, Herr von Dehn, Mr. J. P. A. Larminie, and Sir Lingard Goulding (back).

Umpire—Mr. J. J. Durack.

There will be no polo to-morrow owing to the Motor Races.

CAMBRIDGE BEAT OXFORD.

At Hurlingham yesterday, Cambridge University beat Oxford by 5 goals to 4 in the annual polo match. The scorers for the Oxonians were the Hon. W. T. Pearson (2) and the Hon. W. W. Astor (2), and for the winners, E. Calvert (3), P. W. Paget and Lord Willoughby de Eresby.

LIMIT FOR STARTING PRICES.

The London bookmakers, at a meeting held on Wednesday night, issued a statement that, having considered the position of starting price betting, as affected by the totalisator, they were of the opinion that a limit to liability should be fixed, and they suggest that a limit of 33 to 1 to win and 10 to 1 for a place for minor races, and 100 to 1 to win and 25 to 1 for a place ante-post betting races, for both starting price and totalisator betting, is equitable as between backer and bookmaker.

GREYHOUND RACING.

HAROLD'S CROSS PARK.

A large attendance patronised Harold's Cross Park last night, and, though no cup event featured the programme, the racing was keen and interesting.

With four first favourites winning, followers of the money had the better of the duel with the layers, Hell of a Toff, which won the Leinster Plate, being the only actual outsider to score.

WILLIAM MOSFORTH DEAD.

William H. Mosforth, regarded by many as one of the finest outside left players ever produced by England, died yesterday in hospital at Sheffield, at the age of seventy-one. Born in Sheffield in 1858, Mosforth, a member of Sheffield's representative eleven for many years, gained the first of his nine England "caps" when only 19, in the year 1877, and he last played for his country in 1882. He appeared five times against Scotland and four times against Wales.

BOWLING.

INTERNATIONAL MATCHES.

It had been expected that England would virtually settle the issue in the international bowling tournament by a victory over Wales at Llandrindod Wells yesterday, but the Principality team finished level with England at 87 shots each. Earlier Scotland had defeated Ireland by 120 shots to 87. England lead Scotland and Wales by one point, with Ireland last with one. To-day England meet Ireland, and Scotland oppose Wales in the concluding stages of the tournament.

TEST MATCHES IN THE DOMINIONS.

The question of the playing of Test matches on the occasion of teams visiting the Dominions was fully considered at the meeting of the International Board of Bowling at Llandrindod Wells, and it was decided that these matches should only be played when representative teams took part. With regard to the forthcoming South African tour, it was stated that England had submitted twenty names, Scotland a similar number, and Ireland four, while Wales had not put forward any names.

INVERSHIN FOR THE STUD.

Mr. Reid Walker's Invershin, winner of the Ascot Gold Cup this year and last year, is retiring to the stud, and will stand next year at Rockley Stud, Shifnal, Shropshire.

Invershin, who is seven years old and is by Invincible out of Ajantia, was bred by his owner at Joristown, County Westmeath. Mr. Reid Walker thought of retiring him to the stud two years ago, but fortunately did not do so, as his horse has since won the Jockey Club Cup and the Caledonian Hunt cup, in addition to the Ascot Gold Cups.

When Invershin won the Gold Cup last year he was considered by some a rather lucky winner. His task this year seemed harder, as his opponents included the American "crack" Reigh Count, and the cream of the French stayers; but Invershin won in 4.24 4-5 secs., as compared with 4.34 1-5 secs. the previous year, and thus proved himself to be the world's best stayer.

LICENSING OF BULLS.

THE AUTUMN INSPECTION.

The Free State Department of Agriculture desire to direct the attention of owners of bulls to the forthcoming autumn inspection to be held under the Live Stock Breeding Act, 1925. All bulls calved during the period 1st July, 1928, to 31st December, 1928, must be examined at this inspection, and applications for licences to keep such bulls should be lodged as soon as possible with the Department of Agriculture, but not later than the 31st July. Applications received after the 31st July are subject to additional fees.

The necessary forms of application for licences, with lists of inspection centres, may be obtained at post offices and Garda Siochana stations, or from secretaries to County Committees of Agriculture.

GOLF.

A REMARKABLE TIE FOR THE IRISH OPEN CHAMPIONSHIP.

THREE COMPETITORS FINISH LEVEL AT PORTMARNOCK.

IRISHMEN IN THE PRIZE LIST.

A series of remarkable finishes at Portmarnock last evening culminated in three competitors tieing for the Irish Open Championship, the players concerned being Abe Mitchell, Len Holland and A. Compston, the latter of whom started out in the morning half a dozen strokes behind Edward Ray, Pat O'Connor and Abe Mitchell, but with a seventy-three in the third round effected a brilliant recovery. The trio will play a three-ball for the gold medal and title to-day, the first round having been arranged for 10.30 and the second for 2.30.

The prize for the best score by an amateur was again won by Major Charles Hezlett, who, in fact, at the end of the first nine holes yesterday morning, had a good chance of winning the championship, but struck a few bad patches on the way home, and was not in the first half dozen when the last round was entered

BY OUR GOLF CORRESPONDENT.

The records of British golf championships discloses the interesting fact that never before was there a triple tie for a major championship. Only once previously have three players finished level for a national championship, that being in 1913, on the Brookline, Mass. course, when Harry Vardon, Edward Ray and Mr. Francis Ouimet had to play off for the American Open, which the amateur won.

The position when the third round was entered on yesterday was that the Irishman, Pat O'Connor, Ray and Mitchell were level at 153, with but one stroke between them and Holland. At the close of the round Holland and Mitchell were still together at 230, with H. Jolly one behind them, and Compston, T. Renouf, O'Connor and A. Havers tieing for fourth place with 232. The early forenoon had been beautifully fine, with little wind, but as the day wore on the breeze became much stronger, and those who went out late had a good deal the worse of the conditions.

PAT O'CONNOR'S DOWNFALL.

While the morning play was invested with considerable interest for the big crowds which followed the leading matches, and was productive of a number of scores well in the seventies, everything which occurred during the day was completely overshadowed by the finish. Most of the "field" had left before O'Connor, and he was playing the second nine holes heedless of what was transpiring nearer home. He had a bad first nine, and had left himself the most exacting task of holing the remainder of the links in thirty-six to come out on top, having taken sixes at the third and fifth. But when he had played the short twelfth he had lost whatever chance he possessed of becoming champion, for that hole cost him a wretched five, and he was finished with.

In the meantime Compston had been treating the crowd around the home green, and in its immediate vicinity, to some thrills. Playing to the eighteenth he required a three to beat Holland's aggregate of 309. His drive was a good one; but it had a little too much pull on it, and it finished in the "roses," which help to make this hole the excellent one it is, and which have so often spoiled our cards in medal and bogey competitions.

Those "roses" are not easy to get out of, and Compston had a difficult shot to play, all the more so by reason of what depended on the result of it. Compston took some time to study the problem, but he played a magnificent shot, and the ball dropped flag high, five feet from the hole. It was one of the most perfect shots which have been played to that green in an emergency of the kind.

A £50 PUTT.

Compston must have known much depended on the putt. He hit it well and truly, and amid breathless excitement the gallery watched the ball roll on and on until it came to the edge of the hole. It looked in, as it were, seemed to draw back, and remained on the lip. For a moment or two the player waited in the hope that a gust of wind would come along and stir the ball, for a mere breath would have sent it to the bottom of the tin. He had to merely rest his putter behind the ball, and that one blade of grass which held up the ball lost Compston £50 in hard cash.

But that was not all. Renouf, much nearer to the hole (they played together), was set to hole out for a four to tie with Compston and Holland, and once again the ball lay on the holeside, so that, instead of sharing in the tie, the little Frenchman had to be content with fourth prize.

Jolly's last hole was also a remarkable one—probably the most remarkable that has been played in the championship for years. Wanting a four to tie with the others, he played a great tee shot, and an iron well hit would have got him home. But he put the ball into the hills in front of him, barely plugged it out, was in the said "roses" with his next, and when he did hole he had expended seven strokes, and had frittered away a chance, the like of which he may not have again, of becoming a major champion.

LEN HOLLAND'S PUTTING LAPSES.

T. Barber, who tied with Ray for seventh prize, four strokes behind the leaders, was going right well when he drove off the sixteenth tee, for he but required fours at the remaining holes for a seventy-six; but he could do no better than a pair of fives and a six, and took eighty for the round. Had he got those fours he also would have been right at the top with the lucky ones.

The finish was intensely exciting, but the spectators would have been deprived of the thrills had Holland been on intimate terms with his putter. On six greens at least he failed to hole in the regulation two; that putt on the last one could not have been less than half a dozen yards, so that there was every excuse for his failure. He played splendid golf in the circumstances for his seventy-nine.

Those who to the end pinned their faith in George Duncan doing something startling were disappointed. Perhaps it was that the elements were not quite rough enough for him. Anyway, when he went out in the evening he had set himself to do something like seventy-four, but he was the Duncan of two years ago at Portmarnock, and when he required fives at two of the short holes his chance was extinguished.

THE IRISHMEN.

From a local golfer's point of view the most pleasing feature of the three days was the marked improvement which was manifested in the golf of the Irishmen. O'Connor made a gallant effort to the twelfth hole on the last round, and but for the shaking which he received in the third round at the sixth hole, where he was heavily bunkered and took a seven, most probably he would have been fighting it out with the men at the top of the finish.

J. Sullivan, of Bray, also did exceptionally well indeed, for he had a seventy-six for the third round, which included a seven and a six, and though he was half-a-dozen strokes worse in the evening he succeeded in taking thirteenth place, the other prize, the sixteenth, going to Hugh M'Neill, one of the veterans of the Irish professionals.

Then there was Major Hezlet, who hopes one of these days to settle down again in Portrush, this time for good. This member of a notable family of Irish golfers, as remarked earlier on, had a grand chance of beating even the best of the professionals for the championship, and when he reached the turn in thirty-seven, with a rather unlucky six at the fifth, where his tee-shot caught the top of the carry and rolled back, he seemed to me to be going particularly well. But on the way in his putting broke down at several holes, and he finished in eighty-one. But the Major is nothing if not a fighter of the finest type, and he set about his fourth round in a manner that suggested he was determined at least to secure the coveted first place among the amateurs. He went round in seventy-nine, and thus beat Mr. Soulby, the Irish Close champion, for Mr. W. G. Jameson's handsome trophy, the margin being four strokes.

Nor should I forget to mention the grand round of 74 accomplished by William Holley. It was one of the best scores of the meeting, and but one stroke behind the seventy-three of Mitchell on the previous day, and the like score of Compston in the morning.

FORMER AMATEUR CHAMPION IN A TIE.

J. Laidlay, the winner of the Amateur Championship in 1899, and Sir Milsom Rees tied for the Overseas Cup, presented by American and Canadian senior golfers, at Sunningdale yesterday. Laidlay played from a handicap of six, and returned 75 net, and Sir Milsom, from eight, had a similar score.

YACHTING.

SOUTH COAST YACHTING.

The "cruise in company" of yachts, commencing with a rendezvous at Cork Harbour, and proceeding then up the South-West Coast of Ireland, has gone off well so far, even if the fleet taking part in it is on the small side—viz., five craft in all.

But it represents the trial of an idea which may grow to something big later. It is also bringing East and South Coast yachtsmen together, and it is familiarising them also with the splendid bays and harbours and the picturesque scenery of Southern and South-Western Ireland.

Writing from Sneem Harbour on Tuesday, Mr. H. M. Wright, of Espanola, gives the experience of one of the Kingstown yachts thus far:—

"Left Crosshaven on the 3rd inst. with four other yachts, and had a stiff beat all the way to Kinsale. Weatherbound there (wind and rain) for three days. All left for Baltimore on the 6th, and again had a beat all the way. Colonel Kirkpatrick (Norma) put into Castlehaven for the night, and went on to Baltimore next morning. Beautiful weather on Sunday, the sail to Crookhaven being just perfect. Met and exchanged salutes with Magdalene off Galley Head.

"Only three yachts reached here. Welcome came in last night at 12.30 a.m. (five hours after our arrival)—a fine bit of navigation on her part, as the place is not lit. Espanola alone went through Dursey Sound, and beat Gull by 50 mins. in consequence. A spring tide was stemmed in the narrows (where the passage is only one-third the width of Kingstown entrance), and there is a 2ft. rock in the middle. Could have touched the rocks to port with a boat hook, whilst the swirl of the 2ft. rock was just under our starboard side. Tide running a full four knots. A hair-raising experience. Saw a shark come up and have a look at us. Heavy W.S.W. wind to-day, with rain."

HANDICAP RACING AT THE "FORTNIGHT."

The racing fleet is due at Belfast Lough to-day, when the annual regatta of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club opens at Bangor. What luck the club will have with its fixture is difficult to say at the time of writing.

Recent events have hit the class of big cutters hard. First, the lamented death of Sir Mortimer Singer caused the withdrawal of Astra from racing; next at the regatta of the Royal Clyde Y.C. at Gourock on Tuesday the Shamrock broke her gaff and Cambria sprung her main boom. It was said at the time that these accidents would prevent the two yachts mentioned going to Belfast Lough, but why Shamrock would be unable to obtain a new gaff on the Clyde, of all places in the world, was not explained.

It will be surprising, therefore, if Shamrock will not be found at the Royal Ulster Y.C. Regatta, but if not, White Heather II. and Lulworth still remain.

There is always criticism over the scanty notice which handicap racers receive when they sail at regattas where pure racing craft also compete. The fact is that handicap craft and cruisers are completely overshadowed by the others, and it seems to be a thing ordained by fate. That, in fact, is the only explanation. Yet the handicap racing on the Clyde of the over 15 tons division was largely made up of Irish yachts—viz., Verve (Mr. J. H. Bennett), from Cork Harbour; Lady Edith (Mr. John Good) and Rose (Mr. W. Wybrants), from Kingstown; and Lafone, from Belfast Lough. Only two other yachts competed—viz., Fedoa and Dodo IV.

Lady Edith	3	4	1
Rose	2	2	2
Verve	2	1	0
Lafone	1	1	2
Dodo IV.	0	1	0

Before the yachts went North Rose had two firsts and Lady Edith one first, scored in racing at Kingstown.

HOWTH SAILING CLUB.

It was blowing so hard on Wednesday evening before the time of starting the 17-Footers midweek match that only two—Zaida and Bobolink—decided to go in it. Both had reefs tied down and set working jibs.

Bobolink suffered a recall at the line, and this let Zaida away with a useful lead on a reach to the Island mark. Portmarnock mark was made then on a short and long leg, and as they came round it Bobolink was seen to have closed up on the other. But on the run back to the Island and close reach to Balscadden mark Zaida drew away again, and finished 18 secs. ahead at the winning line. Finish:—

DEAUVILLE REGATTA.

There was almost a calm when the fourth day's racing of the Deauville Yacht Club was carried out but what little breeze there was came from about south-west. In the race for the 12-metre class Mr. T. O. Sopwith's Mouette added yet another winning flag to her long list of triumphs, and incidentally registered her fourth successive victory, a very meritorious performance in a class of seven or eight competitors each day. Mr. J. R. Payne's Vanity secured second prize and was 3 mins. 34 secs. astern of the leader at the finish. The official finishing times were:—

	H.	M.	S.
Mouette (winner)	2	3	4
Vanity (second prize)	2	6	38
Zinita (3rd prize)	2	19	0
Iris	2	10	58
Rhona	2	20	0
Doris	2	24	32

Moyana and Modesty did not finish.

LAWN TENNIS.

ENGLAND v. IRELAND.

AN ENGLISH VICTORY.

With England leading by two matches to one when play began yesterday in the International at Wilton place, it was not expected that Ireland would be able to pull the match out of the fire. Matters, indeed, went much as anticipated, and England, winning the remaining two singles and losing the doubles, emerged victors by four matches to two. The weather was very much the same as on Wednesday, and the wind, though not quite so strong, was again a disturbing factor.

The first match to be decided was the single between N. H. Latchford and B. Haughton. Latchford, as in the doubles on the previous day, was slow to settle down, and the Irishman, playing confidently from the start, took the first two games and led at 3-1. The next three games went to Latchford, who was gradually finding his touch and increasing the pace of his forehand drives, and after his opponent had drawn level again at 4 all, he took the next two games and the set at 6-4. Haughton grew more and more uncertain as the pace of the game increased, and, pinned to the back line with beautiful full-length drives, he could only get one game in the second and final set.

England had now won three matches out of four, and E. A. McGuire and G. L. Rogers evidently decided it was up to them to come to the rescue. They started strongly against E. C. Peters and J. S. Oliff, and, although the first six games went with service, they were obviously on top. They won the seventh game to lead 4-3, and then broke through Peters' service to increase the lead to 5-3. It was now Rogers' service, and he made no mistake. Having won the first point, he sent down three "cannon ball" drives which decided the game and the first set in Ireland's favour. The second set produced a magnificent struggle and some spectacular tennis.

Peters and Oliff were fighting with their backs to the wall, and McGuire and Rogers were determined to hold on to their advantage. Again matters were equal at 3 all, but this time the Englishmen took the lead at 4-3, and then took McGuire's service to go further ahead at 5-3. With Oliff serving, the next game was a thrilling one, and, with the score at 40-30, the Englishmen were within a point of set. McGuire, however, saved the situation with a beautiful passing shot, and eventually the game went to Ireland. Once more Rogers's service won a love game for his side, and the score was 5-all. The next four games went with service, and then, in the fifteenth game, the Irishmen pulled up from 40-15 to break through Peters's service and lead at 8-7. Taking the next game rather easily, McGuire and Rogers ran out at 9-7, and England's lead was now reduced to one match.

Both of the Irishmen played exceptionally well, but the greater credit is due to McGuire for his general steadiness and for his magnificent passing shots. Rogers was brilliant at times, and his service was always a certainty, but often he was inclined to over-hit his drives.

The last match proved rather uninteresting, although a win by H. B. Purcell for Ireland would have squared the match. Lee seemed to have the measure of his opponent, and, although he lost four games in the first set and three in the second, he always appeared to be holding something in reserve. Both players were content to remain on the back line, and an occasional well-judged drop-shot by Lee provided the only variety. Details:—

N. H. Latchford (England) beat B. Haughton (Ireland)—6-4, 6-1.

E. A. McGuire and G. L. Rogers Ireland) beat E. C. Peters and J. S. Oliff (England)—6-3, 9-7.

H. G. Lee (England) beat H. B. Purcell (Ireland)—6-4, 6-3.

BILLIARDS.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

The chief feature of a very interesting day's play in the time-limit billiards match between Willie Smith and Walter Lindrum was a magnificent break of 1,058 by Smith, the highest so far of the match. He had made 1,001 unfinished at the afternoon session, but broke down soon after the resumption in the evening at a comparatively simple winner. Despite Smith's fine effort, Lindrum at the close of play had increased his overnight lead to 807, his aggregate for the day being 2,153, against his opponent's 1,723. Smith, in addition to his big break, made another of 238, while Lindrum's best runs were 277, 247, 283, 644 and 601 (unfinished). Closing scores:—W. Lindrum (in play), 19,738; W. Smith, 18,931.

ANGLING.

TROUT AND PIKE ON SAME CAST

While Mr. R. Livingstone, Lisburn, was trout fishing on the Upper Bann he hooked a three-quarter pound fish, and was drawing it towards his landing net when a pike seized the trout. The trout was hooked on a small black midge on a 3 x cast; yet, after several minutes' play, the angler succeeded in landing both fish, the pike tightly gripping the tail of the trout. This "catch" was exhibited in the windows of a tackle manufacturer in Royal avenue, Belfast. The pike weighed 3½ lbs.

CRICKET.

THE SOUTH AFRICANS.

NOT LEG-WEARY.

Interviewed yesterday with reference to the statement that the team were leg weary, Mr. Frielinghaus, the manager of the South African cricketers, said: "We are not complaining, but the fact that we have had as many as six players injured, and that the rest have had to play every day for six days a week, travelling about the country, is telling its tale. These last few matches we have only just been able to raise a team," he went on; "so none of our players have been able to have a badly needed rest.

"We shall play in the Test match on Saturday under a handicap, but we intend to do our best," concluded Mr. Frielinghaus, "and if we are beaten we shall not cavil."

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

TONE AND COMMENT.

DUBLIN IDLE AND FLUCTUATING.

GUINNESS AGAIN BUOYANT.

Once more Guinness Ordinary Shares practically monopolised the attention and support of investors, backed by substantial buying orders from the London market, with the result that prices moved continuously upwards amid excited dealing, and closed in brisk demand at the best point touched. Investors and market operators are being increasingly impressed with the distinct signs of a revival in the export and home trade of the company shorn off the business during the 1926 strike period, and the subsequent increase in unemployment that followed that disastrous event. Margarine Shares were decidedly stronger. Most markets were exceptionally idle. Consols, in British Funds, were strong, and War Loan 5 per cent., after dulness show no change. Government National 5 per cent. Sterling Loan fell back, but British Funds maintained the recent improvement. Bank of Ireland Stock was still supported at top prices. Most other shares in this group were marked ex div. Guinness Ord. closed a further 1s. 9d. higher after a particularly brisk market. Cables and Wireless were busy without much alteration. Railways show some comparatively slight changes; but Trams, Trusts, Gas, Bakery, Drapery and Trading Shares were all drawn blank. Dublin Artisans' Dwellings further improved. Tobaccos were weaker, and sale pressure was shown for Imperial Chemicals at much easier prices. Margarines advanced sharply. Coats and Courtaulds were both firm markets, especially the latter. Leyland Motor Shares rallied. City of San Paulo Improvements rose about 2s. 6d. to 22s. the other side on report rumours.

LONDON QUIET

IDLE CONDITIONS.

In the London Stock Markets yesterday members' attention was occupied with the final details of the settlement, and, in the absence of any public support, markets as a whole displayed a quiet appearance, while the general tone was dull. There were, however, a number of bright spots, Brewery descriptions continuing on the upward trend, while Motors stiffened here and there. Tin shares attracted a fair volume of attention on the advance in the quotation for the metal, and certain Miscellaneous Industrials presented a firm front, Dunlops, Margarine Unions and United Molasses all strengthening.

Quiet conditions prevailed in the Gilt-edged section, but after easing the turn during the early hours quotations recovered and finished much the same as on Wednesday. Foreign Government Stocks also remained quiet and mostly unaltered. Home Rails presented an easier appearance, dealings remaining on an extremely small scale. Colonial and Foreign Rails also attracted little attention, and, apart from advances of ½ each in B.A.G.S. and Central Argentine, the movements registered were against holders.

The Industrial sections generally ruled quiet, and an irregular tendency prevailed. Brewery Stocks, however, again moved forward in several directions, and Motors stiffened here and there. Among Mines Rhodesians were again subjected to a certain amount of profit-taking, and lower values resulted. Gold shares were also easier, but Tins and Coppers displayed a rather firmer appearance, though business showed no great expansion.

POSITION OF THE BANK.

The latest total of the coin and bullion in the Bank of England is £155,711,707, or, taking the gold holding alone, a little less than £154,500,000. It is generally considered that a minimum of £150,000,000 should be held in accordance with the recommendation of the Cunliffe Currency Commission, and on the only occasion this year, when the total dipped to below that figure the bank rate was promptly raised from 4½ to 5½ per cent. On a rule of thumb reasoning, therefore, a further advance in the official minimum is unlikely while there is a comfortable margin of gold above the Cunliffe minimum. Obviously what has to be reckoned with is the customary demands in the autumn. On September 12 last the coin and bullion reached a high record at £176,584,000, but three months afterwards that total was reduced by fully £19,000,000 to £157,191,000, and the last return of 1928 showed a total only slightly above £154,000,000, or a reduction of £22,500,000 from the "peak." As the bank rate is one per cent. higher than it was in 1928 it should be easier to retain gold.

ASSOCIATED BRITISH CINEMAS, LTD.

The subscription list will open on Tuesday next for an issue at par of 500,000 7½ per cent. Cumulative Preference shares of £1 each and 500,000 Ordinary shares of 5s. each of Associated British Cinemas, Ltd. The company owns or controls eighty cinema theatres—thirty-nine acquired since November last—of which fifty are freehold and thirty leasehold. Four large super-cinemas are under construction. The total holding capacity of the cinemas owned or in course of construction is approximately 120,000 persons. The company took the lead among the theatre-owning companies in this country in the installation of talking picture equipment on a large scale, and arrangements have been made to instal it in nearly all the theatres of the company. The company paid a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum out of the profits to the 31st March last, and, although the accounts did not include a full year's trading on many of the theatres then owned, it also was able to wipe out the whole of its preliminary expenses, transfer £500,000 to reserve and carry forward £10,746. The present issue is being made to enable the company to pay off floating and other indebtedness incurred in purchasing and constructing additional theatres, as well as for the general expansion of the business.

EASYLOADER, LTD.

It has now been decided to make the public issue of shares of the above-named company early next week. The capital will be £200,000, and will be issued in Ordinary shares of 5s. each at par. The company is already in receipt of ample trading orders, and the extra capital is required to extend its operations to meet the growing demand for its products.

MARGARINE UNIE.

De Algemene Han[illegible]blad, of Amsterdam, learns that the Be[illegible]che Markische Margarin Industrie at [illegible]rfeld, until now the largest independent [illegible]garine factory in Germany, has been tak[illegible]ver by the Margarine Unie. It is not [illegible] known whether the factory will be [illegible] down or not.

SWEDIS[illegible] BALL BEARING.

Following the recent increase in the capital of the Swedish Ball Bearing Co. (S.K.F.), some particulars regarding the company, and incorporating an explanatory letter from the managing director of the company, are advertised for the information of shareholders. Regarding the new issue, it is stated that permission to deal has been granted in London in the 80,000 shares placed by Higginson and Co. and the British, Foreign and Colonial Corporation, Ltd., and an official quotation in the entire new issue will be applied for in due course. Application is also being made to have the "B" shares quoted in Paris and Stockholm, and to have the American shares listed on the New York Curb. It is expected that early in 1930 all "B" shares will be good delivery in London, Stockholm, and Paris, and as holders of "B" shares will then have the right to exchange into American shares, a market in the "B" shares will also be available in America.

TRAFFIC RECEIPTS.

[illegible]ern—For week £634,000, increase [illegible] £15,450,000, increase £213,000. Midland and Scottish—For week [illegible] increase £1,000; to date £36,379,000. [illegible]18,000. London and North-Eastern—£1,069,000, increase £31,000; to date [illegible] increase £194,000. Southern—For [illegible]7,000, decrease £3,000; to date [illegible], decrease £181,000.

INDUSTRIAL MARKET.

SEVERAL BRIGHT SPOTS.

BREWERY STOCKS BETTER.

By the ragged nature of yesterday's movements among Industrial and Miscellaneous issues no definite trend could be detected, but it was apparent that the "bears" of Brewery stocks were taking cover. Cable and Wireless issues continued to attract attention, although the turnover was hardly so large as on the previous day.

Following the sharp movements occurring on Wednesday in Associated Anglo-Atlantic Ords., a more steady tone was in evidence. Opening around 1 3/16, they improved to 1¼, and in the later dealings climbed to 26s., registering a rise of 1s. 9d. at that figure. Hudson's Bays were called 5 3/16 "ex rights," while dealings took place in the New around 1 5/16 premium.

In the Cement group British Cement Products Ord. were still on offer, shedding ⅛ to 2 1/16. The Deferred, however, fluctuated rather sharply, and, after being dealt in up to 19s. 3d., finished 6d. better at 18s. 6d. The announcement of the final dividend of 6 p.c. on the Old Ords. of British and South Pacific Trading failed to benefit the shares, which finished 9d. lower at 28s.

Imperial Continental Gas were supported in the Gas section, and, after changing hands up to 395, were finally 25 points to the good at 390 on shortage of stock and the appearance of a big buyer.

General Electrics were called 50s. ex div. among Electricals, while Associateds were quiet at 46s. 3d. In the Canadian-American group Brazilian Tractions recovered to 60, and Hydro-Electrics strengthened to 45⅞.

Branston Ordinaries were a better market among Rayons, and in response to moderate support changed hands over 10s., leaving off 1s. 9d. to the good at 10s. 3d. Courtaulds, at 3 23/32, were also a firmer spot in anticipation of the interim dividend which was announced after hours, and was in accordance with market expectations at 4 per cent., tax free. British Celanese held at 1 7/16, while the Second Preference gained 6d. to 16s.

Movements were few in the Textile Section. English Sewing Cotton yielded 1/16 to 2½, and Listers were called 21s. 9d. ex dividend. Fine Spinners rose 6d. to 33s. 9d.

Among Food Supply descriptions, Margarine Unions attracted purchasers, and closed 1s. upon balance at 95s., while the Unies were a firm spot at 96s.

International Nickels came on offer, and the price gradually fell away to 51¼, this leaving them with a net loss of a point on balance in the later dealings. However, they had a firmer appearance.

Columbia Graphophones were scaled down ⅞ to 14¼, while Gramophones (H.M.V.) yielded ⅛ to 8 1/16. Metropole Prefs. proved a weak spot at 8s. 3d.

Watney Defd. were a very firm spot at 2 13/16 among Brewery shares, quite a good business being put through. Guinness rose ⅛ to 4⅜, while Ind Coope at 3 1/16 and Meuxs at 1¾ were 1/16 to the good. Courage, however, reacted to 3, and Threlfalls eased fractionally to 2 1/16.

"Bats" and "Imps" left off without variation among Tobaccos. Royal Mails were offered at 50 in the Shipping department, and left off at 52 with a net loss of 2½. Cunards were quiet around 23s. 9d., and Peninsular and Oriental Defd. at 54s. 6d.

Movements among Insurance and Bank issues were unimportant. Kreuger and Tolls found favour in the Miscellaneous section, and advanced 1⅛ to 36¼, while Swedish Match "B" were called ¼ to the good at 20 9/16, and British Match also hardened to 28s. 3d. Molasses continued in request, and advanced 1/16 further to 7⅝, leaving off with a fairly firm appearance, and Dunlops had buyers at 17s. 9d. Imperial Chemical Ord. proved dull and shed 6d. to 34s. 9d., while the Defd. lost the turn at 13s. 9d.

RECENT ISSUE DEALINGS.

Dealings commenced in Primitiva Holdings, a few bargains taking place in the neighbourhood of 37s. 6d. Active trading was witnessed in Metafilters (1929), which eventually left off 1s. 3d. up at 7s. 9d; Yorkshire Products Investment Pref. gained 6d. to 17s., as did British Quarrying Prefs. to 17s. 6d., while Argus Holdings at 24s. 6d., Sphinx Electric Prefs. at 6s. 7½d., and S. Symons at 2s. 1½d. all closed better. Bussey International strengthened further to 1/16 premium, Hector Whaling hardened to 2 1/16, but Kolster-Brands sagged to 1½.

RUBBER SHARES STEADIER.

The volume of business transacted in the Rubber Share market continued on a rather quiet scale, but following the previous day's set-back a distinctly steadier tendency was apparent, and of the few price movements recorded the majority were favourable to holders. A stronger tone also ruled in the commodity market, where spot and July sold at 11½d. per lb., as compared with 11⅛d. per lb. on Wednesday; while August fetched 11⅝d. and October to December 11 13/16d. per lb. In the Share market, F.M.S. Plants rallied smartly to 42s. 6d., or 1s. 3d. harder, while Highlands gained a similar amount to 43s. 9d. Hong Kong Selangor were an exceptionally firm spot at 45s., at which they showed an advance of half a crown on the day.

OIL SHARES IRREGULAR.

While quiet conditions continued to characterise the Oil Share market yesterday, some relief was afforded to the idleness which prevailed on the preceding day, in that there was a quiet investment inquiry for shares such as Shells, which look attractive, now that they are quoted ex. the final dividend for the past year. Similarly there was some nibbling at other leading counters. Generally, however, the market remained a difficult one, and it was not an easy matter to find a price in a large line of either the leaders or speculative favourites. As on the preceding day, price movements finally recorded were few in number, small in amount and irregular in character.

IRISH BANK REPORT.

NATIONAL BANK.

The directors have declared the usual dividend at the rate of 14 per cent. per annum. The dividend, which absorbs £105,000, less tax, is payable on the 27th inst.

The profits are over £12,000 lower than at this time last year. The reserve again gets £15,000 and premises £10,000, but the amount carried to income tax and contingencies is £15,000, as compared with £50,000 at the last two half-years. The note circulation has again declined, the total being £1,279,000 less than in June, 1928. Deposits have increased by £863,930 and advances by £680,555. Cash and money at call show a decrease of £713,530, and investments stand about £218,000 lower. The total assets are about £44,000 less.

The most interesting announcement, from the shareholders' point of view, is with regard to the splitting of the shares, which are to be sub-divided into £10 shares of £5 each, with £1 paid up. The present share is £50, of which £10 is paid up.

TIN SHARES INCLINED TO IMPROVE.

The Mining Market yesterday could boast but little activity, though here and there specialities received some attention. This was mostly of a professional character, public interest having been reduced to a minimum. In the Kaffir Department less than a dozen changes resulted from the day's operations, and most of these were against holders. Paris remained as indifferent as London, but the Cape sent over a few inquiries for one or two favourites. Rhodesians were much less active than for a long time previously. Apparently the American demand has ceased and as the public appetite here has been satisfied, at any rate for the time being, professionals found little to go for. Diamonds were dullish, and a little offering of De Beers Def., Jagersfontein and West African Diamonds reduced the prices. The price of tin was finally £1 higher at £208 7s. 6d. per ton, and this, together with the statements made at the meeting called for the formation of a Tin Producers' Association, some accounts of which found their way into the House, helped the Share Market. Dealings were not on an extensive scale, but the tone was distinctly harder; the majority of movements recorded favoured holders. The price of copper was a trifle lower at £71 13s. 9d. per ton, and the Share Market was depressed. In the Miscellaneous section Ellyou came into strong demand, and rose sharply, and there was some quiet buying of Burma Corporation and Mexican Corporation. Closing prices:—

REPORT

TO BE PRESENTED TO THE PROPRIETORS AT THE HALF-YEARLY GENERAL MEETING, TO BE HELD AT NO. 34 COLLEGE GREEN, DUBLIN, ON THURSDAY, 25th JULY, 1929, AT TWELVE NOON.

1. The Profit and Loss Account for the Half-year ended the 30th June, 1929, including £27,693 1s. 6d. brought forward from the 31st December last, shows a Balance of £174,289 12s. 11d. available for distribution.

2. The Board have placed a further sum of £15,000 to Reserve Fund, have transferred the sum of £10,000 in reduction of Bank Premises, and have carried a sum of £15,000 to Contingencies Account, leaving a Balance of £134,289 12s. 11d., out of which they have declared a Dividend for the past Half-year at the rate of 14 per cent. per annum, and have carried forward the sum of £29,289 12s. 11d. to Profit and Loss New Account.

3. The Dividend will be payable, less British Income Tax at 4s. in the £, on and after Saturday, 27th inst.

4. Since the last Half-yearly General Meeting held in Dublin in July, 1928, the Directors have co-opted to the Board Edward Horace Walpole, Esq., to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. T. P. Morrissey. In accordance with Clause 92 of the Articles of Association, the name of this gentleman will be submitted for confirmation at the Meeting.

5. A form of Proxy is sent for the convenience of such Proprietors as may be unable to attend the Meeting and are qualified to vote by reason of being holders of not fewer than 15 Shares. To be available the Proxies must be lodged at the Company's Office at 34 College Green, Dublin, at least forty-eight hours before the time fixed for the Meeting. The Board will, therefore, be obliged by Shareholders who cannot attend the Meeting signing and returning the Proxy form without delay.

6. Since the Annual General Meeting, a Branch has been opened at 122 Patrick Street, Cork, and the Sub-Office at Fairview (Dublin) has been constituted a permanent Branch. Sub-Offices have been opened at Ballymoe, Kilmihill, Shanagolden, Tulsk, Kilkerrin, and Garrison.

10th July, 1929. J. B. MEERS, Chairman.

REPORT OF THE AUDITORS TO THE SHAREHOLDERS OF THE NATIONAL BANK LIMITED.

We have audited the above Balance Sheet and Profit and Loss Account for the Half-year ended the 30th June, 1929. We have verified the Cash on hand at Head Office, the Cash in Bank of England, the Money at Call and Short Notice, and the Securities representing the Investments of the Bank. We have examined and checked the Certified Returns from all the various Branches. We have obtained all the information and explanations we have required.

In our opinion such Balance Sheet and Account are properly drawn up, and exhibit a true and correct view of the state of the Bank's affairs according to the best of our information and the explanations given to us—and as shown by the said Returns and the Books of the Company.

THE MONEY MARKET.

LOANS EASIER.

An easier tendency prevailed in Lombard street yesterday, but money rates were rather patchy. In some places 5¼ p.c. was charted for fresh day-to-day loans, while in others 4¾ p.c. was accepted. The bulk of the business, however, was done at 5 p.c. Old loans were renewed at 4½ p.c.

The market in discounts was also irregular. Continental demand was again in evidence on three months' commercial bills, and business was done at 5 11/32 p.c., but the quotation was 5⅜ p.c. Six months' bills were also firm at 5 7/16-5½ p.c., there being a certain amount of selling reported. Two months' were called 5¼ p.c. and four months' 5 7/16 p.c.

At the Bank of England £23,471 of bar gold was bought and £150,749 sold, while 22,000 sovereigns were taken for export. The net efflux had amounted to £149,278; influx for 1929 to date, £1,354,596. In the silver market the spot price recovered 1/16d. per oz. to 24 1/16d. per oz. for both positions. Bar gold from West Africa amounting to £23,471 was bought by the Bank at the lower price of 84s. 10d. per fine oz.

At one time the New York exchange was little above 4.85, but it finished above 4.85 1/16, showing only a trifling decline on balance. The Montreal rate fell ⅜ to 4.87⅞. The Berlin rate further fell ¼ to 20.36¾, and Belgian belgas and Austrian schillings appreciated, while Dutch guilders were a little dearer.

PARENT TRUST AND FINANCE COMPANY.

THE DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The revenue for the year ended 30th April, 1929, amounted to £267,652, less income tax, £53,513, and, with the amount brought forward, there is a balance of £314,870. After deducting dividends already paid, the amount available is £191,831, out of which the directors recommend a final dividend on the Deferred shares of 12½ per cent, less tax, making 20 per cent. for year ended 30th April, 1929, leaving £119,766 to be carried forward.

The profits of the company show an increase over preceding years, notwithstanding that the company disposed of its investment in Anthracite Collieries to Amalgamated Anthracite Collieries, Ltd., at a price which involved a loss. This loss has been charged before ascertaining the profits of the year, and the investment is now represented by securities in Amalgamated Anthracite Collieries, Ltd. The claims against the company by the Inland Revenue authorities for income tax and excess profits duty in respect of old transactions, referred to in previous reports, amounted to formidable sums. The directors were convinced throughout that no liability attached to the company, and they are pleased to report that within the last few weeks the assessments have been withdrawn without cost to the company, and that no differences now exist between the company and the Revenue authorities. The directors regret that by reason of these claims it has not been possible to proceed with the proposed scheme for the separation of the finance branch of the company's undertaking from its investment business. It has, therefore, continued the ordinary course of its trading, and has recently taken part in an industrial project of a far-reaching nature which may take some time to mature.

In the meantime, the separation scheme must be delayed, but the shareholders may rest assured that when it is brought forward every advantage accruing to the company from the scheme will be offered to or reserved for the shareholders in the first instance, while due regard will be given to the security of the Preference and Ordinary shareholders. The contingent liabilities of £1,344,500 0s. 9d. shown on the balance sheet were incurred in the ordinary course of business, are limited in time, and secured by satisfactory collateral securities. The retiring director is Mr. J. Douglas Watson, who, being eligible, offers himself for re-election. The Right Hon. Baron Glenavy, co-opted a director during the year, also retires and, being eligible, offers himself for re-election.

The general meeting will be held on July 19th at noon at Northumberland Rooms, Northumberland avenue, London, W.C.

BANK OF ENGLAND RETURN.

PUBLIC DEPOSITS DOWN.

The principal changes in this week's Bank return are the result of the market's repayments to the Bank of England of money borrowed in order to tide over the half-year. The other securities show a net decrease of over £35,500,000. Government securities are fully £6,000,000 higher, probably due to recent special buying of bills. The quarterly dividend on 2½ per cent. Consols, Local Loans, etc., on July 5 contributed to a decline of £19,000,000 in the public deposits. The reserve is nearly £267,000 up at £46,871,907, the result almost entirely of a contraction of £261,000 in the note circulation. Although the gold efflux for the week was £142,000, the coin and bullion shows an increase of nearly £60,000, while the gold holding alone in the issue department is only £30,000 down. It looks as though an addition has been made to the silver coin. The reduction in the private deposits is considerably less than the net decline in the combined securities, having amounted to £10,328,454, reducing the total to about £102,500,000. The proportion of reserve to liabilities is nearly 9 higher at a little under 42 per cent.

BRITISH BOARD OF TRADE RETURNS.

FALL IN IMPORTS AND EXPORTS.

The Board of Trade returns issued yesterday for June indicate an unwelcome set-back in the progress of British trade. There are reductions in imports exceeding 7½ millions and reductions in exports of over 9½ millions compared with June, 1928.

The figures show that the textile industries suffered considerably, and there has been a falling off also notable in the iron and steel trade.

It is curious to note that coal shows an advance in value of nearly half a million for export compared with June, 1928. For the six months this year, which is, perhaps, a fairer comparison contrasted with the first six months of last year, Britain shows an increase of exports of 3½ million sterling.

Imports for June totalled £91,497,660, a reduction of £7,903,996 compared with June last year. Exports totalled £49,893,344, a decrease of £9,579,144.

For the first six months of the year imports were of the value of £604,778,395, a decrease of £531,965, compared with the first six months of 1928, and exports were £355,742,2[illegible], an increase of £3,510,345.

WATERFORD

PRODUCE AND FOOD MARKETS.

Dublin—Cattle, Sheep and Lambs larger supplies and values weaker; Dairy Cattle rates maintained; Pigs at full previous rates. York—Trade in Irish Stores at stand-still. Butter at Copenhagen 3/7 per cwt. lower. Butter cheaper at Cork. Pigs dearer at Birmingham. Rubber rising. Rise in Tin.

CATTLE.

DUBLIN (Metropolitan). — Increased supplies of both bovine and ovine stock brought on market this week exercised a weakening influence on values throughout. There were several extra dealers and commission men buying cattle for England and Scotland, but their attitude was cautious and reserved at times inside an easier margin on previous values. Altogether prices were bumping more heavily on last week's bottom level, and in the main work out a good 6d. to 1s. per cwt. worse, but at current rates a palpably longer shipping offtake resulted, although at a comparatively late stage of market there was still an important remainder of beasts without buyers' marks. Of course, the great shortage of grass at the other side of the Channel may have caused a curtailment of operations for carry-over requirements. In point of quality and finish cattle embraced a very excellent show—in many cases, indeed, too fat. However, heavy bullocks up to 12 and 13 cwts were more looked for and freer placed than for many weeks past, but inside 42s. to 43s. and 44s. per cwt. on foot. Suitable black types also more sought after for Scotland, one particular shipper securing several grand drafts at 48s. and 49s. per cwt. Sheep, too, are coming in in improved condition, but heavy, fat pens difficult to find clients for. For prime qualities of the handier weights of mutton there continues a fair enough inquiry, but values keep consistently shipping back to a cheaper level. Lambs very numerous, and generally comprising poorly-selected dealers' requirements, which are difficult to satisfactorily turn over at a profit. Market, on the whole, 3s. to 4s. or 5s. per head lower on both sheep and lambs, with a considerable surplus unsold.

Veal calves	9	increase 4	8	19

Beast trade cautious and weaker. Prime small weight heifers and bullocks suitable to local butchers' requirements secured 45s. to 46s. per cwt., fancy heifers around 8 cwt. perhaps an occasional 6d. to 1s. more. Best average run of beef market figured about 44s. to 44s. 6d. and 45s., but English shippers mostly secured requirements of 12 to 13 cwt. bullocks around 41s. 6d. to 42s. 6d. and 43s. per cwt. Scottish buyers offered generally 48s. to 49s. per cwt. to weigh tip-top black types of cattle, and secured many drafts around these figures. Plainer grades of steers a slow uneven sale, but few buyers could be found for the heavier run of heifers, which consequently placed discouragingly. Ordinary run of beasts 37s. 6d. to 41s., and coarser around 35s. to 36s., or perhaps less. Beef cows about £1 to 30s. per head lower unless for prime young quality. At prices a better sale for export was experienced. Average drafts of fat cows 32s. 6d. to 35s. per cwt., occasional fancy exhibits 36s. to 38s., fair 27s. 6d. to 30s., inferior from 17s. 6d. per cwt.

In sheep division trade proved particularly slack and depressed, especially for the heavier descriptions. For big fat wethers of fancy breeding 75s. per head appeared to be a barrier to sale, althouth this class would be well up to £5 a few weeks ago. In fact, present close weather is against trade in heavy mutton or lamb. For both sheep and lambs market on the whole ruled 2s. to 4s. and 5s. per head lower. Choice mutton, say, 9½d. to 10d. per lb., other classes from 6d. to 8½d. and 9d. per lb. Lambs were largely of poor and lean descriptions. Nice quality farmers' lambs averaged 56s. to 48s. and 50s. or 52s. per head. Dealers' drafts bid for at very in and out prices, and averaged 30s. to 44s. or 45s. each, according to merit. Inferior 20s. to 28s. each.

DUBLIN DAIRY.—About 375 head milch beasts were entered for sale on this market. Both home dairymen and shippers were in good attendance, but the latter were shy and cautious in transactions owing to grass shortage in most English centres. Late values, however, were generally maintained for middleaged cows of outstanding merit and well-bred promising heifers. Choice heavy capacity and milchers £24 to £26 and £28 each, young cows and heifers £19 to £24 and £25, ordinary sorts £16 to £18, others £12 to £15 each.

DUBLIN PIG.—Market offered a gathering of 775 head of swine, many of which were of young store class. For finished bacon hogs and suitable porkers there was a keen inquiry and sell up at a rather firmer repetition of last Thursday's full rates, viz., 96/- to 100/- per cwt for tip-top quality hogs and 90/- to 95/- others. Sow pigs scarce, and 67/6 to 75/6 per cwt.

YORK.—Very small show of Irish store cattle, and no English. Trade absolutely at standstill and quotations impossible, what new sales were effected being at last week's rate. Dairy cattle were a light show, and with no off-buyers present trade was dull and purely local at late rates. Only Masham sheep penned and made up to 60/-.

BRISTOL.—A fair supply of beef sold at 95/- to 98/-; mutton 1/1 to 1/2; lamb 1/3 to 1/4. About 1,600 store cattle on offer experienced a slow trade at late rates; milch cows £24 to £27, up to £33 for extra.

BIRMINGHAM PIG.—Short supply, and trade active, bacons and sows being up to 6d. dearer and wanted. Smalls firmer, and a fair enquiry. Quotations:—Sizeable bacons 18/6, cutters 17/6 to 18/-, and sows 15/- per score dead-weight.

GRAIN

FLOATING GRAIN CARGOES (BALTIC).—WHEAT—Firm conditions prevailed in the floating and forward cargo section, with prices being further raised by 3d. to 6d. per quarter, which tended to check demand. Commercial cables received from Argentine report a more serious aspect of the strike, which, apparently, is likely to spread to all up river ports. This is scarcely confirmed, however, by the course of local prices, which mark a further advance for both cereals and linseed. BARLEY firmly held: parcels of No. 3 Canadian Western July sellers 33/6, No. 4 do. 32/6, No. 2 Federal American 29/3. Algerian Tunisian July-August 29/-, Persian 31/- per 480lbs. OATS firm but quiet; July-August sellers 23/3, No. 1 Canadian feed July 25/9, No. 2 do. 24/3 per 320lbs.

LIVERPOOL.—WHEAT—The American Bureau report turned out about as expected, but with higher quotations from Winnipeg and Chicago forward deliveries of wheat here showed a liberal advance at the outset, then receded and fluctuated moderately, but gave way sharply in the afternoon on reports of rains in Canada, finishing easy at the worst point and marking a liberal decline from Wednesday night. C.i.f. parcels of Rosario-Santa Fe 63lbs. afloat sold at 45/3 to Liverpool, and the same weight 15th August-September at 44/- to Manchester. C.i.f. parcels of Manitoba River Plate loading 15th July sold at 38/6 to 38/7, July-August and August-September 38/7½ to 38/6, and No. 6 yellow South African July 38/1½ per quarter. Wheat on the spot [illegible] and easier. MAIZE spot parcels firm and dearer for River Plate at 8/5 per cental. FLOUR quiet and officially unchanged. Foreign wheat futures opened 1d. per cental dearer, gave way, ½d., fluctuated moderately, but declined rapidly during the afternoon, closing easy at ½d. to 1d. under Wednesday night. River Plate maize options ½d. dearer.

MANCHESTER.—English wheat scarce and dear up to 57/- per quarter on rail. Cheshire oats dearer at 9/9 to 10/- on rail.

PROVISIONS.

LIVERPOOL.—BACON — Continental generally again in fair demand, especially Danish, for which liberal premiums over official quotations are again obtainable, while Irish remains firm on scarcity, and American moderately active, but no quotable change recorded in any description. HAMS firm and in fair request, with prices still tending upwards, extra skinless being again dearer at 119/- to 123/- per cwt. Shoulders steadily held. LARD on the spot rules quietly steady at late rates, but only a moderate business reported. CHEESE still quiet, and New Zealand lower, white being reduced to 91/- to 95/- and coloured 94/- to 99/- per cwt. BUTTER remains quiet at the recent decline. EGGS firm and dearer at 14/6 to 15/9 for fresh Irish hen and 13/- to 13/3 for duck per 120.

EGGS (per 120)—English, packed to national mark: specials 18/6 to 19/3, standards 17/6 to 18/-, pullet standards 15/- to 15/6; ordinary packing, grade 1 16/3 to 16/9, grade 2 13/- to 13/6, duck 15/- to 15/3; Belgian, 15 lbs. 13/3 to 13/9; Dutch, 18lbs., all brown 16/6 to 17/3; 15lbs. all brown 14/6 to 14/9; 16lbs., mixed 13/6 to 13/9; French, 18lbs., all brown 15/3; 16lbs., brown 14/- to 14/3, mixed 11/9 to 12/6; Normandy, 16lbs. 12/- to 13/-; Brittany, 15lbs. 11/9 to 12/6. POULTRY, GAME, etc., at per lb. or each, as the case may be, as follows:—Surrey chicken (per lb.) 1/8 to 2/2, country 1/5 to 1/9, Irish, fatted 1/4 to 1/6, lean 1/2 to 1/4, Belgian 1/10 to 2/1, Dutch 1/5 to 1/9; English hens old 8d. to 10d., Irish 6d. to 9d.; ducklings, Aylesbury 1/4 to 1/6, country 1/- to 1/2, American 1/2 to 1/4; English geese 9d. to 10d.; turkeys, Russian 1/- to 1/3.

BRISTOL.—BACON—Demand has been fairly satisfactory at the recent advance, gammons and streaks meeting an exceptionally keen inquiry. HAMS—Trade was rather quiet, but prices generally held steady. LARD—A moderate demand was encountered, and with a sharp advance in rates for shipment spot prices are decidedly firmer. CHEESE was in rather slow request, and prices for Colonial descriptions were barely maintained. BUTTER was in fair demand, with prices comparatively steady early in the week, but latterly they have displayed an easier tendency.

DUBLIN FRUIT AND VEGETABLE.—Black currants on this market went 1/6 to 3/- and 3/6 per chip, gooseberries 1/3 to 2/6 per box, and 5/- to 7/- and 8/- per hamper. York cabbage still plentiful, and inferior sorts hard to clear. Best 12/- 15/- and 20/- per load, other sorts 7/- to 10/- per load; peas 6/- to 9/- per bag, 15/- to 20/- per sack, 1/6 to 2/- per float, etc.; broad beans 1/- to 2/- per half bushel, rhubarb 1/- to 1/6 and 2/- per bundle, carrots 1/9 to 2/3 ditto; cauliflowers 2/6 to 3/6 and 4/- per dozen, beet 2/- to 3/- per dozen, lettuce 4d. to 6d. and 10d. per dozen, scallions 5d. to 7d. per bundle, Tripoli onions 6d. to 8d. ditto, white turnips 6d. to 9d. per bundle, parsley 6d. to 9d. per tray, thyme, etc., 1/3 to 2/- per dozen bunches.

DUBLIN POTATO.—Very heavy supplies of potatoes continue to come in from growers, which are difficult to keep. Classed prices are considered rather too heavy. Factors generally quote Wednesday's terms, but in the hawking manner of distribution in the city and suburbs real terms of bulk sales are hard to vouch.

CORK BUTTER.—The market remains dull, with receding prices. Creameries 160/- to 162/- per cwt. f.o.b.

COPENHAGEN.—BUTTER is quoted at 289 kroner per 100 kilos, which is equivalent to £8 1/7 per cwt., a decrease of 3/4 on the previous week.

DUBLIN FISH.—Very moderate supplies from local or country sources. Deliveries embraced 36 packages of salmon, 15 chests of lobsters, and 225 boxes of steam trawl fish from two vessels. Trade good for fresh stuff. Salmon 1/9 to 2/4 per lb., grilse 1/6 to 1/8 per lb. First pick of lobsters 15/- to 20/-, seconds 10/- to 12/6, others 3/6 to 7/6 per lot; turbot 1/- to 16/- and 18/-, brill 6d to 5/- each, best soles 50/- to 60/- per lot, mediums 25/- to 35/- and 40/-, slips 10/- to 15/- per lot; haddock 15/- to 30/-, plaice 35/- to 63/-, white soles 20/- to 35/-, whiting 30/- to 45/-, inferior from 6/-, codfish 30/- to 50/-, hake 30/- to 75/- and 80/-, haddocks 15/- to 30/-, pollock 15/- to 25/-, ling 10/- to 15/-, conger eels 15/- to 25/- and 30/-, ray 12/6 to 22/6, gurnard 5/- to 7/6.

BRADFORD WOOL.—The London sales have failed to bring about any improvement, and so far the offerings have been poor and unrepresentative. Quotations for tops are irregular, but 64's average are ½d. lower at 39d., and most cross-breds are ½d. cheaper, though 40's prepared are quoted 21½d. Business remains quiet.

MANCHESTER HAY AND STRAW.—Both hay and straw continue in quiet request; late rates well maintained. Lincolnshire rye grass and clover £6 10/- to £7, Cheshire £6 to £6 5/-, meadow hay £5 5/- to £5 15/-; oat straw 67/6 to 70/-, wheat straw 62/6, all delivered Manchester. Canadian hay £5 15/- per ton at quay.

LONDON METALS MARKET.
RISE IN TIN.

At first session the market for TIN displayed firmer features, values responding to higher Eastern advices, and with better general demand sellers showed more reserve. On balance cash ruled 52/6, and forward 45/- to 47/6 per ton dearer. Standard cash quoted £208 2/6 to £208 5/-, three months £211 to £211 5/-; settlement price £208 5/-. 900 tons changed hands cash at £207 15/- £207 10/- and £208 2/6; three months £211, £210 15/-, £211 7/6 and £211 2/6; English ingots quoted £208 15/- to £209 5/-. In the East 425 tons reported sold on the basis of £214 c.i.f. terms. COPPER firm, with moderate dealings; forward positions being 1/3 ton dearer on balance. Standard cash quoted £71 13/9 to £71 15/-, three months £72 8/9 to £72 10/-; settlement price £71 15/-. Sales amounted to 550 tons cash at £71 15/-, three months £72 7/6, £72 10/- and £72 8/9; Electros quoted £84 to £84 10/-, wire bars £84 10/-. LEAD in moderate request, and with sellers more in evidence values further gave way. 600 tons sold good soft foreign pig July at £22 16/3 to £22 15/-, August £22 15/- to £22 16/-, October £22 17/6 to £22 16/3; settlement price £22 15/-; English quoted £24 5/-. SPELTER quiet and easier on larger offerings. 550 tons sold July at £25 11/3 to £25 [illegible], October £25 15/-; settlement price £25 10/- per ton. LONDON WOOL SALES.

Three catalogues were brought forward jointly totalling 9,348 bales, including 2,634 New South Wales and Queensland, 1,102 Victorian, 583 West Australian, 194 South Australian, 235 Tasmanian, 4,473 New Zealand, 127 Cape. The above represented a fairly attractive selection, and met with fair general competition at about late rates. Withdrawals were still frequent, especially in the Merino section, while the bulk of Cape offerings failed to pass the hammer owing to high selling limits.

STORE CATTLE SALES.
MESSRS. GAVIN LOW.

There was a slight falling off in the numbers shown at yesterday's store cattle sale, and not many good lots came forward. These made slightly more money than last week, but there was little change in prices of other sorts, although there were more buyers. Practically a complete clearance was made. Quotations:—Horned bullocks and heifers from £18 15s. to £12, or from 42s. 6d. per cwt. to 36s. Aberdeen-Angus and Hereford crosses from £20 5s. to £14, or from 45s. to 40s. per cwt.

MESSRS. GANLY SONS AND CO.

There was not as good an offering of cattle this week, and trade continues to run in a cautious groove, with prices working out at or about the same as last sale. The top price of the sale, £19 15s. (47s. 6d.), was obtained for a choice pen of Aberdeen-Angus bullocks, the property of the Somerton Estate. Prices of other principal lots of bullocks and heifers ranged from 39s. to 44s. 6d., a number of rougher classes at correspondingly lower rates.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT.
SCENE IN DUBLIN KITCHEN.
TWO MEN CHARGED.
(BEFORE MR. COLLINS.)

Michael Keane, caretaker, of 92 Harcourt street, Dublin, and Thomas Kiely, insurance agent, St. Joseph's avenue, Drumcondra, were charged by Guard 223 B with having assaulted each other in the house in Harcourt street last Wednesday afternoon.

Keane's case was that Kiely attacked him on the stairs, and from a higher step kicked him in the eye, which had to be treated in the Meath Hospital. The witness is an Army pensioner with a pension of £2 10s. a week, which, he said, in reply to the Justice, he had earned in the South African and the European Wars. He had only just come out of the Crooksling Convalescent Institution.

Kiely's case was that Keane invited him down to the kitchen to see about his insurance book. When they had entered the kitchen Keane closed the door and seized him, saying, "Kiely, I have you now; I'll take your life." Keane then struck Kiely several times. They got into grips, and Keane knocked his face against the wall. Kiely submitted that anything he did was done in his own defence.

The Justice said that it was obvious that Keane got the worst of it, and he would fine Kiely 1s., with £1 1s. costs, and cautioned Keane.

SIDE SHOW AT CIRCUS.
"MEDIUM" WINS ACTION.

Miss Phyllis Dorothy Rowley and Mr. Clarence Neville, who had been employed at the Rotuna Gardens, sued John Popjei to recover £8, two weeks' salary.

Miss Rowley said that she and Mr. Neville were engaged last March at a joint salary of £4 a week, and it was to be increased if the business justified it. The defendant was an "illusionist" and witness was a "medium," and assisted at a mechanical contrivance called a "radio." They did no business the first week, and that time was spent in cleaning and painting the machine. They got no money for the first two weeks.

The solicitor for the defendant said that the parties had no connection with the circus which was at present in the Rotunda Gardens.

The defendant, giving evidence, said that Miss Rowley was engaged by him to work in his act at £4 a week. The general custom of the profession was that when there was no work there was no pay. He had no contract with Mr. Neville, but he was allowed to travel with the company and look after the baggage. Last Sunday terminated the work of the plaintiffs. He had lost a big sum of money, and he had none to spare.

Mr. Dan Derry, publicity manager for the Cirque Barry, said that they had nothing to do with Professor Popjei's show, which was worked as a side show. He thought that when any work was being done in preparation of a show there should be some payment made to the workers, such as the plaintiffs.

The Justice made an order that the plaintiffs should be paid £7 forthwith, with a guinea costs.

Mr. Maguire, solicitor, appeared for the plaintiffs; Mr. J. V. Brady appeared for the defendant.

BORDER CARNATIONS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Gardening Correspondent says:—

Apart from the garden Pinks, which now give grateful perfume and pleasing colours in little cushions along the border front, we are now on the eve of joy from their more aristocratic cousins, the border Carnation, old John Parkinson's "Floures of greate delighte," albeit much advanced since his day, three centuries ago. We cannot trust these to branchlets, or even cuttings, although the latter method succeeds, but never gives us those strong plants we look for in perpetuating or increasing the stock. For propagating we rely on the rather more troublesome operation of layering, for which, by the lush young growth now evident, the time is at hand. That is the strong young flowerless shoots which come contemporaneously with the flowering period.

POULTRY, CAGE BIRDS, DAIRY.
THE MOULT.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

Hens in confinement are more affected while moulting than birds that have liberty, but if they are healthy and carefully treated there should be no trouble with them. If they lose their appetites they should have nourishing food of a kind they like, and a little meat should be included. Above all things, they should be kept clean and have a dust bath provided, with a little sulphur mixed in it. Also they should have plenty of green food. Dandelion and boiled nettles are specially good. The iron tonic we advised last week is beneficial. They must not be allowed to get wet or be exposed to the strong heat of the sun. Where there is difficulty with moulting hens, it is in most cases due to carelessness in feeding at the time, and the loss of stamina is produced by neglect in feeding a "building-up" diet.

During the moulting period the foregoing instructions apply to birds that are to be kept over the winter. Old hens now laying, but that are to be got rid of later on should be kept from moulting if possible, so that they may be laying up to the end. To do this they should be fed well, but not with fattening food. They should be in good condition, but not fat.
